Bullet Holes in a Wall and Some Blood Stains the Meagre Evidence of Tragedy.

EKATERINBURG, Russia, Nov. 21.—Did the Bolsheviki execute the Czar and his family? Here at Ekaterinburg I have been through the house where he is supposed to have been killed, and have talked with many inhabitants and foreigners. None possessed proof that the family were executed. There is no evidence except some twenty bullet holes in the wall, and there is considerable circumstantial evidence to make the Bolshevist story that the family were executed a doubtful one.

In view of the monarchist agitation in Russia today because of the Omsk coup d'état one of the most important questions concerning Russia is the Czar's fate.

For three months an Ekaterinburg judicial commission has been investigating, but so far has been unable to reach a conclusion.

The allied Consular corps which has been here throughout the Bolshevist occupation does not possess evidence that the family were executed.

Prominent Ekaterinburg citizens will not state that the Czar was killed because they have doubts.

The owner of the house where the family were imprisoned does not know.

On the other hand, there are bullet holes in the walls of a basement room, and there is the Bolshevist official statement that the family were executed.

But there is the testimony of a prominent Ekaterinburg citizen that he saw Nicholas and his family at the railroad station three days after they disappeared.

Facts which I have gathered from various sources and my observations in the Czar's house follow.

On April 25 the Bolshevist commander called upon Nicholas Ipadeff, a Russian engineer and owner of a large, palatial residence, and ordered him to move immediately. The following day a high board fence was built around the one-story structure.

The Czar and Czarina and their daughter Mary arrived from Tobolsk by boat, accompanied by a Russian physician, Dr. Derevenko, one valet, and one maid. Several days later a physician, Bodkin, came with the Czarvitch and the three other daughters. They were imprisoned in Ipadoff's house under guard of thirty-two Bolshevist soldiers and workingmen from nearby factories until the night of July 16.

The Czar and his family imprisoned in this house were permitted only half an hour's recreation daily within the board fence. During their confinement the family were subjected to humiliating persecution. The soldiers aimed rifles at them when they walked and forced one daughter to sleep on the floor without bedding. The Czar, his wife and son, and a physician were forced to sleep in the same room and the four daughters in an adjacent room. All the house windows were covered with iron bar netting.

Often at meals the soldiers would take food from the table. Although the seven members of the family dined, only five plates, knives, forks, and spoons were placed on the table. During their imprisonment a nun from the old famous Ekaterinburg Cathedral brought milk and eggs for the Czarevitch. The family were permitted no privacy whatever. Always soldiers with loaded guns and bayonets were standing by. The soldiers were often intoxicated, as was evidenced by the find-

Omsk Dictator Assassinated, According to Rumor in Japan

HONOLULU, Nov. 27.—Cable advices received today by the Nippu Jiji, a Japanese daily newspaper, stated that it was reported in Japan that Admiral Kolchak, dictator of Siberia, had been assassinated at Omak.

Assumption of the dictatorship of Siberia by Admiral Kolchak was announced about three weeks ago, following the arrest at Omak of two members of the Directorate of Five by three officers. The latter were acquitted, it having been disclosed that the Ministers they seized were engaged in a Bolshevist plot to overturn the Government.

NEXT BOND ISSUE 5 BILLION IN APRIL

Treasury Certificates Will Be Sold Every Fortnight in the Meantime.

PROGRAM TOLD BY McADOO

Expenses Setting a New High Record—Baruch Mentioned for Secretaryship.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Notice that the country must prepare for another intensive war loan campaign, probably in the latter part of April, was given today by Secretary McAdoo in a letter to bankers explaining the Treasury's program for floating certificates of indebtedness and bonds during the next six months.

The Secretary said that plans for continuous sale of Government bonds, recently discussed as a strong possibility, had been abandoned, and that plans should be made for "one more great popular campaign." Previously he had announced that the bonds to be offered then would be of short maturity, less than ten years, and it has been indicated that the amount would be around $5,000,000,000. Although Mr. McAdoo did not state the time of the campaign, it was learned the Treasury planned tentatively to hold it the last three weeks in April.

Blocks of Treasury certificates of indebtedness, ranging in amount between $500,000,000 and $750,000,000, will be marketed every two weeks, beginning Dec. 5, to provide funds for running the Government until payments from the fifth war loan begin to come in, and these payments then will be used to pay off the certificates. Every bank will be expected to subscribe 5 per cent. of its gross resources monthly to these certificates.

The first issue of $600,000,000, 'minimum, announced to day, may be subscribed between Dec. 5 and Dec. 10, will mature May 6 next, and will bear 4½ per cent. This rate is not considered as affording any indication of the interest to be borne by the fifth war loan bonds.

Mr. McAdoo also disclosed today that the Government's expenses this month probably would run to a new high record of $2,000,000,000 and that "the wise policy of prompt liquidation of contracts" might increase rather than lower the Governments' outlays.

To Reimburse Contractors.

In this connection, it became known today that the Treasury had advised the War and Navy Departments that it would be legal and desirable in many cases to pay lump sums to manufacturers with whom contracts are canceled, to cover loss suffered by the contractors for countermanded orders. Legislation may be necessary, however, to provide for paying claims of manufacturers who have proceeded on telegraphic or letter instructions from the War or Navy Department, and have not actually signed formal contracts.

Mr. McAdoo in a letter sent today to every bank and trust company said in part:

"The expenditures of the Government, excluding transactions in the principal of the public debt during the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1918, to and including Nov. 23, 1918, a period of less than five months, amounted to $8,213,070,000. Such expenditures during the month of November to Nov. 23 amounted to $1,577,148,000, or at the rate of nearly two billion for the month.

"The proceeds of the Fourth Liberty Loan in excess of the amount of Treasury certificates issued in anticipation of that loan have been exhausted; and the remaining installment payments to be made on subscriptions to the Fourth Liberty Loan will but little more than cover the Treasury certificates of indebtedness issued in anticipation of that loan and as yet unpaid.

"Evidently some time must pass before the readjustment from a war to a peace basis can reflect itself in material diminution of the daily cash outgo from the Treasury. Indeed, the wise policy of prompt liquidation of contracts might actually result for a time in the acceleration of demands upon the Treasury while strengthening and making more liquid the banking position of the country.

"Uncertainties with respect to pending revenue legislation make it impracticable and inexpedient to borrow further at this time in anticipation of taxes. In this period of readjustment it would be difficult to set in motion any plan for the continuous sale of Government bonds, and it seems that the wise policy will be to plan for one more great pop-

BERLIN, Nov. 26, (via The Hague, Nov. 27.)—Inner political developments in Germany are moving with lightning rapidity away from chaos and self-destruction toward the only salvation possible—reconstruction on a basis determined by a national convention to be called at the earliest possible moment.

Many Soldiers' and Workers' Councils and other political organizations in the most important German centres telegraphed the Government yesterday that they insisted on immediate elections for the national convention, and that they would not tolerate dangerous performances by Liebknecht, Rosa Luxemburg, and other "Spartacides."

Such messages from the Soldiers' Council at Hindenburg's headquarters and from army headquarters as last known were particularly impressive, and had a remarkable effect on the Soldiers' and Workers' Councils in Berlin, which have supported the people's Commissioners rather half-heartedly, and until recently regarded the national convention as rather a nuisance.

Upon receipt of copies of hundreds of telegrams last night demanding a speedy convention, Richard Müller, Molkenbuhr, and the rest of the Berlin Executive Committee of the Soldiers' Councils, issued a document calling on all the other councils in Germany to send delegates to a general meeting of Soldiers' and Workers' Councils here on Dec. 16, which will consider its attitude toward a future legislative assembly.

The document concludes with these words:

"As long as no legislative assembly has said the final word on the new constitution of republican Germany, it is the duty of the Soldiers' Councils to give expression to the people's will."

Nearly all the papers interpret this sentence as a practical recognition of the necessity of a national convention.

In the Tageblatt this morning Theodor Wolff approves heartily of the Soldiers' Councils, saying:

"According to all the news the Soldiers' Councils have managed to keep wonderful discipline and comradeship. They are the really truly democratic institution in Germany today because like the army from which they emanated they are composed of all classes and come from all walks of life."

This is certainly true of the Soldiers' Councils that have sprung up within the various armies, and, perhaps, also of those in most of the German cities, but in Berlin there certainly was a strong leaning toward the "Spartacides," which now however, with troops arriving from the front almost hourly, and with large bodies of troops marching by companies through Berlin streets is rapidly disappearing.

These troops fresh from the front have remarkable influence also on Liebknecht, Rosa Luxemburg, and company. The "Spartacides" are evidently feeling that what little hold they have on certain classes is rapidly slipping away from them. They realize that unless they receive

Berlin Soldiers Seize Booty of Mackensen and Staff

ZURICH, Nov. 25.—Field Marshal von Mackensen, who commanded the German troops operating in Rumania, on his return to Berlin had in his possession 69,000,000 marks in gold and notes, according to the Zeitung of Augsburg, Bavaria. His staff carried stocks of provisions for their families.

Picket soldiers at the railroad station confiscated everything, the newspaper adds, and the authorities in reply to complaints made by the officers stated that the guard had acted as it did because it was "believed the goods had been stolen."

PARIS, Nov. 27.—Persons who have just come from the Rhineland through Holland report astounding occurrences.

At Cologne crowds have been clamoring against the former Kaiser and the former Crown Prince. Posters placarded over the city and signed by the Executive Committee of the soldiers' associations offer a reward equivalent to $20,000 to whoever will kill "these arch-criminals in Holland" or bring them back to Germany to be sentenced by their own people.

Kaiser Abdicated by Telegraph.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 27.—THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent learns from a thoroughly trustworthy source that no official documents exist in Germany of the Kaiser's abdication. The authorities endeavor to explain this by the fact that he abdicated so suddenly that the transaction had to be carried out by telegraph.

This does not alter the situation that the Kaiser has never formally abdicated, and so is still King of Prussia and Emperor of Germany, with the advantage if he returns to Germany that he is the only King, as the other Kings have abdicated. Thus he would be still more powerful.

A number of German soldiers who crossed the frontier last week and were interned in the German camp at Wolheze, near Amerongen, came to blows with the other Germans over the question of destroying the Kaiser's portraits displayed in the camp. Dutch troops were called in to restore order.

Conferring on Extradition.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—While it is true that the position of the ex-Kaiser, under international law, is occupying the attention of law officers of the British Crown, statements published here of their having made a definite report to the Government are premature, and the assertion that the allied Governments have decided to make a joint demand on Holland for his extradition consequently is incorrect.

However, a formal report probably will be ready for consideration by the Prime Minister and Foreign Secretary very soon, and enough is known of the opinions of the Lord Chancellor, Attorney General and Solicitor General to justify the anticipation that the British Government will communicate with the allied and Associated Powers with a view to common action.

Besides the Kaiser, any decision come to regarding a summons to Holland could be extended to all those who have committed or given instruction for the commission of crimes recognized by the extradition laws of invaded countries, and falling within the category of offenses for which provision is made in extradition treaties concluded between those countries and Germany.

Holland Still Unconvinced.

It has been stated that the Netherlands takes the view that, as the persons whose extradition would be in question are neither subjects of the State of Holland nor of any of the countries against whose laws the al-

WATSON CITES THE LAW

Former Corporation Counsel Says President Would Lose Official Powers Abroad.

NOVEL POINT TO CAPITAL

Other Lawyers Here, Discussing Wickersham's Speech, See No Bar to President's Plans.

Noted lawyers of this city yesterday commented on the speech of ex-Attorney General George W. Wickersham, delivered at the dinner on Tuesday night of the Council on Foreign Relations, in which he discussed the legal questions involved in the President's proposed journey to Europe and raised the issue whether Vice President Marshall would not have to assume the Presidential office in Mr. Wilson's absence from the country.

They also commented on the interview with Vice President Marshall, published in THE NEW YORK TIMES of yesterday, in which he discussed his relation to the Presidency in Mr. Wilson's proposed absence from the country, and said that he "unquestionably would assume the Presidency of the United States and exercise the duties of that office if a court having jurisdiction directed me to do so."

While Louis Marshall and Samuel Untermyer held that there was no constitutional barrier to the President's trip and Henry W. Taft maintained that the courts were very conservative in dealing with a political question, Archibald R. Watson, former Corporation Counsel of this city, brought up the point that under a law of 1790 the District of Columbia was fixed as the seat of Government after the first Monday in December of 1800, and President Wilson "ceases to be President, except in name, when he lands on foreign shores," as the law of 1790, Mr. Watson said, provided that "all offices attached to the seat of government shall be exercised in the District of Columbia and not elsewhere."

The law cited by Mr. Watson is Chapter XXVIII. of "Acts passed at the second session of the Congress of the United States of America, begun and held at the City of New York, on Monday, the Fourth of January, in the year MDCCXC." Section 6 provides:

That on the said first Monday in December, in the year one thousand eight hundred, the seat of the Government of the United States shall, by virtue of this act, be transferred to the district (of Columbia) and place (Washington) aforesaid: And all offices attached to the said seat of Government shall, accordingly, be removed thereto by their respective holders, and shall, after the said day, cease to be exercised elsewhere; and that the necessary expense of such removal shall be defrayed out of the duties on imports and tonnage, of which a sufficient sum is hereby appropriated.

FREDERICK AUGUSTUS MUHLENBERG,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.
JOHN ADAMS,
Vice President of the United States, and President of the Senate.
Approved July the Sixteenth, 1790.
GEORGE WASHINGTON,
President of the United States.

In his comment on the law, Mr. Watson said: "I should say that some uncertainty, if not confusion, exists in the minds of some of those who have discussed the legal effect of the President's contemplated absence from the country in connection especially with the devolution of his powers and duties by reason of a failure to consider the Act of Congress of July 16, 1790. This act fixes the permanent seat of government on and after the first Monday in December, 1800, in the District of Columbia and provides expressly that all offices attached to the seat of government shall be exercised in the District of Columbia and not elsewhere.

"President Wilson, therefore, ceases to be President, except in name, when he lands on foreign shores. He can certainly exercise no official powers or functions by correspondence, wireless or cable. When the President ceases potentially to be President some one must be empowered.

"Mr. Wickersham is quoted in effect as having declared last night that President Wilson's absence might devolve upon Vice President Marshall the duties and responsibilities of President, and Vice President Marshall replies through the press that he will not voluntarily assume the office of President of the United States. 'If I should become President during Mr. Wilson's absence,' continues Mr. Marshall, 'unquestionably that would have to occur through some judicial or legislative process.'

"But this is clearly not the fact. The Peace Congress Discussions May Be In English, Setting Precedent for Diplomatic Meetings

PARIS, Nov. 27, (Associated Press.)—The question of conducting the proceedings of the Peace Congress in English is being discussed, with some prospect that this innovation will be brought about. If it is, it will be the first great international congress with English as the official language, as French has long been recognized as the medium of diplomacy.

For practical reasons, it is said, the use of the English language would be more convenient to a large number of the delegates than French, for during the sessions of the interallied conference all but two of the delegates spoke English, whereas a considerable number did not speak French and were unable to understand the proceedings when going on in French.

The printed record of the daily proceedings will be in both French and English for the convenience of all, and, in addition, several of the Governments probably will have their own publications, dealing with the developments.

COOL TO AMERICAN PLANS

Pershing Called Unpopular Because He Forced Military Action to a Crisis.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 27.—The Sun will print tomorrow an article by Frank R. Kent, its managing editor, who has just returned from Europe. In it he seeks to tell a story of the international complications abroad that would not be permitted to come by cable, and to tell some of the difficulties that confront the coming Peace Conference.

Mr. Kent writes in part:

"While the curb of the censor, tremendously tightened in both Paris and London for a month past, has prevented the slightest leakage into print on either side of the Atlantic of anything remotely suggesting a lack of harmony among the Allies, now that his gun has been wrenched away from him and the Hun stands before us hungry and helpless, it seems time to tell the truth.

"Men over there who without avail have been hurling their heads against the stone wall interposed between them and America are anxious that it should be told. Efforts to cable some of the story from Paris resulted merely in the denaturing of the dispatches and the information politely conveyed by the French consorship that so far as the Peace Conference and the international political situation were concerned American newspapermen were at entire liberty to send to America anything that might appear in the French or British newspapers, but nothing more. Any one familiar with the French and British papers knows what that meant.

"Now it is practically sure that in the end the Peace Conference will iron things out, and that a lasting peace, based on right and justice and satisfactory to ourselves and the nations associated with us, will be established. The enlightened self-interest of all of us assures this, and it is clear that the future of the world depends upon it.

"There will be no senseless imperiling of humanity's happiness through the splitting of the nations that won the war. Things will not go that far. Wisdom and right thinking will prevail, and it can be counted upon that the countries that saved civilization from the menace just ended will stand together to keep it safe in the future. But all that does not alter the fact that for weeks past, under the surface, Paris has been simply seething with international jealousies, friction, and feeling, and that between us and our noble allies at this time there is a tension and a strain that does not appear on the top, but that is very real, none the less.

Urgent Calls Sent to Wilson.

"Fair words flow in the open, but when one goes inside quite an amazing situation is revealed, and it does not argue a lack of sanity or balance to acknowledge it. It is this situation that led to an S O S call for the President from Americans in Paris weeks ago. I know of two strongly worded cables sent to him from there urging the vital necessity of his presence and laying before him certain facts.

"The truth is, and everybody in Paris knows it, that in governmental and political circles they do not love us at all over there, neither the English nor the French. Between individuals of different nations and races warm and sincere friendships are possible, and there are plenty of Englishmen and Americans and Frenchmen and Americans between whom there are the strongest personal ties. But there is something about races and nations as a whole that makes the kind of friendship that exists between individuals impossible. Paris these days most beautifully illustrates this.

"Now that the war is over, American observers of experience and with facilities for observation are strongly disposed to think they discern a disposi-

PICHON TO GREET WILSON AT BREST

French Foreign Minister Will Extend Welcome in Name of His Government.

MAIN RECEPTION IN PARIS

President Poincare, All Government Officials, and Allied Army Chiefs to Join in It.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—It seems decided that President Wilson will land at Brest, according to the Matin. He will be met there by Stephen Pichon, Foreign Minister, and Georges Leygues, Minister of Marine, who will welcome him in the name of the French Government.

They will accompany him to Paris, where President Poincaré will await him, surrounded by all the other members of the Government and the chiefs of the allied armies.

An extraordinary credit of 1,000,000 francs was voted by the Chamber of Deputies today in connection with the coming visits to France of royal personages and heads of other States.

Economic questions are coming prominently to the front in connection with the presence here of Herbert C. Hoover, the American Food Administrator, who was joined today by Edward N. Hurley, Chairman of the Shipping Board. They conferred this afternoon at Colonel House's residence on food distribution and tonnage.

France needs a considerable amount of tonnage for the rehabilitation of her merchant shipping lost during the war. There has been considerable discussion concerning the amount of tonnage likely to come from the United States, following on Captain Tardieu's statement recently that he had been assured of 100,000 tons.

SPURNS PLEA FOR GERMANY.

Archbishop of Canterbury Answers Professor Deissmann's Petition.

LONDON, Nov. 27, (British Wireless Service.)—The Archbishop of Canterbury, in replying to a message from Professor Deissmann of Berlin University, transmitted by Archbishop Soderblom of Upsala, imploring merciful treatment at the Peace Conference "in the name of Christianity," says:

"Professor Deissmann's statement as to the present situation is not one which I can accept as correct. He speaks of the European situation as though all that is needed on the part of Christian circles in the belligerent nations is 'mutual forgiveness and conciliation in order to fight in unison against the terrible consequences of the war and to serve the moral improvements of the nations and of mankind.'"

The Archbishop calls attention to the fact that on Sept. 22, 1915, he sent a letter to Professor Deissmann, pointing out these essential matters, but received no reply except a verbal acknowledgment, and continues:

"We have fought without hatred and, so far as possible, without passion, and now that victory crowns the cause for which we fought, we desire to be equally free from hatred and passion in the course we follow as victors.

"But we cannot forget the terrible crime wrought against humanity and civilization when this stupendous war with its irreparable agony and cruelty was let loose in Europe. Nor can we possibly ignore the savagery which the German high command displayed in carrying on the war. Outrages in Belgium in the early months, and, indeed, ever since; the character of the devastation wrought in France, including the inhuman deportation of innocent civilians; the submarine warfare against passenger ships, like the Lusitania, and the rejoicings which ensued in Germany; the unspeakable cruelties exercised on defenseless prisoners down to the very end, including even for the last few weeks—all these things compel the authorities of the allied powers to take security against a repetition of such a crime.

"The position would be different had there been on the part of Christian circles in Germany any public protest against these gross wrongs or any repudiation of their perpetrators.

"The peace we hope to achieve must be a peace not of hate or revenge, the fruits of which might be further and even more terrible strife. We wish by every means to avert that possibility. But righteousness must be vindicated, even though vindication involves sternness.

"There is, however, as I need hardly say, no wish on the part of the allied nations to crush or destroy the peoples of Germany. Evidence to the contrary is amply abundant."

BAKER'S STATUS EXPLAINED

War Secretary to Take the President's Place at Conference After He Returns.

NEWS NOT TO BE CENSORED

Creel Announces That Press Representatives Will Have Full Freedom of Action.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—President Wilson is understood to have determined on the personnel of the American delegation to the peace conference with the possibility of a change as to one of the delegates. Information that reaches THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent gives the composition of the delegation as follows:

WOODROW WILSON, whose place probably will be taken later by Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War.
ROBERT LANSING, Secretary of State.
COLONEL EDWARD M. HOUSE.
HENRY WHITE, formerly Ambassador to France.
DAVID F. HOUSTON, Secretary of Agriculture.

The decision of President Wilson to appoint himself a member of the peace delegation will come as a surprise even in the face of the knowledge that the President would attend the peace conference and would participate in its deliberations for the brief period that he is to remain in France.

Doubt as to whether the delegation would consist of four or five plenipotentiaries is now cleared by the statement that the President himself will be a full-fledged delegate, serving under his own commission. A new phase of the interview between President Wilson and Secretary Baker in the latter's office on Monday afternoon became apparent today in connection with the removal of doubt as to the numerical size of the delegation. It is the understanding that the President and Mr. Baker then determined that Mr. Baker should remain in Washington during the President's absence, and proceed to France to become one of the delegates in place of the President when Mr. Wilson returned to America.

Mr. White was appointed as a Republican, and his selection may cause dissatisfaction in the high circles of that party because he has not been identified with party affairs. Mr. White is a Marylander who was appointed to the diplomatic service as Secretary of the Legation in Vienna in 1883, when Chester A. Arthur was President. He remained in the diplomatic service until 1893, when, according to Who's Who, he was "recalled" by President Cleveland, who was then serving his second term as President. Mr. White had remained in the diplomatic service during Mr. Cleveland's first term. For many years Mr. White was Secretary of the Embassy and Chargé d'Affaires in London. He has wide experience as a representative of this Government on international conferences, and was the senior delegate from the United States in the international conference on Moroccan affairs at Algeciras in 1906.

President Roosevelt, who was a close friend of Mr. White, appointed him Ambassador to Italy in March, 1905. After serving in that capacity for two years he was appointed Ambassador to France, an office which he held until December, 1909, when Mr. Taft was President. Mr. White lives in Washington. He is 68 years old.

Strong Backing for McCall.

Great pressure was brought to bear on President Wilson to appoint Governor Samuel W. McCall of Massachusetts as the Republican member of the peace delegation. Some of those most active in urging Mr. McCall's selection were Massachusetts Democrats. Mr. McCall has been accused of having contributed to the defeat of Senator John W. Weeks, Republican, for re-election this month, and considerable feeling was aroused in Republican circles in Massachusetts over his alleged attitude toward the Senatorial candidate of his party. From what was said today it is gathered that President Wilson came to the conclusion that the appointment of Governor McCall would cause dissatisfaction in the Republican Party and bring accusations that the President had practically given the party a slap in the face by choosing a man who had not stood firm in the party alignment this year.

Definite information that Secretary Houston had been positively selected by the President as one of the delegates was not forthcoming today, but it was said that it was practically certain that the Secretary of Agriculture would be one of the plenipotentiaries. A vague hint that Mr. Houston's selection was surrounded by some uncertainty was coupled with the intimation that if he should not be appointed another member of the Cabinet, possibly Franklin K. Lane, Secretary of the Interior, would serve in his place.

No Censorship of Peace News.

All the arrangements for President Wilson's voyage to Europe have been completed, but announcement is withheld for the supposed reason that the President desires to be able to make known the full list of peace plenipotentiaries at the time the program of his European tour is given to the press. As has been stated in THE TIMES the President, Mrs. Wilson, and the large official party will sail on the steamship George Washington, formerly of the North German Lloyd Line. The President will leave Washington Monday or Tuesday, and will sail the following day. The troop ship Orizaba will sail from Hoboken, at noon, on Sunday, with newspaper correspondents assigned to cover the tour of the President in Europe, or the Peace Conference.

In announcing that the Orizaba had been detailed for this purpose, George Creel, Chairman of the Committee on Public Information, who will accompany the President abroad, denied that he was going to Europe to have control of official publicity in connection with the peace conference. Mr. Creel's announcement was made first at a meeting of Washington correspondents this afternoon and was subsequently included in this formal statement later:

Creel's Statement.

George Creel, Chairman of the Committee on Public Information, gave out this statement tonight:

"It has been arranged that the representatives of the press associations will travel with the President and the official party.

"With the approval of the President, the Secretary of War has set aside the transport Orizaba to carry duly accredited newspaper correspondents to France. The Orizaba will leave the Hoboken dock at 12 o'clock noon Sunday, Dec. 1. All passengers will report to General McManus at Port of Embarkation, Pier 3.

"Mr. Flourney of the Passport Division has kindly arranged to keep his office open at 1,423 New York Avenue on Thanksgiving Day, between 9 and 11 o'clock, in order to expedite passport applications. All applicants must have photographs with them.

"Through the courtesy of the State Department the matter of visé has been adjusted in the interest of expedition. All holders of passports may present themselves, if they have not already done so, at 2 Rector Street, New York City, Saturday morning, where Mr. Newcomb may be asked for.

"Mr. Creel has prepared credentials that will be issued upon personal application to all credited correspondents.

"In the matter of sailing list, no discrimination will be made or special privilege granted. All responsible newspaper men, duly accredited by responsible newspapers, are entitled to passage.

"Passports have to be visé by the various Consuls in New York. Applications that have not yet been filed should be filed at once and reported to me, likewise applications that have been made but have not yet been acted upon. The State Department is extending every aid in the interest of expedition, and press passports will be lifted out of the regular routine.

"The question of expense is one that cannot be determined as yet. This matter will be put over for the time being, as the newspapers can be billed when the amount has been ascertained.

"Baggage should reach the baggage office, Pier No. 2, by 12 o'clock noon on Saturday. If officials at this pier receive checks sufficiently in advance, they will attend to collection.

"It is requested, and hoped, that correction will be made of the very untrue report that attempt will be made to interfere in any manner with the free flow of news from America to Europe, or from Europe to America. The whole effort of the Government, from the first, has been to assure adequate and authoritative representation of the press at the Peace Conference, and to assist news distribution in every possible way.

"There is no press censorship of any kind in the United States today, and at the personal request of the President, the French and English Governments have lifted all censorship regulations bearing upon American press matter.

"The widely circulated rumor that George Creel, Chairman of the Committee on Public Information, will have control of official publicity in connection with the peace conference is absolutely without foundation. There will be no such control, and the situation itself precludes any such control. The peace conference itself will undoubtedly decide upon the manner of announcing its deliberations and decisions, and the right of correspondence to free movement and interview is, of course, one that cannot be abridged in any degree.

"The Postmaster General is making a study of the cables, with a view to aiding the press in every possible way, and will shortly make his own statement.

"Mr. Creel, who has made all arrangements for the discontinuance of the domestic work of the Committee on Public Information, is proceeding to Europe to wind up the work of the foreign section. He has no connection whatsoever with the Peace Commission.

"The representatives of the Committee on Public Information who sailed last week did not, in any manner, constitute an 'official peace conference press mission.' They were stenographers, accountants, film men, and division heads, not one of whom will have connection with the peace conference or with the preparation of the conference's press matter. Their sole duties will be the completion of the committee's foreign work and the settlement of contracts and business details incident to the absolute cessation of activity."

Cobb's Status Explained.

In connection with the statement issued by Mr. Creel it was positively asserted in an official quarter tonight that he publicity agent would be attached in any official capacity to the American peace delegation. This assertion was coupled with the denial of reports that Frank I. Cobb, chief editorial writer of The New York World, who is now at Versailles, will be officially connected with the peace mission.

It was explained that Mr. Cobb had gone to Europe at the solicitation of Colonel E. M. House, who is to be a member of the American peace mission, and is now representing President Wilson in the inter-allied conference, and that his status was a purely personal one with Colonel House.

PRESIDENT'S AUTO SHIPPED.

Thirteen Motor Cars Placed on the Mongolia for the Party.

Thirteen automobiles were loaded on board the American transport Mongolia at Hoboken yesterday for the use of the Presidential party in France. The case containing President Wilson's automobile was eighteen feet long and was stowed down No. 2 hold. The Mongolia is to sail at 2 P. M. today, and will go to Brest to land the automobiles and then proceed on her regular voyage to Bordeaux.

The Mongolia is a fifteen-knot ship and should arrive at Brest on Sunday, Dec. 8, in time to land the automobiles and have them all unpacked and all ready for President Wilson and his official party, which is due to arrive there on Thursday, Dec. 12. The Navy Department will appoint a new Captain to the George Washington for the voyage, but his name has not yet been disclosed. The work of [illegible] for the voyage is being [illegible] rapidly.

SEAT OF GOVERNMENT FIXED

Constitution (Article II., Sec. 1) is mandatory, and the Vice President, willy-nilly, becomes President if not in name, yet in power, during the absence from the country of the elected Chief Magistrate. The language of the Constitution, as has been pointed out, is that in case of inability of the President to discharge the duties and powers of the said office 'the same shall devolve upon the Vice President.' Inasmuch as the President appears to be expressly disqualified by law from the exercise of the powers of his office outside of the District of Columbia, absence from the seat of government, though voluntary, would clearly constitute 'inability' under the Constitution.

"That Vice President Marshall, present in Washington during the contemplated absence of the President, would be empowered to exercise all the functions pertaining to the office of President admits of no question. Vice President Marshall will become therefore Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy and of the Militia. He will have power to grant reprieves and pardons for Federal offenses in all cases except impeachment. By and with the advice and consent of the Senate, Vice President Marshall could conclude a treaty of peace upon terms negotiated by the absent Mr. Wilson, who by absenting himself, as we have seen, ceases to become President except in name.

"President Marshall, during the absence of Mr. Wilson from the country, may appoint, with the advice and consent of the Senate, Ambassadors, other public Ministers and Consuls, Judges of the Supreme Court, and all other officers of the United States whose appointments are not otherwise provided for. President Marshall might indeed, with the Senate's consent, form an entirely new Cabinet if such were his desire. There would not be the slightest question of his power and authority to veto a bill and no veto in writing from Mr. Wilson in France could have the slightest force or effect, Mr. Wickersham to the contrary notwithstanding.

"If Vice President Marshall persists in his plan to embark upon a six weeks' speaking tour in the West, a still more interesting situation will arise. Under the act of Congress providing Presidential succession in case of removal, death, resignation or inability of both President and Vice President, the Secretary of State is empowered to act as President. But Secretary Lansing leaves the country with President Wilson. Next in order of succession is the Secretary of the Treasury, but Mr. McAdoo's resignation goes shortly into effect. Next in order of succession is the Secretary of War. Secretary Baker may, therefore, soon be Acting President, with all the powers and duties of President Wilson, including, of course, the extraordinary broad war powers conferred upon President Wilson by Congressional legislation, since the entry of the United States in the war, not yet brought to a close. For in law and in fact, a state of war still exists between the United States and Germany, this status being in no wise affected by a mere temporary cessation of hostilities.

"Unquestionably should Vice President Marshall, Secretary Baker, or some one else in the line of Presidential succession so desire, he might with his family, move into the White House during the President's absence abroad. But such Acting President would not receive the President's salary, nor will Mr. Wilson's sojourn in Europe in the exercise of extra-Presidential and extra-territorial functions, affect his official pay, for the Constitution declares that 'the compensation of the President shall neither be "encreased (sic) nor diminished" during his official term."

QUESTION NEVER RAISED BEFORE IN WASHINGTON

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—The point which Archibald R. Watson makes to the effect that the Congressional act of July 16, 1790, which provides that all offices attached to the seat of Government shall be exercised in the District of Columbia and not elsewhere, would render it impossible for the President to exercise the function of his office outside of the District of Columbia, has, so far as could be ascertained tonight, never before been raised. As understood here, the argument of Mr. Watson is that this old provision of the law which was carried over into the revised statutes of the United States, would require Vice President Marshall to act in the absence of the President. The text of the provision of law to which Mr. Watson alludes is found in Section 1796 of the revised statutes of the United States, and reads as follows:

"All offices attached to the seat of Government shall be exercised in the District of Columbia, and not elsewhere, except as otherwise expressly provided for by law."

This section of the law was enacted even before the seat of Government was established at Washington. It was enacted July 16, 1790, and the Government was not moved to Washington until 1800. If Mr. Watson's construction of this provision of the law is correct, then many Presidents, including all the Presidents of our own generation, have exercised their offices on occasion contrary to this section of the law. The construction, it is contended here, which is thus sought to be put upon this provision of the law would render it impossible for the President to exercise any function of his office outside of the seventy square miles which constitute the District of Columbia, the permanent seat of Government of the United States.

All the Presidents of our own generation have exercised the functions of their offices outside of the District of Columbia. Colonel Roosevelt, when President, moved the executive offices of the White House to Oyster Bay during the Summer months of his vacation period. Judge Taft, when President, moved the Summer offices of the White House to Beverly, Mass., where he utilized a separate building as the executive offices, which had a telegraphic connection with Washington, and lived in a separate building on the seashore some little distance from these offices. President Wilson had Summer executive offices at Cornish, N. H.

Ex-President Cleveland frequently exercised the functions of his office outside of the District of Columbia, and all Presidents since Cleveland's day have performed the duties of their office on Government yachts or revenue cutters. President Taft visited Panama while occupying his high office, and performed functions of his office there.

If the meaning of the act of July 16, 1790, is that Presidents may not exercise the functions of their office except in the District of Columbia, except as otherwise expressly provided by law, and departure of the President is to be construed as "inability to discharge the powers and duties of his office," within the meaning of the language of the Constitution, then every time the President is absent from Washington, and there are Presidential functions to be performed, they must remain unperformed unless performed by the Vice President.

The very fact that the action of successive Presidents in performing the functions of their offices outside of the District of Columbia has not been challenged by Congress, where there have been many great Constitutional officers standing as watchdogs over the Constitution and Presidential prerogatives during the last half century, would seem to indicate that the law of July 16, 1790, does not mean that the President cannot, at times, leave the District of Columbia, and while so absent, function as President.

Has a Right to Follow the Army.

The Constitution makes the President Commander in Chief of the army and navy of the United States, and as such it has been never denied in Washington that he might, should he so elect, go into the field in command of the armies of the United States, even abroad. To exercise this function to the extent of actually taking command of the armies the President would have to leave the seat of Government, there is nothing in the Constitution which expressly provides that some one else may act when the President is in the field unless his being "in the field" is construed as "inability" to act.

Whether the construction that Mr. Watson places on Section 1790 of the old law of 1790 is correct or incorrect, the right of the President to exercise the functions of his office temporarily outside of the District of Columbia, has, so far as can be ascertained tonight, and within the memory of veterans here, never been challenged on the ground of illegality.

There is no constitutional provision against the President leaving the District of Columbia. If the law of 1790 is an obstacle, it is merely the obstacle of a law more than a century old, which may be repealed by Congress next week should it elect to do so, in which event the law would cease to exist.

Senators and Representatives do not deny the constitutional right of the President to go to France. So far as could be ascertained through interviews with legislators today, they do not take the view that the President's absence per se would constitute "inability" to act or require the Vice President to act.

May Sign Bills Abroad.

Members of Congress who have gone over the powers and duties of the President as enumerated by the President say they fail to find any of these duties and powers that he cannot exercise during a temporary absence abroad. Something has been said about the signing of bills and resolutions passed by Congress.

It has been asserted in a rather offhand way by some that the President must sign bills within ten days and could not do this while abroad. The framers of the Constitution so wrote the Constitution that the President can sign bills within the constitutional ten-day period, or veto them, while abroad as well as at home. The matter of signing and vetoing bills is not carried in Article 2 of the Constitution, where the President's powers and duties are enumerated in Article 1, which deals with the powers and duties of Congress.

Section 7 of Article 1 of the Constitution provides:

"Every bill which shall have passed the House of Representatives and the Senate, shall, before it become a law, be presented to the President of the United States; if he approve he shall sign it, but if not, he shall return it, with his Objections, to that House in which it shall have originated, who shall enter the Objections at Large on their Journal, and proceed to reconsider it."

Further on, this same section reads: "If any bill shall not be returned by the President within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law, in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress by their adjournment prevent its return, in which case it shall not be a law."

It has been held in the parliamentary rulings of the House and Senate that the President, when approving bills, must "sign"—that is, attach his signature personally. Under this practice the President cannot delegate any person to sign bills for him. He must do the signing himself. But the Constitution provides in the section just quoted that before a bill can become a law it (the bill) shall be presented to the President of the United States, and if any bill shall not be returned by the President within ten days (Sundays excluded) after it shall have been presented to him the bill shall become a law. The ten days within which the President has the right to decide whether he cares to sign or veto a bill does not begin to run until after the bill has been "presented to him."

If the bills, when passed, are sent to France to be presented to him, the ten days' period would not begin to run until after a bill had been presented to him. If the President fails to return a bill within ten days after it has been presented to him it becomes a law just as if he had signed it. The worst that could happen in the matter of legislation in the circumstances would be for a bill, passed by both branches of Congress to become a law without the President's signature, should he not return it within ten days after it had been presented to him.

DECISION BY A COURT DOUBTFUL, SAYS TAFT

Might Dismiss Proceedings Because of Political Character—Views of Other Lawyers.

Here are the opinions of noted lawyers of this city on the views expressed by ex-Attorney General Wickersham on the President's trip and upon the statement by Vice President Marshall as to his duty to serve in President Wilson's absence:

Henry W. Taft: "I was especially interested in that part of the Vice President's statement in which he said he would assume the office of President if directed to do so by a court in which mandamus proceedings to compel him to assume the office had been brought. It must be remembered that our courts always examine very carefully into the very nature of a case in which the functions of the executive branch of the Government are involved. Therefore, whether a court of competent jurisdiction would sustain mandamus proceedings to seat the Vice President in the Presidential chair would depend entirely upon the character of the proceedings. The court might dismiss the proceedings as soon as a hearing was had on the ground that, where a political question was involved, it would not assume jurisdiction. The courts have so held in many cases."

Samuel Untermyer: "Mr. Wickersham's argument ignores the fact that, by the same Constitution which he quotes, the President is Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy of the United States; that, as President, it is his duty to negotiate treaties and to conduct our foreign relations; that no treaty of peace has been signed, and that his presence abroad, so far from evidencing his inability to discharge the powers and duties of his office, is in the exercise of what appears, at the moment, to be his most important constitutional functions.

"Surely the Constitution did not contemplate that he should be in two places at the same time, nor that, if his duty required him to be in one place outside of Washington, there should be two men acting as President at the same time, one in Washington and one outside of it. Again, if there be any ambiguity in the meaning of the word 'inability,' as it appears in the section of the Constitution quoted by Mr. Wickersham, which there is not, it is removed by the last clause in the same section, where it is defined as 'disability,' i.e. 'Such officer (the Vice President) shall act accordingly until the disability is removed or a new President is elected.'

"The disability, which automatically devolves on the Vice President all the great powers of the President is, of course, not a disability based upon the mere absence of the President from the city of Washington, for there is nothing in the Constitution requiring him to remain there or to interfere with his leaving the country. It is a disability accompanied by an inability to discharge any of the duties of his office. It is plainly a mental or physical disability that might well exist coincidentally with the presence of the President in Washington. The argument necessarily leads to the reductio ad absurdum that, upon the mere absence of the President at any time from the city of Washington his powers and his duties forthwith devolve upon the Vice President. Upon that construction his absence on a visit to California, Alaska, Porto Rico, Hawaii or any other part of his own country in the performance of his duty would be equally fatal."

Louis Marshall—The argument of Mr. Wickersham, from which he seeks to deduce the conclusion that in the event that the President should go to Europe it becomes incumbent upon the Vice President to perform the Presidential functions until the President's return, is ingenious but not convincing. I do not agree with the conclusions reached. Whether such absence would be advisable is an entirely different proposition. The very fact that the framers of the Constitution failed to refer to absence from the country as operating as a temporary devolution of the title of the office of President upon the Vice President, is significant.

"As affecting the contention of Mr. Wickersham, I call attention to the provision of Section 2, of Article II. of the Constitution by which the President is made the Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy of the United States. As such Commander in Chief it would have been within his discretion to have accompanied our armies abroad and to have exercised in the field the function of Commander in Chief, either in France, Italy, or Germany, or on the high seas, thus exercising the supreme Presidential function in time of war. Is it conceivable that while he is thus performing the duties of his office, he can at the same time be declared to be unable or disabled from discharging its powers and duties to the extent that they at once become vested in the Vice President, and that while the President is actually discharging the duties of Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy, he is, nevertheless, debarred from doing so because the duties and powers of Commander in Chief have been imposed on the Vice President, solely because the President, elected by the people for thatp urpose, is, in the exercise of his judgment, performing his most important official function on the sea, or overseas?

Francis Lynde Stetson:

"Any utterance of Mr. Wickersham deserves the most serious consideration. In his address before the Council on Foreign Relations he raised a most important question and made most interesting comment thereon. I would not like to enter into any discussion of the constitutional questions raised without giving them much more careful consideration than I have been able to do, or will be able to do at this time. It seems to me, however, that the President is in a much better position than anybody else to determine whether he ought to go abroad or not. Apparently, he has decided that it is more important for him to go than to stay, and with that decision I am willing to abide."

In a work entitled "Our Chief Magistrate and His Powers," by ex-President William H. Taft, which is a collection of lectures which he delivered at Columbia University in 1915, the author, on page 50, says:

"There is an impression that the President cannot leave the country, and that the law forbids. This is not true. The only law which bears on the subject at all is the constitutional provision that the Vice President shall take his place when the President is disabled from performing his duties. Now if he is out of the country at a point where he cannot discharge the necessary functions that are imposed upon him, such disability may arise, but the communication by telegraph, wireless, and by telephone are now so good that it would be difficult for a President to go anywhere out of the country and not be able to keep his subordinates in constant information as to his whereabouts and his wishes."

WICKERSHAM'S VIEWS DOUBTED IN CONGRESS

Little Probability of Vice President's Being Called Upon to Act in Wilson's Place.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Members of Congress interviewed today by THE NEW YORK TIMES were almost unanimous in expressing disagreement with the view of George W. Wickersham, former Attorney General, in his New York speech, that for President Wilson to absent himself from the country might make it necessary for Vice President Marshall to assume the Presidency. The general opinion was that no occasion would arise that would develop such an emergency.

Republican Senators and Representatives were of one mind in the viewpoint that the President's absence at the Peace Conference could not be construed as causing a disability to discharge the functions of his office under the Constitution. They agreed, furthermore, that the President's decision to leave the country was ill-advised and that his presence here was imperative.

But as to the purely legal phase of the situation, the Republican Senators all agreed that no complication was likely to come that would necessitate putting the Vice President in the White House during the President's trip abroad. Democratic Senators, for the most part, coincided with the view, although one or two expressed the opinion that the contingency might arise that would demand the Vice President taking up the reins of government.

Democratic Senators, because of the delicacy of the situation, as they expressed it, declined to allow their names to be used in interviews. They felt that the President, having made his decision, must be supported, at least theoretically, by members of his own party. Later on, however, one or more of these Democratic Senators will have something to say on the floor of the Senate respecting the President's trip.

That Congress will find the necessity to initiate any action to "set the Vice President in motion," as Mr. Wickersham put it, is quite unlikely. Republican and Democratic members said that as a matter of course in the President, if nothing else, no such move would be attempted. If a serious emergency develops that might require the Vice President to assume the Presidency, some Senators said, Congress might pass a resolution urging such a step upon the Vice President, but that is as far as Congress could go. No right at law exists with Congress, those interviewed said, to force the Vice President to take over the duties of President.

So far as a mandamus to compel the Vice President to assume the Presidency is concerned, no member of Congress took it seriously.

The opinion was that, even if the exigencies of impending legislation demanded the presence of Mr. Wilson at the White House at this time, he would be in touch with Washington by cable, so that if any grave crisis developed he might return at once.

Senator Cummins of Iowa, Republican, member of the Judiciary Committee, said:

"Although I gravely doubt the wisdom or propriety of the President's visit to Europe, still he has the constitutional right to go to another country to exercise his constitutional function of making treaties, provided his absence from his own country is of reasonable duration. The plan now proposed for a visit to Europe for that purpose with the length of absence suggested falls within his constitutional privilege."

Senator Boran of Idaho, Republican, said:

"I hesitate to disagree with so concededly an able lawyer as Mr. Wickersham, but, confining myself to the purely legal propositions that he raised, I can not follow him. What ever inconveniences may arise by reason of the absence of the President, they don't constitute an inability to discharge the duties of office for which the Constitution provides.

Senator Smoot of Utah, Republican:

"I am unable to agree with Mr. Wickersham. So far as a mandamus or a joint resolution is concerned, neither one has been considered, and I know the Republicans will not consider any such steps. No attempt will be made by the Republicans in Congress to prevent the President going away. For him to go will do him more harm than good."

PRIZES VICE PRESIDENCY.

"Best Job I Ever Had," Says Marshall; "No Responsibilities."

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 27.—"I've got the best job I ever had now; no responsibilities," said Vice President Thomas R. Marshall at the Copley Plaza today. It was his way of saying he wasn't anxious to have the burdens of the Presidency thrust upon him.

"Now, with the Vice Presidency," he explained, "there is nothing to worry about. If things go wrong, nobody can blame you for it. You have no policies to shape, and precedent says you shan't say anything. All I have to do is to vote, and I am not responsible to any one."

He expressed the hope that the Susan B. Anthony equal suffrage amendment would be defeat the next time it appeared in Congress.

"People should be allowed to vote," he said, "if they write and speak English in their business and social relations. Voting is more a matter of fitness than it is of sex. If we are going to straighten out this suffrage business why not make it a general straightening out?"

He hoped the readjustment period would not "be full of laws."

"Laws," he said, "are but legal standards of conduct. Law gives each man a chance to say to his conscience, 'It is legal.' Laws are irritants, more than settlements."

Mrs. Marshall, who is a well-known "anti," said women should go out of industry and return to their homes.

"That is, those who have a home should," she qualified. "Some haven't a home, you know. Others have homes that are worse than none. But I believe in women going back to the home and after that to other places."

SAYS AIMS CLASH AMONG THE ALLIES

tion upon the part of the other powers to set the stage against us. At the peace conference some of our views and aims are going to clash and clash sharply with some of theirs. Our view of what we did over there is going to be a little different from theirs. Their inclination to 'pick the bones' of Germany does not exactly fit in with our feeling, and there will be divergence—a very marked divergence—upon the interpretation of those famous phrases, 'the freedom of the seas' and 'sea power.'

"Some disposition to resent anything like American domination or the speaking of America in a strong voice at the peace table is already manifesting itself in an undercurrent of criticism of our army staff, and a tendency to minimize somewhat our effort in the war.

"This is true of the politicians. It is not true of the people. So far as the latter are concerned, they will be wholly satisfied, both in England and France, if the peace conference gives them complete insurance against war—makes war of any kind at any time between any peoples utterly impossible. This is what they want and this is all they want, and their feeling toward us is entirely sincere and friendly.

Divergent Aims Asserted.

"Not so the French and English politician, who smarts under the obvious fact that, since America sat into this war game, America has held all the big cards. Wilson has done all the dealing and they have been following his lead. Now the great danger has passed, the European statesmen chafe under this situation, and some of those who have been big figures during the war see themselves sinking into political obscurity unless as an outcome of the peace conference they can say 'We got this for France,' or 'We got this for England,' or 'We got this for Italy.'

"The strength of our position is that neither Wilson nor House, nor Bliss, nor Pershing, nor any other American desires to say 'We got this for America.' America wants nothing for herself. That, coupled with the fact that England owes us $5,000,000,000 and France owes us nearly $3,000,000,000, and that we still hold the purse-strings for both nations, makes it likely that we will continue to deal the cards, notwithstanding the resentment in certain quarters.

"Some days ago, in commenting upon the report that President Wilson was coming over to attend the peace conference, Mr. A. J. Balfour said to a friend: 'It is going to be a rough-and-tumble affair, this peace conference.' That remark reflects the real conviction underneath the surface harmony.

"In what follows I am giving the talk of the inner American circle in Paris as reflected not only by the ablest American correspondents but by some of the very highest and most important diplomatic, military, and naval Americans there. It will be a somewhat disconnected story, but the facts have been checked up from so many sources that they can be relied upon. Every American there knows them—and President Wilson knows them.

Says Pershing Was in Clash.

"In the first place, General Pershing is anything but popular over there with the French and British high commands. The distaste for him dates back to the early spring of 1918, when, after having first agreed to permit the American forces to be brigaded with the French and British in platoons, he got cold feet on that proposition and in a memorable conference with Foch and Haig stood up and in effect said that the American Army was at their disposal to do with what they wanted, but it would have to be used as an army, and there would be no more splitting of it up.

"The French were furious—not only furious at what Pershing said, but at the way he said it, which was in the most outspoken American language imaginable and not, it is said, entirely free from profanity. Had he been a Frenchman, his friends say, he would probably have had to fight a duel with Foch. But he had his way, and subsequent events proved him right.

"All the world knows now that it was two regiments of American marines which stopped the Hun at Château-Thierry, when he was on the road to Paris—and the road was wide open, too, with the French broken and on the run and the British weakened and unable to hold. And it was two American divisions that started him on his way back.

"That was the turning point of the war. That was where the boche got his first check; that was where the psychology of the situation went against him, and he never got it back; that was where the war was won. At the time both French and English were tremendously enthusiastic over what the Americans had done. It rallied the Allies' forces, gave them a chance to catch their breath, saved Paris, and stopped the murderer in his stride.

Urged Allied Offensive.

A little later—in June, to be exact—my information is "that Pershing took steps that forced the allied offensive that began July 18 and never ended until the capitulation of Germany, just in time to save her army in the field. At that time Pershing, his friends say, went to Foch and bluntly said he thought it bad policy to 'stick around waiting for the boche' and that the time had come to jump in and attack.

"'But,' he was told, 'we haven't got the troops.'

"'What's the matter with the Americans?' Pershing asked.

"'They are not trained,' was the reply.

"'Try them and see,' said Pershing. 'They will go anywhere you send them and I will bet my life on it.'

"That is the way the story is told in Paris. Whether exactly those words were used or not, it is certain that Pershing took the initiative in urging the offensive upon Foch, that he supplied the troops that gave Foch his mobile reserve and enabled him to strike his blow, and that those troops 'delivered the goods.'

"In the last two months of the war the Americans were unquestionably given the hardest nut to crack in the Argonne section, and they cracked it. Here, in the most frightful fighting country, at the one spot absolutely vital to the boche, the key to his whole position, the place where he had to hold at all hazards, our boys went up against the real thing.

"Nearly half of the whole German strength was massed there against them, and the boche so weakened his line along the rest of the front that the French and British made spectacular advances day after day while the Americans gained ground foot by foot and lost lives by the thousands.

Help at a Critical Time.

"Now that it is over, those who know the facts know that the answer to the question of what caused the marvelous difference between March and October is 'America.' They know that when we came in the French and the British, too, were 'all in' and that candid acknowledgement of these facts does not in any way detract from the terrible sacrifices and heroic fighting of the British and French in the three years before we came in. Nor does it impair recognition that the British fleet saved us as well as the rest of the world.

"The point is that in the end we turned the trick with our armies on the battlefields and that in the field of diplomacy it was the American President who threw the monkey wrench into the German internal machine, thereby proving as effective in bringing about the collapse of the Central European edifice as the military forces.

"It is not Yankee brag or bluster to state these things. They are cold facts, and Americans of standing in Paris think they clearly entitle America to speak with a strong voice at the conference. And they distinctly resent the intimation that our status does not give us that right, because 'we did not come in until a year and a half ago,' or because 'while our soldiers are perhaps the finest material in the world, our staff is inexperienced and our men not well led,' or because 'we are disposed to be more idealistic than practical in our prattle about a League of Nations,' or because 'our supply service fell down,' which is not true, or for any other reason.

"So far as we are concerned, they say, all our cards are on the table. We have nothing to 'put over.' We are asking nothing for ourselves. We want an enduring peace based on justice, and we are not playing a game either for ourselves or for any one else.

"Great Britain wants a just peace all right, but she wants Great Britain to be the policeman with the club to enforce this peace, and she is preparing to cling to her position as the dominant sea power of the world as she clings to life. There are some sound and excellent reasons for her position in this respect, but the American view is that her resistance of any suggestion of fleet disarmament will force us into the big naval game; that, once having abandoned our attitude of aloofness and played a part in world politics, we cannot afford to permit any nation in the future to hold stronger weapons than we hold.

"There are Americans who do not share this view, and think it is absolutely all right that the mastery of the seas should be in British hands, contending that Britain will never use that weapon against us nor for any purpose save her own protection, and that dominance as a sea power is essential to her very existence, and that she is thoroughly justified in holding to it. Others strongly disagree.

Fear Great Naval Aims Here.

"What these men foresee is that if England is to continue the maintenance of a great fleet it will force us into the maintenance of a great fleet. It means that America will embark upon a great naval program; that if England builds six cruisers we will build twelve; that if she builds twenty destroyers we will build forty; that if she builds two battleships we will build four.

"That sort of thing, it is argued, is not the way to peace. It is the way that logically, in the long run, leads to the other thing. It is not the American idea and how it, with its crushing burden of taxes, is to be avoided will be one of the big questions at the Peace Conference.

Gradual disarmament with the establishment of an international police force is the plan which, in some form or other, most thoughtful Americans in Paris hope to see adopted. England is for this all right, but she wants to be the international policeman of the seas. The question is can we afford to let her be? There is a strong argument on both sides and political Paris is deeply stirred.

"A little concerned already about the merchant marine now building in the United States, the suggestion that the American nation may be forced to compete with Great Britain in the size of its navy certainly 'gets the wind up' with the average Englishman. He does not like that idea at all. He knows perfectly well that his country is in no condition financially to stand the kind of competition the United States would give if forced.

French Territorial Hopes.

"As to the French, there is believed to be a disposition on their part to reach out for more territory than is exactly just. There is talk of extending France to the Rhine and to the Alps—God's boundary lines, as they call them in Paris, and to look to the acquisition of certain German colonial possessions. In other words, the French statesmen are disposed to feel that the situation rather justifies the 'picking of the bones' of the enemy, and it is said that Clemenceau, ferocious, forceful, and a fighter with a tremendous personality, despite his great age, is sympathetic with the idea of gaining some material advantage for France beyond the items of 'indemnity and restoration.'

"Likewise the French politician is not averse to England maintaining her sea dominance provided France is permitted to maintain her military machine of several million men. We are expected to sit still, look pleasant and agree to this program like a good little nation. Some of our representatives in Paris say emphatically they will be damned if we do.

"Nations are funny enough, and the international complications appear to be endless. Here are some of the sidelights as reflected by the politicians:

"Actually there is no love lost between England and France. Forced together as allies, they never have understood and never will understand each other.

"An English General said to me:

"'Our allies, the French, are fine fellows and gallant fighters, and we have not a word to say against them, but they have their own methods. For instance, if we say we are going to attack at half past 5 o'clock, we attack at that hour exactly, but if the French say they will attack at half past 5 they are just as apt to make it twenty minutes past 7 as not.

"On the other hand, the French sneer at the British staff and speak of the useless sacrifice of men because the British high officers were so slow to stop doing things a certain way, just because that was the way the British had always done them.

"You hear, too, in Paris, what will be news in America, of the serious mutiny in the French Army in 1917, and of the difficulty in suppressing it. In this direction, too, the advent of America into the war, seemed to have saved the situation.

"Neither England nor France has any use for Italy. They tell you that the Italian troops were a bitter disappointment, that they fight all right when things are going their way, but they cannot be depended upon when they are not, and have to be stiffened by support whenever a real fight is due; and that they were eternally demanding men and money, and refusing to 'carry on' unless they got them.

Expect Wilson to Dominate.

"There is a tremendous international political game about to be played in Paris and the players will be the biggest and brainiest men in the world, and the stakes will be tremendous. The present turmoil in Paris is but preliminary to the opening of the game. If President Wilson comes personally, the prediction is made that America's voice will dominate the situation, not merely because of the power of our position and the tendency of all weaker nations to look to us as their champion, but because of the remarkable power in France of Mr. Wilson himself.

"Well-posted Frenchmen say that in France Wilson has more influence with the Socialist Party than any other man, and that it is the support he has given to the Clemenceau Government that has kept it in power. It is also true that there are great many persons in England and Scotland with whom the words of the President have great weight. He is unquestionably the spokesman of an element in all of these countries, and this fact will not lessen the potency of his voice at the peace table."

He took precautions to insure his wife's financial independence

A business man of this city wished to make absolutely certain that his wife would have a steady income during her entire life, no matter what his own circumstances might be.

After consulting our officers he made a "Voluntary trust," the income from which would maintain his wife comfortably. The trust is "irrevocable"—that is, neither the man himself nor his wife can use the principal nor alter the terms of the trust. He can, however, add to the principal whenever he wishes.

Our Trust Department officers will answer any questions about the management of your property. Complete trust and banking service is rendered at both the Uptown and Downtown Offices.

GERMAN REDS FEAR WILSON'S DISFAVOR

Ebert and Haase Tell Them That Chaotic Conditions Endanger the Peace Treaty.

WARNED BY BEATTY STAND

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 20, (via The Hague.)—All the organs of the regular Socialist Party and all bourgeois papers give great prominence to an official telegram from England, according to which Admiral Beatty refused to receive members of the Soldiers' Council who accompanied the German naval officers intrusted with the delivery at Rosyth of certain units of the German Navy.

The German party arrived aboard the warship Königsberg, and the officers were requested to come aboard the English flagship Queen Elizabeth. When Admiral Guere, who headed the German delegation, begged Admiral Beatty also to receive three members of the Soldiers' Council representing the German Navy, the Republic of Oldenburg and the Republic of East Frisia, the English Admiral absolutely refused to enter into any negotiations with the members of the Council, because he was not authorized to deal with any Government or its representatives not recognized by his own Government.

This clean statement, leaving no doubt about the intentions of Germany's adversaries, came just at the right time and is bound to have a tremendous effect on the political developments of the immediate future.

Only last night, at a meeting of the Central Soldiers' and Workers' Council in the Circus Busch, Richard Müller, Chief Executive of the Council, characterized the assertion that President Wilson would only conclude peace with a stable democratic Government in which all classes were represented as an invention of the reactionary press. Nevertheless, this warning was repeated again and again during the Circus Busch meeting by the cool-headed People's Commissioner Haase and other members of the Soldiers' and Workers' Council. Chancellor Ebert contented himself with merely seconding Haase.

Threat to Seize Industries.

On the whole, the deliberations at the meeting were of a chaotic rather than parliamentary character, and no earnest effort was made to find out whether the advocates of a national convention or its opponents were in the majority. The principal speaker, Müller, ventured such anarchistic remarks as these:

"The Executive Committee of the Soldiers' and Workers' Council will make use of its power to the fullest extent. If the employers refuse to obey us, we shall simply dispossess them. We don't want a democratic republic. We want a Socialistic, nay, a proletarian republic! Enough has been said. The Executive Committee of the Soldiers' and Workers' Council must now proclaim a proletarian republic on a Socialistic basis."

Haase, though an Independent Socialist, has become much sobered in his views since he became a member of the Government. He tried at length to demonstrate the absolute necessity of an early national convention; and no doubt there were many present who quite agreed with him. Müller, Liebknecht, and the other radical leaders present must have felt this way also, because their prepared resolution practically making the Executive Committee of the Soldiers' and Workers' Council the highest authority in the State, was not submitted to a vote of the meeting, but was referred to a Committee of Ten for consideration.

The Circus Busch meeting left things pretty much in the same state of confusion as before. It is to be hoped, however, that Admiral Beatty's timely words will bring the hot-headed persons who are trying to seize the supreme power in Germany to their senses.

One of yesterday's orators spoke of the sailors who come down from naval ports as a danger to the proletarian republic, because they still formed regular military bodies, one of which is now stationed in Berlin, and is 2,000 to 3,000 strong. This orator had to admit, however, that the sailors were in supreme power in various seacoast towns, for instance, in Bremen and Hamburg, and that those in Bremen had openly come out against the national convention.

Jealousy Between Factions.

There seems to be much jealousy between the field-gray members of the Soldiers' and Workers' Council and the sailors, the latter no doubt being less radical. It has been asked what business these sailors have in Berlin, where the Soldiers' and Workers' Council presumes to be able to enforce law and order. To this the sailors reply that it was they who brought the revolution from the seacoast to the capital.

Their continued presence in Berlin they explain as being in the interest of the Government, meaning the People's Commissioners, Ebert and his associates. They declare, however, that they will never permit reactionary aggression by the former ruling classes or capitalists against the people.

It seems that these sailors remaining in Berlin have formed a regular naval division under Commandant Tost, with headquarters at the former royal stables, opposite the castle. These men seem sensible, and probably constitute a not unimportant element for the future preservation of order. Admiral Beatty's clear declaration will probably have the effect of cementing their relations with the Government.

The bourgeois parties, too, seem to be awaking from their lethargy and have come to the aid of the People's Commissioners, whom they look upon as the only power able to save Germany from appalling chaos. Much enthusiasm and energy are displayed in soliciting members for the newly founded "Grand Democratic Party." Yesterday a Bürgerrat or Bourgeois Council was founded which places itself at the service of the Government on condition of an early convention.

Great Funeral Demonstration.

The principal event in Berlin today is one of penance. A regular legal holiday in Prussia was decreed for the public funeral of nine victims of the revolution out of the total of fifteen.

From early morning hundreds of thousands of mourners, carrying red flags and wreaths, streamed to the start of the procession on the Tempelhofer Field, where a black and red platform for the coffins was erected, from which prominent speakers delivered impressive memorial addresses.

Crowds such as had never before been recorded in Berlin followed the monster funeral procession via Unter den Linden to Friederichshaven, where the dead were interred in two long graves in the cemetery of those who gave their lives for freedom in the March revolution of 1848 and whose aims have now been successfully accomplished by the irrepressible rising of the German nation after seventy years. Along the route was a huge throng of silent spectators. The electric tramway and vehicular traffic was suspended or diverted to side streets.

BERLIN RESENTS LIGHT ON WAR CONSPIRACY

Protests Against Bavarian Disclosure of Plans That Brought on the World Conflict.

BERLIN, Nov. 27, (via Copenhagen.)—The German Foreign Ministry, protesting against the publication by the Bavarian Government of the documents dealing with pre-war events, says the Bavarian representative at Berne, on the suggestion of Premier Clemenceau of France, recommended the publication of the papers on the ground that this confession of Germany's guilt would make the entente nations more ready for peace.

NO PROOF OF DEATH OF CZAR AND FAMILY

ing of empty vodka bottles in the house immediately after they left.

During this imprisonment the people were watching the house. On the morning of July 17 every one departed. The investigation showed that the house was in the worst possible condition. In one room in the basement were bullet holes in the wall about thirty inches from the floor. There were bullet holes also in the floor and on it some blood stains. This is the only evidence there is of executions.

Considering the fact that at the time there were besides seven in the Czar's family, one physician, one valet, and one maid, ten persons must have been executed, or some of them or all escaped. One of the two physicians was discharged beforehand.

Early in July the Bolsheviki obtained information which led them to fear that an effort would be made to liberate the Czar. The house across the street, from which an Ekaterinburg citizen had been secretly watching the Czar walk in the gaden, was occupied by Bolshevist troops with machine guns. After this man left no one saw the Czar.

After the Bolsheviki were driven from the city by the Czechs a judicial commission was appointed. Pieces in the wall and floor were sawed out and taken to the courtroom sealed. If the family were executed in this house they must have been seated on chairs, but no chairs were found. The bodies have never been found, and no traces of them have ever been discovered. While it is possible that the Bolsheviki took every evidence with them, this does not seem logical considering the hopes of the Bolsheviki who were guarding the Czar.

On July 20 an Ekaterinburg citizen walked into the station master's room at Ekaterinburg station. He says that the Czar and his family, whom he had seenbefore, were hidden in an inner room. While he is the only one in Ekaterinburg today who claims to have seen the Czar after the reported execution, he is considered a reliable man.

Added to all the evidence here must be German influence, which at the time was very great. This is believed to have been exerted in the Czars' behalf. After my investigation I am of the opinion of most people here that there is not sufficient evidence to prove that the family were executed. There is circumstantial evidence that they may still be alive. The question of the Czar's fate is a conundrum to which even the judicial commission has not found the answer. The Czar may be alive, or he may be dead. Who knows?

All the reports of the Czar's execution at Ekaterinburg came from Moscow via Berlin. On July 31 the procedure of his trial and execution was made public by Lenine and Trotzky before the plenary session of Soviets at Moscow and resolutions passed explaining the reasons for the execution, one pretext of which was the approach of the Czechoslovaks. The execution was alleged to have taken place on July 17; on Aug. 1 the Czechoslovaks entered Ekaterinburg. On Aug. 15 a dispatch from Amsterdam, without further identification, announced that the Czar's body had been taken from the well where it had been placed by his executioners and buried with great pomp by the peasants.

Berlin Paper Says Wilson Will Be Invited to Germany

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 27, (Associated Press.)—The German Government will invite President Wilson to visit Germany while he is in Europe, says the Berliner Lokal-Anzeiger.

ANARCHY MENACES SOUTHEAST EUROPE

Million Austrian Deserters and Host of Released Prisoners Overrun the Land.

REPORT MADE TO COL. HOUSE

W. J. Rose, Agent of Slovene Government, Tells of Perilous Conditions Prevailing.

PARIS, Nov. 22.—A detailed account of conditions in Southeastern Europe, where the presence of a million Austrian army deserters, who have established themselves in fortified camps in various districts, as well as of hordes of released prisoners, has created a dangerous situation, is given in the report recently prepared for Colonel E. M. House by William J. Rose, an agent of the Slovene Government, now in Laibach, the new capital of Slovakia, and of the Polish Provisional Government in Austrian Silesia.

"Three special factors have arisen in the last six months," he writes, "two of them in the last month, which have brought on a condition of things comparable only with the terror of the French revolution.

"First, the forming of smaller or larger bodies of deserters from the Austrian armies into what seems to be known as Green Guards, who have established themselves in fortified camps in almost every part of Southeastern Europe. This began in the Spring, as soon as the men could live in the open, and had reached by September such dimensions that their numbers were reckoned at a round million. They wear Austrian uniforms and are provided almost throughout with counterfeit certificates of furlough. They maintain a sort of discipline among themselves, and by their attitude to the existing Government found enough sympathy among the peasantry to be able to get food for a kind of maintenance. The robbery of trains and army storehouses and every kind of pillage of military supplies helped them to maintain their position.

"Second, the disaster which came a month ago to the Austrian armies on the Italian front set upward of a million and a half disgusted, demoralized, and debauched, as well as hungry, disappointed and beaten troops, free from the discipline of four and a half years. These men renounced at once all control on the part of their officers. They carried their rifles, but on being loaded into the cattle trains waiting for them at either Klagenfurt or Laibach they had to leave their arms behind and, ipso factor, threw off all restraint.

"Thirdly, when the Central Empires concluded with Russia the treaty of Brest-Litovsk they at once began to get their prisoners home from all parts of Russia with which they had railroad communications. But not a single train of Russian prisoners was allowed to return from Austria or Germany. At least 2,000,000 Russians were forced to remain working on farms or in factories under hard conditions, with little food, and no kind or Christian treatment."

Mr. Rose suggests among other things that the American Government establish consulates or missions in numerous centres and also advisory or relief committees, as well as undertake a general campaign of enlightenment, to be carried on indefinitely by the press and on the platform, to prepare the peoples for the drastic changes the war has brought about.

SENATORS COMPLETE WAR REVENUE BILL

Skeptical of Early Passage, Authorities Plan Collection Under Present Act.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Revision of the War Revenue bill was substantially completed tonight by the Senate Finance Committee. Amendments perfecting the program of raising $6,000,000,000 in 1919 were adopted and by a strict party vote the committee formally approved Chairman Simmons's plan to limit the revenue to $4,000,000,000 in 1920 through reduction of individual and corporation income rates, elimination of the war profits tax and reduction of the excess profits rates.

With the seven Republicans of the committee voting solidly in opposition, the ten Democrats adopted Chairman Simmons's plan for 1920 to reduce the normal income tax rate for individuals and corporations from 12 to 8 per cent., to abolish the 80 per cent. war profits rate after 1919, and to reduce the excess profits rates in 1920 to a minimum of 20 per cent. and a maximum of 40 per cent., or two-thirds of the 1919 rate.

Although the committee now practically has completed the bill, it became known today that the Internal Revenue Bureau has almost despaired of the enactment of the measure before Jan. 1, and has made full plans for collection of taxes under the old law, by which it is estimated only $4,000,000,000 would be produced next year.

Chairman Simmons plans to report the bill to the Senate some time next week. The Republicans announced their intention to oppose inclusion of 1920 rates in the bill and may file a minority report.

Chairman Simmons's plan for 1920 revenue was adopted without change. Its provision for reduction from 12 to 8 per cent. in the normal rates on individual incomes also provides that the rate shall be 6 per cent. in 1919 and 4 per cent. in 1920 on the first $4,000 of taxable income.

Chairman Simmons said Secretary McAdoo did not approve the 1920 program in its entirety, as he desired higher normal rates to continue on both individual and corporation incomes, and also opposed continuation of the excess profits taxation plan.

ular campaign in the Spring for the sale of bonds, which should be of short maturities and meanwhile to provide for the Government's necessities by the issue of treasury certificates at fortnightly intervals."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—A report today that Bernard M. Baruch of New York, Chairman of the War Industries Board, had been asked to succeed William G. McAdoo as Secretary of the Treasury, brought denial from close friends of Mr. Baruch. One story said he had been sounded to see if he would accept the post and declined to give any encouragement to the virtual offer.

He is said to be averse to being considered for the post, first, because he wishes to retire from public life, and, second, because he feels that his wealth and holdings of securities would subject him to embarrassment and criticism. In the opinion of Mr. Baruch's friends, only a direct appeal by the President to him to accept would lead him to change his mind.

It was reported today that the health of Carter Glass of Virginia, previously strongly favored for the position, might not allow him to take it. Some Democrats, who feel that too many Southerners are in the Cabinet already, are urging that a Western or Northern man be named. One of those mentioned today as a possibility was James J. Storrow, a member of the Boston banking firm of Lee, Higginson & Co.

For Director General of Railroads it is believed that Vance C. McCormick of Harrisburg, head of the War Trade Board, is being considered.

HUNGARY REJECTS RUMANIAN ULTIMATUM

Transylvania Proclaims Its Independence—Czechs Call Reservists to Colors.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—Rumanian Transylvania has proclaimed its independence and has sent an ultimatum to the Hungarian Government asking that all political, administrative and judicial departments in territories inhabited by Rumanians in Hungary and Transylvania be handed over.

Hungary has refused and the National Rumanian Government has broken off negotiations, declining all responsibility for the consequences, blame for which, it says, will be placed on the National Hungarian Council, according to advices to the Matin.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 26.—The Czechoslovak Department of National Defense has mobilized the active reservists for the years 1895 to 1899, inclusive, and ordered all men under arms up to 40 years of age to remain in the service, according to a Prague dispatch under Friday's date.

EXTREMISTS CALL BERLIN CONGRESS

outlined an extensive financial program, including sharp measures against taxation frauds and excessive war profits.

Unorganized strikes have broken out in several of the large plants around Berlin. They are wholly local in nature and are the result of demands made by the workers for a fixed rate of daily wage instead of a piece schedule.

Former workers in the munition plants are insisting upon the continuance of the "prosperity" wages paid during the war, though the employers are now starting peace production and are striving to realign the wage conditions.

Self Expected to Resign.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The keenest interest is felt throughout Germany in the result of the conference of representatives of the Federal States at Berlin, a Copenhagen dispatch says.

The questions of summoning the National Assembly and insuring the unity of the empire are being discussed everywhere. If a National Assembly is not called at the earliest possible moment, Bavaria, Württemberg, and Baden are reported to be considering the formation of a separate republic. Hesse, Hanover, and German Austria are also credited with demanding a meeting of the Assembly.

It is stated that feeling at Bremen and Kiel is against the Spartacus Party. At Bermen the Soldiers' and Workmen's Council voted, 81 to 20, in favor of a National Assembly. The Sailors' Council at Kiel has denounced the action of the Spartacus adherents. Philipp Scheidemann, writing in the Vorwärts, ascribes the change in the situation to Dr. Karl Liebknecht's attempted coup d'état.

Dr. W. S. Solf, the German Foreign Minister, may resign very soon, it is indicated by developments during debates at the conference in Berlin, according to Berne advices to the Petit Parisien. A Zurich dispatch to L'Information, of Paris, says he has already resigned. The paper takes this report as indicating that his success in the congress was not so complete as the semi-official advices from Berlin made out. This account, in fact, the Zurich message states, is received skeptically there.

It is reported that there were violent demonstration on Monday evening in Berlin against the conference, and especially against Dr. Solf and Mathias Erzberger.

Dr. Solf has asked the Allies once more for a mitigation of the armistice conditions and has requested permission to delay the delivery of railroad rolling stock, under the terms of the agreement between Germany and the Allies, until Feb. 1, on the ground of difficulties caused by bad conditions and the lack of lubricating oils.

NORTH RUSSIA SNOW HEMS IN OUR TROOPS

Separated from Reds by Ice-Filled Stream Between Vologda Railroad and the Dvina.

ENDURE GREAT HARDSHIPS

Since Early in September They Have Battled Back and Forth on Road to Petrograd.

ARCHANGEL, Nov. 22, (Associated Press.)—In log huts and wind shelters made of birch boughs, American troops are holding the line against the Bolsheviki on the middle sector of the northern front in the region of Kadish. After ten weeks of fighting in swamps and thick undergrowth, the Americans are now snowed in and are bivouacked along an ice-filled stream on the opposite side of which are the campfires of the enemy.

Under British command and with British forces aiding them, the American infantrymen on this sector probably have had more fighting and more hardships than other American units in Russia. The force has been operating between the Dvina River and the Vologda railroad through a territory of swamps and forests. The roads have been in bad condition and the only means of transporting supplies to a greater part of the front has been wheelbarrow-shaped carts drawn by sturdy Russian ponies.

American troops also are operating on the Mehrenga River, fifty miles south of Seletskoe, and in a more thickly populated country. The villages there are strongly anti-Bolshevist, and Russian detachments are aiding the Allies. On Wednesday a Russian detachment surprised and defeated an enemy force, killing nearly 100.

WHOLESALE MASSACRE OF JEWS IN POLAND

Slaying and Plundering in Warsaw and Galicia—British Government Appealed To.

By JULIAN GRANDE.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERNE, Nov. 27.—A trustworthy eyewitness, just returned from Poland, reports a wholesale massacre of Jewish men, women, and children by the Polish population in Warsaw, and Western, Central, and Eastern Galicia. The massacres and plundering have caused horrors exceeding the Russian programs or Turkish massacres of the Armenians. The Polish authorities are either passive or promote the massacres.

Millians of dollars' worth of property have been stolen or burned, and thousands of Jewish families left shelterless, and all because the Jews demanded political equality. Before the massacres began the authorities disarmed all the Jewish soldiers. Hence they could not defend themselves.

BERNE, Nov. 27. (Havas.)—Reiterated reports of outrages by German soldiers in Eastern Poland have been received in Polish circles in Switzerland. The troops are looting and burning all along their way and treating the inhabitants cruelly, it is declared. Strong protests to Warsaw have been sent in from the affected region.

The leaders of Zionism in England are approaching the British Government in order to have energetic steps taken to stop the pogroms which are raging in Poland and Western Galicia. This information was cabled to the Zionist Organization of America yesterday by Dr. Chaim Weizmann, as President of the British Zionist Federation, and Nahum Sokolow of the International Actions Committee, both of whom join in the statement that they have obtained absolute confirmation of the outrages that are of daily occurence in the two countries named.

SOUTH RUSSIA REVIVING.

New Premier Says Ukraine Is in Full Accord with Entente.

By HAROLD WILLIAMS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Nov. 27.—A Russian traveler, who left Kiev a week ago, gives me a hopeful account of affairs in Southern Russia. The relaxation of German oppression has permitted a display of patriotic feeling. A Congress of Peasants cheered for United Russia. Kiev is held by troops recruited in Kiev by officers of General Denikin's army. The Kiev Government is now openly all-Russian. Skoropadski's influence is nil.

The Ukrainian Separatist adventurers, Vinichenko and Petriura, attempted an insurrectionary movement and occupied Berdicheff with a small force, but were driven out by Kiev troops.

The Governments at Omsk, Siberia, in Caucasia, and at Kiev are negotiating with a view to common action. There is a general feeling of tense anticipation of the liberation and rebirth of Russia. The arrival of the Allies eagerly is awaited.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 26. — Premier Gerbel of Ukraine has declared in an interview that Ukraine is already in full accord with the Entente, whose representatives are expected at Kiev soon, according to a Kiev dispatch to the Rhenish Westphalian Gazette of Essen.

He added that Ukraine would belong to the new Russian federal State.

ARMY IN LUXEMBURG HUNGERS FOR TURKEY

Chickens at 18 to 30 Francs, Geese at 180, and All Ducks in Germans' Domain.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY OF OCCUPATION, Nov. 25, (by Courier to Nancy, Nov. 27, Associated Press.)—The indications are that the American army of occupation will spend Thanksgiving in its present positions on this side of the German frontier.

The Americans already have started a search for the luxuries of Luxemburg for Thursday's dinner. In the absence of turkeys they are casting their eyes at Luxemburg's chickens, geese, ducks, and pigeons.

The German officers also were fond of chickens and geese, and consequently the farmers and villagers have but a few on hand. There is plenty of American frozen beef at the ports, but the Americans feel they should have some kind of poultry.

Officers of the 8d Division at Remich have priced chickens and found them 18 to 30 francs each. There are plenty of ducks on this side of the Moselle in the region of Remich, but investigation revealed that they belonged to Germans living on the other side of the river, and that the ducks came to this side of the stream to feed because the western side of the river is marshy. Therefore, the German-owned ducks are safe, so far as the Americans are concerned. Some of the officers are figuring that it might be a violation of the armistice to buy a German duck, even through a third party.

The region of Ehnen, where the 26th Infantry headquarters is situated, is noted for geese. The 1st Division officers, hearing this, asked the 26th Infantry for geese enough to feed the division. The cheapest goose the officers priced at Ehnen was 180 francs. The 26th Infantry sent word to the 1st Division that it would be lucky if it got enough goose to feed the General.

GERMANY DISBANDING ARMY

All Troops Except 1898 and 1899 Classes Being Discharged.

AMERICAN ARMY OF OCCUPATION, Nov. 27, (Associated Press.)—All German soldiers, except the classes of 1898 and 1899, are being discharged as rapidly as possible, according to reports reaching the American Third Army. These two classes will be held in service until Field Marshal von Hindenburg sees fit to discharge them.

throned monarch to leave their territory. If, as at present appears to be the case, the Kaiser's presence there disturbs and menaces the domestic peace of the country or is likely to do so in the future, the Dutch Government would be entitled to take what steps they may deem opportune to rid themselves and the country of the danger arising from Wilhelm's or the Crown Prince's residence.

In the event of the Kaiser and his son being turned out of Holland, where will they go? Will they follow Napoleon's example and surrender to Great Britain, whom Napoleon described as the "most obstinate and most generous of my enemies," or will they throw themselves on the mercy of America, where, judging by cabled reports, the campaign to hang the Kaiser seems to have made more headway than in any country in Europe?

Fear of Marwitz Counter-Revolt.

LONDON, Nov. 27, (Associated Press.)—General von der Marwitz, former aide de camp to Emperor William and later commander of German forces on the Verdun front, has arrived at Treves with a big army and appears to be preparing for a counter-revolution, according to a dispatch received in Amsterdam from Berlin, filed there on Nov. 21.

The ex-Kaiser will have to leave Holland if his presence there becomes perilous to that country, Premier Ruija de Beerenbrouck is quoted by the Amsterdam correspondent of The Daily Express as declaring in the Second Chamber of the Dutch Parliament on Nov. 20.

"The Kaiser is in Holland as a private person," said the Premier, as quoted by the correspondent. "The hospitality of the country is extended him in accordance with a centuries-old tradition. But it goes without saying that the moment his sojourn becomes a danger to the State he will have to leave. We believe the Kaiser and those with him understand the position and will act according to their interests."

Letters Denounce ex-Kaiser.

A dispatch from Amerongen, Holland, dated Nov. 22, says that the ex-Kaiser went for a drive that afternoon with his host, Count von Bentinck, accompanied by the usual police guard. He almost daily receives flowers and dainties from friends, but as often letters or postcards are delivered at the castle addressed to "William Hohenzollern," in which the senders express hatred, contempt, or execration. The missives probably are carefully withheld from the one-time Emperor.

Another Amerongen dispatch, dated Nov. 20, says that the ex-Kaiser's entourage was asked by The Associated Press if he had any message to send to the American people. The following reply was received:

"His Majesty's suite regrets that it is unable to submit this demand to his Majesty."

"Herr Hohenzollern" is in constant communication with the German Legation at The Hague.

PRINCE SEES CHANGE COMING.

Kaiser's Son "Careful About Prophesying" as to Germany.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 27.—The ex-Crown Prince, on arriving at the Island of Wieringen after a somewhat adventurous journey, was, according to an eyewitness, obviously disagreeably surprised at the aspect of his place of exile, although he took on a cheerful pose and entered smilingly into conversation with his suite. The public received the party coldly and none saluted. The ex-Prince's party left Medemblik, on the mainland, in the evening in the small motorboat Tetjer.

It was very misty, and the boat ran into shallow water, damaging the screw. In trying to reach the island the boat ran into the bank, and was obliged to return to Medemblik, which was reached at midnight.

There were no provisions on board, and the hotelkeeper who was telephoned to could not prepare food, as the gas had been cut off. The party were obliged to dine off a few biscuits and chocolate and some fried eggs.

LONDON, Nov. 27, (Associated Press.)—The former German Crown Prince had not seen or heard from his father for weeks up to the time he was taken to the Island of Wieringen, according to an interview he gave to newspapermen while on his way through Holland to his present home on the Zuyder Zee Island. He said that his wife would remain in Germany.

"A change is coming in Germany, but one has to be careful about prophesying," he replied to a question as to what he thought of the revolution.

"Will you return to Germany?" was the next question.

"Yes, when the situation changes, but when ——," here Frederick William broke off to testify to the excellence of the food in Holland.

"Many people here do not think so," some one interjected.

"Oh, I think it is fine," said the former Crown Prince. "Anyhow, I am a small eater and do not want to get fat."

Banister Shoes for Men

STILL $9.50 and $11.00

in spite of the upward tendency of all shoe prices

OUR business in Banister Shoes this season has been greater than ever before. We ascribe it to two things. First, the inviolability of the standard Banister quality. Second, the very moderate prices we are asking for them. We could easily and legitimately get one dollar more per pair. But the volume compensates us for the value. The Men's Shoe Shop was founded with that spirit, and that is the spirit it continues to maintain.

The last word in Overcoats for Men

In new gray, brown and green fleeces—storm proof

WE always feel deferential in the presence of an Aquascutum. It's a garment one simply has to respect. There's nothing superficial about it, nothing freakish or conspicuous. It never loses the dignity of substantial workmanship and the distinction of gentle lines. Yet there's a breeziness about an Aquascutum, too—a sort of go-hang quality in the hang of it that looks good to the eye. And there's a touch of moor and highland in the warmth of the colors, as inviting as the light in a cottage when you look from the outside in.

ACCUSES SENATOR PENROSE

Fuel Inquiry Witness Tells of Brewers in Pennsylvania Politics.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Control of politics in Eastern Pennsylvania by brewers through a political organization headed by Senator Penrose, the operations of which serve the interests of anthracite operators, was alleged today at the Senate Manufactures Committee's investigation of the fuel situation by William Wilhelm of Pottsville, Penn.

The witness told of experiences in numerous law suits against mine owners to prove his assertion. He charged that brewers, dominating politics in Schuylkill County, caused the election of judges.

"If the brewers control politics, who controls the brewers?" asked Senator Kenyon of Iowa.

"Senator Penrose absolutely," he replied.

31,814 AIRPLANE MOTORS PRODUCED

Liberty Motors Totaled 15,131 —Production Reached 150 a Day.

12,000 PLANES TURNED OUT

Government Also Announces the Manufacture of 700 Kite Balloons in War Period.

HOW PROBLEMS WERE MET

Agitation as to Thousands of Changes in Liberty Motors Declared Unfounded.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—When the armistice was signed contracts had been awarded for the manufacture of 95,993 airplane motors. The original number of Liberty motors contracted for was 22,500. This was raised to 51,100 Liberty twelves. Contracts also were made for 10,000 Hispano-Suiza 300 horse power motors, 8,000 eight-cylinder Liberty motors, and other models.

The production up to the signing of the armistice was 31,814, of which 15,131 were Liberty motors. In October 5,603 motors were turned out, with a contemplated production of 8,000 in January, 1919, and 10,000 a month for the four months following. Besides the 31,814 motors the War Department provided 12,000 airplanes and 700 kite balloons.

This and other information was disclosed to newspaper men at the War Department this afternoon in the presence of Secretary Baker when the lid was lifted from the aircraft situation at an exhibition of aircraft material prepared for the information of Congress and the General Staff of the army.

The exhibit was concentrated on the De Havilland four, an observation machine of advanced type, the American-built airplane most extensively used at the front. The front half of the fuselage was shown, typical of more than 500 stock machines awaiting shipment when the armistice was declared. It was equipped with four machine guns, two forward, fixed Marlins, and two aft, both of the Lewis type.

It was explained that more than 38,000 Marlins had been made, and the statement was advanced that they compared with the best aerial machine guns used. They were credited with firing 750 shots a minute. They are so synchronized as to fire between propeller blades. The rear guns were mounted on a flexible gear, so as to fire, through a circle of 360 degrees, in almost any direction, 1,500 shots a minute for the two guns. The gunner can fire them separately or simultaneously with the same trigger.

The explanation was made that at the time of the declaration of war the only available gun for the fixed forward position was the Marlin, the Browning not having yet been developed. The Marlin was so mounted as to discharge the empty shells and had a disintegrating steel belt to prevent the shells and belt fragments from flying back into the faces of the aviator and his observer. In adopting the Lewis gun, the only one not using a belt, for the flexible rear position, it was necessary to redesign it so as to take United States ammunition, thus increasing its ammunition capacity from forty-seven to ninety-seven rounds per container. The statement was made that, starting with nothing, production in less than twelve months reached 30,000 Lewis flexible machine guns and 38,000 Marlins of the fixed type.

The instrument question involved many phases. The statement was made that the General Electric Company, within eight weeks, was producing 250 airplane compasses a week, that minute chains in the aneroid barometers which serve as altimeters were obtained from Switzerland, and that the way in which the National Cash Register Company has developed a tachometer was a story of absorbing manufacturing interest.

It was explained that it had fallen to the United States to supply the spruce for the entire air program of the Allies and the United States. In October, 1917, these requirements were given as 5,000,000 feet a month, with only 2,500,000 feet a month being produced. In October, 1918, it was stated, the requirements were 20,000,000 feet a month, with more than 25,000,000 feet being produced. These operations involved the employment of 30,000 men in the Northwest.

The statement was also made that early in the war it was evident that the Irish supply of linen would fail, that cotton fabric for airplane use was developed in this country and that at the time the armistice was signed 2,500 looms were producing 1,200,000 yards a month of airplane fabric. There had been delivered up to that date a total of more than 13,000,000 yards of airplane fabric. For the finer balloon cloth 2,200 looms were required to produce about 720,000 yards a month.

The story of the aircraft engine situation was told by Lieut. H. H. Emmons, United States Naval Reserve Force, who was assigned to the army as Chief of the Engine Production Department. He detailed the development of the Liberty motor.

"Engines required," he said, "fell naturally into three classes: Elementary training, advance training, and combat. As to the elementary training, there were available the following engines: Curtiss Ox, of approximately 90 horse power, and A-7-A, 4-cylinder engines of approximately 100 horse power, and Hall-Scott. Orders were consummated for the production of these engines as promptly as possible.

"For advanced training, there were available the Gnome 110 horse power, the Le Rhone 80 horse power, and the Hispano-Suiza 150 horse power. The General Vehicle Company proceeded with the production of the 110 horse power Gnome. The Union Switch and Signal Company was persuaded to take the contract for the production of the 2,500 Le Rhone engines, 80 horse power type. Their contract has been continued, and the Union Switch and Signal Company has delivered up to this date approximately 1,200 of these engines. We have had the assistance of George Guillot, the engineer of the French Gnome and Le Rhone factories, who pronounces the engine built for the Union Switch and Signal Company to be the best rotary engine ever constructed. We arranged with the Wright-Martin Company to increase their facilities for the production of the 150 horse power Hispano-Suiza type, and their work had such good results that in May, 1918, that company delivered 530 of these engines in one month.

"As to combat engines, it was clear that the only one available for our manufacturing purposes would be the Liberty, and the test made of it in July and August showed that it functioned properly and was a satisfactory engine. We therefore started production of it. It was estimated that we would require 22,500 of these engines to take care of the requirements of our navy and army. We therefore made contracts as follows: Packard Motor Company, 6,000; Lincoln Motors Company, 6,000; Ford Motor Company, 5,000; Nordyke and Marmon, 3,000; General Motors Corporation, Buick, Cadillac, 2,000; Trego Motors Corporation, 500. The first of these contracts were signed in August, 1917, and production work started immediately.

"The Liberty twelve-cylinder engine as originally designed was of the 300 horse power class, producing approximately 330 horse power. All the parts of the engine were designed to stand the stresses incident to this horse power. When we had succeeded in getting tools and equipment to build this 330 horse power type and had produced approximately 500 of them, we were advised by authorities in France that higher horse power would be required. By readjustment of the parts the engineers stepped up the horse power of this engine to 375, with the result that certain of the parts would not stand this strain, notably the crankshaft, and it was necessary to stop productive efforts and increase these parts to stand this additional power requirement. After several weeks' work this was accomplished, and when we had produced approximately 500 of this type we were again notified that an increase in power would be required, and that what would be needed for the Summer of 1918 would be 400 horse power or over.

"We, therefore, again delayed production while the engineers rearranged the engine parts so that the engine would develop approximately 440 horse power. The resulting strain placed on all the parts of the engine was too great. We were obliged to enlarge and strengthen crankshafts, connecting rods, bearings, &c., together with all the adjacent parts. It became necessary to change the metallurgical specifications, which resulted in changes in the methods of the steel mills. In increasing the size of the parts all of tthe jigs, tools, and fixtures in the machine-building plants, the parts factories, forging shops, &c., were rendered obsolete and we had to construct new equipment to meet all these conditions in order to meet the requirements as given to us by our aviation authorities in France.

"The extent and magnitude of these changes so required is illustrated by the fact that the engine when competent to develop 330 horse power weighed 783 pounds, without water or oil, while, when it was competent to develop 440 horse power, it weighed 860 pounds.

"In spite of this difficulty, on May 29, 1918, one year after the first scratch of the pencil toward the design of the engine was made, we had produced and delivered into service 1,100 Liberty twelve-cylinder engines. This is an accomplishment which has not been equaled heretofore in this or any similar industry, either in this country or elsewhere.

"Much agitation has centered about the assertion that thousands of changes were made in this engine. This agitation is entirely incorrect and unfounded. The changes arranged themselves in three groups: Design, increase of power, and manufacturing limits.

"There have been but two changes in design in this engine since it was first laid out in May, 1917. One of these was to change the oil system from the so-called scupper feed to forced feed. Either system worked properly on the engine, but the latter system is foolproof, while the former is not. We, therefore, substituted the latter system. The other design change was an alteration in one part of the connecting rod to allow the rod to have sufficient play without cracking.

"The changes due to increasing the horse power twice were the result solely of the demands of our aviation authorities that the power be increased. As the engine was used in service and as the manufacturing progressed, it became evident that some of these limits should be changed, and this action has been followed.

"The production of engines as to types is as follows: OX-5, 8,412; Hispano-Suiza, 4,101; Le Rhone, 1,178; Lawrence, 451; Gnome, 280; A-7-A, 2,250; Bugatti, 11; Liberty, 15,131; total, 31,814.

"The results achieved by the Liberty engines were so satisfactory to the Allies that commencing in June, 1918, they were very insistent in placing with us large orders for engines. It soon became apparent that we would need additional sources of engine supply over and above the 22,500 which was originally planned for our own army and navy. We, therefore, increased the number of manufacturers byadding the three plants of the Willys-Overland Company at Elmira, Elyria, and Toledo, and also the Oldsmotor Company at Lansing, Michigan, to the list of Liberty producers. We also placed orders for 8,000 8-cylinder Liberty engines with Willys-Overland and the Buick Motor Company at Flint, Mich. When this was completed we had placed orders for engines as follows: OX-5 9,450, A-7-A 2,230, Gnome 342, Le Rhone 3,000, Lawrence 451, Hispano-Suiza-150 4,000, Hispano-Suiza-180 4,500, Hispano-Suiza-300 30,000, Bugatti 2,000, Liberty-12 51,100, Liberty-8 8,000; total, 95,993.

"During October last we were producing over 150 Liberty 12-cylinder engines per working day.

"During October we produced of all types of engines a total of 5,603. This is more than the total production of France and England during one month during the four years of the war.

"By following this method of production, we have achieved the following results: Designed, developed and put into production during one year a 400-horse-power type of perfectly satisfactory performance; designed, developed and produced within eighteen months over 15,000 of these engines, and produced during eighteen months engines of all types totaling 31,814. That the result has been satisfactory is apparent from the entire course of aviation during the last few months."

Where do you come from?

If you are from the South, you can have your golden corn meal batter cakes with freshly churned butter like your colored mammy serves.

If you are from New England and can still be coaxed to eat a piece of pie, ask for pie. See if it isn't the kind you always hope for and don't often get.

If you are from the West and like a man's size breakfast—steak, chops or buckwheat cakes and sausage, you can get them cooked to a turn.

If you begin the day with fruit and coffee, you can get the juiciest of fruit, the honeyest of honeydew melons—whatever is in season.

And such coffee! You will want another cup to our customers than if sold according to present mill prices. That means ACTUALLY, as an example, that the 17 rugs remaining of the 9x12 lot, marked under their original price tickets at $61.25 apiece, would cost the prospective purchaser at least $148.00 at today's prices. Others accordingly.

AN UNHEARD OF XMAS OPPORTUNITY

An Imported Novelty

These rugs comprise two sizes and two qualities. One being a high grade worsted of close weave, the other a superior 13 wire fabric of the first quality. Marked, as has just been explained, on the basic cost of several seasons back, yet perfect in every way, these few dozen odd ovals are a find. They are useful wherever an odd room space exists, because of their adaptable shape, such as in foyers, bay windows, alcoves and narrow rooms, halls, AND ESPECIALLY WHERE THE CEILING DESIGN IS OVAL.

Exquisitely Colored

The tone effect in each rug is most pleasing, combining tints of rose, brown, green and tans.

1,500,000 PRISONERS FREED BY GERMANS

American Third Army Feeding Vanguard of 250,000 Who Will Reach Its Lines.

FACILITIES HEAVILY TAXED

Released Men Say Food and Lodging Were Bad—Londoners Favor Boycott in Retaliation.

AMERICAN ARMY OF OCCUPATION, Nov. 27. (Associated Press.)—More than 1,500,000 prisoners of various nationalities have been released by the Germans, according to estimates based upon reports received by the American Third Army.

Of this number approximately 250,000 will pass through the American lines and will be fed by the Americans. Most of the quarter of a million prisoners are French, English, Italian, and American soldiers. The army, assisted by the Salvation Army, the Young Men's Christian Association, and the Knights of Columbus, is shouldering the bulk of the task.

The population of the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg already has been doubled by the arrival of the army of occupation. The question of feeding the former prisoners is taxing the American transport facilities, owing to the fact that the new lines of communication cross No Man's Land and because the Americans are getting farther each day from the base of supplies.

The wants of thousands of released prisoners as they pass through the city of Luxemburg are being looked partly after by the boys' singing societies there, corresponding to the Boy Scout organizations in America. School buildings and other public structures are utilized. The prisoners get hot meals and heated quarters for the night, and then are sent on their way. The Luxemburg people are bearing the expenses of this, with the help of funds provided by the Luxemburg Government. Railroad transportation for the prisoners is to be furnished whenever possible. The American Army has agreed to transport the released British prisoners to French ports.

Physical Condition Not Bad.

AMERICAN HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, Nov. 27, (Associated Press.)—The examination of American prisoners released from German prison camps and reaching identification camps virtually has been concluded under the direction of army surgeons.

The examinations indicate that the physical condition of the men in general is as good as could be expected, although some cases are reported where the men complained of bad treatment, bad shelter and poor and insufficient food. Of several thousand men examined no evidence has been found of reported cases of inoculation with malignant and contagious diseases.

The released prisoners report no discrimination against Americans. Only a small percentage of those examined was found in need of medical attention. At one classification camp, where five officers and 344 men reported from German prisons, only fourteen required hospital attention. No cases of emaciation were found in this group.

General complaint was made in another group of men that their food was extremely bad and their quarters uncomfortable. Specimens of bread brought back were found to contain sawdust and other coarse and inedible elements. In the majority of cases, however, the men said their housing and food were not much worse than the shelter and rations of the German soldiers.

Names of Freed Americans.

PARIS, Nov. 22.—American prisoners from German camps are following on the heels of the British and Canadians who have been pouring into Metz, Nancy, Luneville and other French frontier towns. The American Y. M. C. A. is providing these men with every possible comfort. Out of fifty American wounded prisoners who have returned the following are reported safely lodged in sleeping quarters established by the Red Triangle:

Captain—Frank H. Wilson, Cambridge, Ill.
Sergeants—Hover Behles, Leetown, Ky.; Charles C. Wolpel, Springvale, Conn.
Corporals—Thomas R. Phillips, Dallas, Texas; Joseph H. Bishop, Dill, Okla.; Charles Steifel, Fleemansburg, Penn.
Privates—Hubert A. Green, Topeka, Kan.; Henry O. Lokken, Hendricks, Minn.; Harry Ford, Graysetto, Ark.; George Christopulos, Moline, Ill.; Vincenzo Dondiego, New York; Roy A. Mikel, Beach Grove, Ind.; Otto Popelier, Moline, Ill.; Rufus Wallace, Somerville, Tenn.; Quiring Wendell, Chicago; Sam Socco, Fort Wayne, Ind.; Grant Munn, Seaforth, Minn.; Walter Buckholz, Holland, Minn.; Richard Strandgard, Moline, Ill.; William Lummus, Canton, Texas; Robert Stanburg, Charlotte, N. C.; Harry Zuckerman, New York; Demas C. Ferreira, Hayward, Cal.; Carl D. Kelsey, San Pedro, Cal.; Henry Jernigan, Bucklawn, Va.; Harry W. Dobberman, Chicago; Floyd Silcock, Ardin, Texas; Oscar Danielson, Belview, Minn.; Hiram B. Booth, Leflore, Okla.; Adie J. Hoffman, Castel, Llano County, Texas; Lawrence E. Burman, Fort Jennings, Ohio; Earl R. Thomas, Cowen, W. Va.

LONDON, Nov. 27, (via Montreal.)—At a demonstration of 10,000 persons in Hyde Park today a resolution was passed favoring an economic boycott of the Germans for their cruel behavior toward prisoners. The resolution expressed horror and indignation over the German brutalities against British prisoners, especially since the armistice was signed. The demonstration was under the auspices of the British Empire Union.

CARDINAL MERCIER TELLS OF OUTRAGES

Says Germans Tortured and Killed 49 Belgian Priests — How They Underrated Americans.

MALINES, Nov. 27.—Forty-nine Belgian priests were tortured and put to death by the Germans during the occupation, Cardinal Mercier, the Primate of Belgium, declared in an interview today. He added that 12,000 men were removed from his diocese to Germany, where they were forced to work. Other crimes committed by the Germans, the Cardinal said, were too long and too terrible to relate.

Cardinal Mercier said he was happy to see Germany defeated, adding:

"The barbarian formula of might over right has received the final deathblow. German dreams of world domination have been shattered. Honor only is paid to the right, and restored Belgium stands free and independent. The integrity of the marvelous French nation, which roused the admiration of the entire world by its unshakable tenacity, remains absolutely complete. The Christian faith has been re-established."

The Cardinal related that in the early stages of unrestricted submarine warfare, the Marquis of Villalobar, the Spanish Minister to Belgium, called on the German Governor General in Brussels and asked him to intervene with a view to limit the submarine warfare to the belligerents. The Spanish Minister gave the Governor this advice:

"The Americans are exasperated and are on the verge of joining the Allies, which will mean the defeat of the Central Empires."

"We have no fear whatever of the Americans, who will never be able to help the Allies," the Governor General replied haughtily, the Cardinal said. "An army cannot be raised in a few months. Three years at least will be necessary for them, and France and her modest ally, the British, will be crushed long before that."

Cardinal Mercier concluded by saying that the Spanish Minister had made the true prediction. He paid tribute to the armies of France, Great Britain, and the United States.

"The triumph of justice is complete," the Cardinal added, "and right has been victoriously vindicated."

ALABAMA SOLDIERS CITED FOR BRAVERY

Members of 167th Infantry Win War Crosses for Gallant Fighting at Cote de Chatillon.

BROOKLYN BOY IS NAMED

Sergt. Eichorn of 165th Led His Platoon Through a Rain of Bullets to Rescue Wounded Men.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—The Commander in Chief, in the name of the President, has awarded the Distinguished Service Cross to the following officers and soldiers for the acts of extraordinary heroism described after their names:

Capt. Thomas H. Fallaw, 167th Infantry.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Landres-et-St. Georges on Oct. 15. In the attack on the Cote de Chatillon, seeing that the entire advance was being held up in an open field by heavy machine-gun fire from the edge of the woods, he personally organized a detachment and led it in a rush on the woods unled heavy fire, making a daring and vigorous attack on the enemy machine-gun nests, clearing the edge of the woods, capturing prisoners, and inflicting severe losses on the enemy. Through this gallant act, Captain Fallaw gained the final objective with a minimum loss to his command, and set an inspiring example of disregard for personal safety and devotion to duty. Home address: Mrs. R. R. Fallaw, mother, Opelika, Ala.

Sergt. Ralph Atkinson, Headquarters Company, 167th Infantry.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Landres-et-St. Georges on Oct. 16. During the attack on Cote-de-Chatillon Sergt. Atkinson, in command of the Stokes Mortar Platoon, with three other soldiers, was advancing with the first wave of the assault, when, on nearing the objective, he discovered about 250 of the enemy forming for a counterattack. At this juncture Sergt. Atkinson and his party advanced with a Stokes mortar under heavy fire to a position where he could get a fair field of fire, set up the mortar, and opened a murderous fire on the approaching enemy, dispersing him in every direction. His quick action, good judgment, and leadership undoubtedly not only broke up the enemy counterattack, but inflicted severe losses on him, he himself showing extraordinary heroism and courage at a critical time. Home address: Mrs. O. R. Atkinson, mother, 314 California Street, Montgomery, Ala.

Second Lieut. Clair C. Roberts, 167th Infantry.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Landres-et-St. Georges on Oct. 16. His platoon suffered heavy casualties, and he himself was gassed in the advance on Hill 200. Being the first to reach this hill, he observed that the enemy was forming for a counterattack. Displaying coolness and quick judgment, he organized all the available men in his vicinity and launched a vigorous attack upon the enemy who was around. The daring and leadership of this officer enabled the support to reach Hill 200 without further fighting. Home address: Mrs. Clara Roberts, mother, 209 East Walnut Avenue, Altoona, Penn.

Sergt. Shanklin Ebenezer Gilkerson, 167th Ambulance Company.—For extraordinary heroism in action at St. Benoit on Sept. 16. While the regimental dressing station was under heavy shell fire he volunteered to lead a squad of litter bearers to rescue several wounded men of another regiment who had been caught in a heavy barrage. Although he was wounded himself, he succeeded in leading the squad for a distance of three kilometres through a constant severe bombardment under direct observation of the enemy artillery and snipers to an outpost outside of his own regimental sector. He brought in one wounded officer and seven severely wounded soldiers without losing any of his men. Home address: Mrs. M. M. Gilkerson, mother, Locust Avenue, Kansas City, Mo.

Sergt. Victor L. Eichorn, Sanitary Detachment, 165th Infantry.—For extraordinary heroism in action at St. Benoit on Sept. 16. While the regimental dressing station was under heavy shell fire he volunteered to lead a squad of litter bearers to rescue several wounded men of another regiment, who had been caught in a heavy barrage. He succeeded in leading his squad for a distance of three kilometres through a constant severe bombardment under direct observation of the enemy artillery and snipers to an outpost outside of his own regimental sector. He brought in one wounded officer and seven severely wounded soldiers without losing any of his own men. Home address: Mrs. Victor L. Eichorn, wife, 370 Jefferson Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Sergt. Ball Brown, Co. G, 167th Infantry.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Landres St. Georges on Oct. 16. During the attack on Cote-de Chatillon, after having been severely wounded and gassed, he refused to go to the hospital, realizing that his presence with his platoon, which had suffered heavy casualties, would greatly assist in the attack. He reorganized his platoon and personally led it in the attack, later consolidating his positions, thereby setting an example of utter disregard for danger and inspiring his men by his remarkable courage and devotion to duty. Home address: Mrs. Ada Brown, mother, Ozark, Ala.

Sergt. Lee A. Wadsworth, Co. S, 167th Infantry.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Landres-et-St. Georges on Oct. 15. He was severely wounded in the attack on Cote-de-Chatillon, but he refused to be evacuated, and remaind with his platoon under heavy fire, reorganizing it for the counterattack, for which the enemy was forming, thereby setting to his men an inspiring example of utter disregard for danger and of heroism in the face of the enemy. Home address: T. M. Wadsworth, father, Mulberry, Ala.

Corporal Moses E. Baldwin, Co. G, 167th Infantry.—For xtraordinary heroism in action near Landres-et-St. Georges, on Oct. 15. In the attack on Cote-de-Chatillon, disregarding all personal danger, he repeatedly went over shell-swept areas under heavy machine gun fire to give first aid treatment to the wounded and carry them to shelter. Home address: Mrs. Minnie J. Baldwin, Midland City, Ala.

Corporal Samson Richards, Co. H, 17th Infantry.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Landres-et-St. Georges on Oct. 14. When his platoon had become scattered during an attack and has platoon commander had been killed, Corporal Richards, although himself seriously wounded, reorganized the platoon under heavy shell and machine gun fire and turned the platoon over to the next in command ready for the assault before he permitted himself to be evacuated, thereby setting to his associates an example of utter disregard for danger and of remarkable coolness and courage in the face of the enemy. Home address: William Richards, father, Taft, Cal.

Private Frank B. Stockton, (deceased,) Co. E, 167th Infantry.—For extraordinary heroism in action at Lamusard Farm, near Landres-et-St. Georges, on Oct. 14. This soldier, while acting as litter bearer, went through deadly artillery and machine gun fire to the aid of some wounded soldiers, disregarding warnings as to the danger in so doing. After administering first-aid to one of the wounded, he carried him toward our lines and had almost reached a place of safety when he was killed by machine gun fire, having given proof of the highest devotion to duty, and of courage and self-sacrifice. Next of kin: Rev. J. A. A. Stockton, father, New Decatur, Ala.

Private First Class Ashad Hawie, Co. F, 167th Infantry.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Landres-et-St. Georges on Oct. 16. Private Hawie, as company runner, without hesitation or fear of fire from heavy artillery and machine guns, made repeated trips with messages between company and battalion headquarters. On one trip he was attacked by two Germans, one of whom he killed. Taking the other prisoner, he continued on his mission and turned his prisoner over to the battalion commander after delivering his message. Home address: Mrs. Mattie H. Hawie, mother, Jackson, Miss.

Sergt. Jack W. Milner, Co. H, 167th Infantry.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Landres-et-St. Georges on Oct. 15. After his company had sustained heavy losses in a severe engagement with the enemy and he himself had been seriously wounded, Sergt. Milner, realizing that he was the only Sergeant left in the company, refused to be evacuated and remained on duty for twelve hours, reorganizing his company under heavy enemy artillery and machine gun fire, showing entire disregard for danger and setting an excellent example of courage and heroism under fire to his men. Home address: Henry Milner, father, Alexander City, Ala.

CAPTAIN T. D. MEAD IS DEAD OF WOUNDS

Former Member of Bellevue Hospital Staff Was Wounded While Attending Men.

MAJ. STRAIGHT IN HOSPITAL

Contracted Pneumonia While on Duty at the Front—Other New Yorkers on Casualty Lists.

Capt. Theodore Douglas Mead of the Medical Corps, who was an assistant surgeon of the 104th Field Artillery of the New York Division, died on Oct. 30 of wounds received while attending the wounded on battlefields near Le Catelet. Prior to entering the service Captain Mead was a member of the Bellevue Hospital staff. He was a native of Ithaca and a Cornell graduate of the class of 1908. He was graduated from the Cornell Medical College in this city in 1912. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ruth Fahnestock Mead of Ithaca, and one child. He was a member of the American Medical Association, the Medical Society of New York County, and of the Delta Tau Delta Fraternity. His younger brother, Private Leland C. Mead of the 361st Infantry, died of wounds on Oct. 4.

Lieut. John Lyon, who was assistant editor of Forest and Stream, the sportsman magazine published in this city, was killed in action on Oct. 16. He was a son of Frank Lyon, a Washington lawyer, and was educated at the University of Virginia. He was killed while fighting with the machine gun company of the 116th Infantry of the New Jersey-Virginia Division. He was 25 years of age.

Lieut. Richard Montgomery Raven of Co. K of the 107th Infantry was killed in action on Oct. 18. His brother, who was Corporal Robert S. Raven, also of Co. K of the 107th, was killed at Le Catelet on Sept. 29. He lived at Bay Shore, L. I.

Lieut. James F. Curtis, Jr., of the machine-gun company of the 106th Infantry was killed on Oct. 18. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Curtis of 1,173 Fulton Street, Brooklyn. When Congress declared war he was connected with the banking house of Tool, Henry & Co. of 120 Broadway. Besides his wife, he is survived by a five-year-old son.

Lieut. Robert Rausch of Co. I of the 23d Infantry has been killed in action. He was a Regular Army veteran and was commissioned from the ranks. He was 34 years of age and was a brother of Conrad Rausch of 508 East Fifth Street.

Major Willard D. Straight, a former member of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. and a son-in-law of the late Secretary of the Navy William C. Whitney, is in an American hospital in France suffering from pneumonia contracted while on duty at the front. He is one of the men who aided Major Gen. Wood in organizing the first Plattsburg Training Camp in 1913. During the first months of the war he was an Assistant Adjutant General on duty at Governors Island.

Lieut. Ralph S. Wolcott, who was associated with the law firm of Beekman, Lenken & Griscom of this city before he entered the army, was wounded in the latter part of October. He is attached to Co. D of the 311th Infantry of the Dix Division. He is a graduate of Williams College and the Fordham University Law School.

Lieut. Charles C. Gifford, a member of the 88th Aero squadron, was wounded in October and has suffered the amputation or one of his legs. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Gifford of Newark and a nephew of Mrs. J. Frank Turner of 383 Park Avenue, this city. He is a Yale graduate of the class of 1917 and was a prominent member of the Yale track team. He went to France with the 101st Infantry of the New England Division.

Lieut. Arle Ellsworth Garnsey of the Aviation Section died of disease in France in the latter part of October. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Garnsey of White Plains and was a student at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology when he joined the air service in the Spring of 1917.

Lieut. Irving E. Smith, a son of Gen. and Mrs. R. G. Smith of Sayville, L. I., is dead of meningitis in France. Lieut. Smith was a member of the Aviation Section.

Lieut. Arthur D. Cary, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Cary of 16 South Elliott Place, Brooklyn, is dead of pneumonia. He was connected with the Metropolitan Opera and Real Estate Company when he resigned to enter the service. He was in the Quartermaster Corps.

Lieut. Henry L. Mellen, seriously wounded, went overseas with the 102d Engineers of the New York Division. He is a graduate of Columbia University, class of 1912, and is 29 years of age.

Capt. Samuel H. Bradley, Jr., a West Pointer of the Class of 1917, died in a military hospital near London of pneumonia a few weeks ago. He was appointed to West Point from New Jersey and was a member of the first class to be graduated ahead of time after this country entered the war. He was a son of Samuel H. Bradbury of South Orange and was twenty-four years of age. He commanded a battery of heavy artillery.

Lieut. Harry E. Cresby, killed in action, was in the 108th Infantry of the New York Division. He was a native of Buffalo and a veteran of the New York National Guard.

Major Roy M. Smyth, one of the youngest field officers in the Regular Army, has been killed in action. He was twenty-eight years of age and a West Pointer of the class of 1914. His home was in Alameda, Cal.

Lieut. Kenneth A. Bailey, killed in action, went overseas with the 102d Field Artillery. He was twenty-two years of age and a graduate of Stevens Institute. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Bailey of Glen Ridge, N. J.

Capt. Arthur D. Marsh, who was a New Jersey Guard officer of more than 25 years of service, has been killed. He was in command of Co. D of the 113th Infantry. His home was at 206 Orange Street, Newark.

Lieut. Gerald Provost Thomas, reported missing, was a son of Rupert P. Thomas of Flushing, L. I. He has been missing since Sept. 22. He was a combat officer of the Seventeenth Aero Squadron and was last seen in battle with six German machines.

First Sergt. Alfred A. Reeves, Jr., of the 107th Infantry, has been severely wounded. He is a veteran of the 7th Regiment and a son of Alfred A. Reeves of 14 East Thirty-second Street. Shortly after he entered the Federal service, Sergeant Reeves married Miss Helen S. Pole, a daughter of Major W. S. Pole, the commandant of the Rock Island Arsenal.

Corporal William B. McDonald, killed, was a son of Mrs. Mary McDonald of 20 East Kingsbridge Road. He was a graduate of St. Francis Xavier College and a former member of the staff of The Pictorial Review.

Alexander C. Duane, killed on Sept. 29, was a son of Dr. Alexander Duane of 139 East Thirty-seventh Street and a brother of Captain Arthur Duane of the Marines, the latter being one of the Marine officers severely wounded at Château-Thierry. Private Duane was in the 107th Infantry.

Marquard Ward, a son of United States Judge Henry G. Ward, was killed at Cambrai. He was a member of Co. C of the 312th Infantry.

ARMY TO CARRY AIR MAIL.

New Service Announced in Plans of Lasting Military Value.

Captain Benjamin B. Lipsner, Director of the United States Aerial Mail Service, announced yesterday that the War Department had turned "hundreds of airplanes" over to the Post Office Department for use in its aerial mail service. It will mean, according to Captain Lipsner, that the department will begin at once the establishment of many new air mail lines all over the United States. The big cities of the country will be linked up first and the service will be extended as rapdly as the machines and the aviators become available.

Captain Lipsner said he was not in a position to announce at this time the exact number of airplanes the War Department had released for mail service, but he said the number was sufficient to extend the service to all the cities of the country. He said those in the service anticipate that they will be able to organize the personnel from hundreds of army aviators returning from the front. These men, trained in the business, will be placed at the disposal of the Air Mail Service just as rapidly as they reach the United States.

The fact that the Secretary of War turned the air machines over to the Post Office Department showed to those in the service that he is in full accord with the plan for the immediate and extensve use of the planes for mail purposes, and it was also pointed out that the last general Army Appropriation bill provided that such disposition should be made by the army of all superfluous material which it did not require for actual combat and training purposes.

It is expected that the first extension of the new service will be from New England to the Far South. The coast-to-coast route is expected to be taken up next. Not less than fifty aerial mail lines with the employment of at least 1,000 military aviators, will probably be established within a few weeks.

The Chicago-New York air mail service is to be started on December 15, it was announced yesterday. A Handley-Page machine is to be used for carrying the mail from this end. The Elizabeth terminus will be used and mail arriving there will be transferred to New York City by special train.

The first flight in the aerial mail service between New York and Washington using the Elizabeth terminus will take place today, according to an announcement by Captain Lipsner. Heretofore the New York terminus of this line has been at Belmont Park, L. I.

Harry Bowers Mingle, President of the Standard Aircraft Corporation of this city, made public yesterday a letter which he sent to the Food Administration in which he suggested the use of airplanes to solve the present railroad transportation problem in carrying food to starving millions in Russia. In his letter Mr. Mingle pointed out that thousands of airplanes are now in Europe and could be used for the purpose of transporting food.

MAYOR URGES BAKER TO CHECK SOLDIERS

Appeals to Daniels Also to Aid in Preventing Further Outbreaks.

ENRIGHT THREATENS FORCE

Police, He Says, Will Use Machine Guns, if Necessary, to Preserve the Public Peace.

Mayor Hylan has called upon the Federal authorities to prevent outbreaks by soldiers and sailors such as marked the meetings of Socialists at Madison Square Garden Monday night and in the Palm Garden in East Fifty-eighth Street on Tuesday night. Already seventy-two men have been detailed to assist the Police Department in curbing the men in the service.

The Mayor's appeal was addressed to Secretaries Baker and Daniels, Major Gen. J. Franklin Bell, Commander of the Department of the East, and Rear Admiral Nathaniel B. Usher, Commandant of the Third Naval District. The Mayor in his letter said it had been the custom of the police "to show extreme courtesy to men in uniform and we had always expected that they would reciprocate by conducting themselves in an orderly and lawful manner." At the present time, he added, many of the soldiers and sailors seem to think that the fact that they are in uniform gives to them the right "to conduct themselves as they please."

"It has become necessary for me," the Mayor concluded, "to issue orders to the police to accord the same treatment to men in uniform as to citizens when they become disorderly and incite riots. * * * I appeal to the Federal authorities to make immediate arrangements whereby the soldiers and sailors are kept under their control while they are in uniform and until they are discharged from the army and navy."

Mayor Hylan enclosed copies of a letter which Police Commissioner Enright had written to him calling attention to what he termed "the continued lawless conduct of uniformed soldiers and sailors in this city." The Commissioner said:

"There was a large meeting on Nov. 25 of the Socialists at Madison Square Garden. The meeting was progressing peacefully when about 500 soldiers, some armed with clubs, attempted to force an entrance into the west side of the building to break up the meeting and avenge some rumored insult to the American flag, which had never occurred. This large force of well-trained, hardened men would undoubtedly have prevailed against the foot police present had it not been for the foresight which provided a squadron of mounted police, who, together, finally dispersed the soldiers, thanks to the able manner in which the soldiers were handled. They merely broke some panes of glass and made an abortive attempt to batter down the doors.

"The approaching demobilization in the so-called 'good-bye' camps in this vicinity presents serious problems. They promise, unless we receive decisive cooperation from the Federal Government, to promote serious disorder and make difficult work for the police force of this city. The past encounters we have had with them invited the same rigorous measures that are demanded in dealing with lawless and riotous elements, whatever their character, and if the use of nightsticks, revolvers or perhaps even machine guns is necessary to preserve the public peace the police will be compelled to employ them."

RICHARD ENRIGHT WEDS.

Police Commissioner Marries Mrs. Jean P. Smith in Brooklyn.

Police Commissioner Richard Enright was married yesterday at noon to Mrs. Jean Patterson Smith of Brooklyn in St. Augustine's Roman Catholic Church, Sixth Avenue and Sterling Place, Brooklyn. The wedding, which was a surprise to even close friends of Mr. Enright, was attended only by Mayor and Mrs. Hylan, the Mayor's Secretary, Grover Whalen, former Police Inspector Edward T. Hughes, who acted as Mr. Enright's best man, and Mrs. Minnie Parker of New York, who was matron of honor. The ceremony was performed by Mgr. Edward W. McCarty, pastor of St. Augustine's.

A short time before noon Commissioner Enright and Mrs. Smith went to the Marriage License Bureau in Borough Hall, Brooklyn, where they obtained a license. They then motored to St. Augustine's Church. Immediately after the ceremony the party went by automobile to the Waldorf-Astoria, where a wedding luncheon was served. The Commissioner and his wife left in the afternoon for Atlantic City, where they will remain until Saturday, when they will sail for a stay of a month in Cuba. After their return they will live at 163 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn, where Mr. Enright has been making his home.

Mrs. Enright was the widow of John Perry Smith, an electrical engineer, who had offices in New York until his death ten years ago. Their only child, John Perry Smith, Jr., died eight years ago. Mrs. Smith afterward managed a boarding house at 54 Prospect Place, Brooklyn, where the Commissioner and his sister lived for three years, during the time that he was a Police Lieutenant stationed at the Stagg Street Station in Brooklyn. Six weeks ago Mr. Enright moved to the Martinique Apartment House, at 163 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn, and Mrs. Smith closed the boarding house and went to live with a friend, Mrs. Fordham Briggs, 2,135 Eighty-sixth Street, Bensonhurst. In the Marriage License Bureau she said that she was 39 years old.

Commissioner Enright described himself as a bachelor, 46 years old. He said that he was born in Campbell, Steuben County, and that his father, Michael Enright, came from Ireland.

MARCONI SELLS APPARATUS.

Government Takes Over Equipment on Ships and at Small Stations.

Edward J. Nally, Vice President and General Manager of the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of America, on his return from Washington, where he went for conference with the Navy Department, has made known a change in the policy of the Marconi Company, under which it will in future sell as well as lease wireless apparatus. The first result of this change has been the sale to the Government of the apparatus on some 300 ships now under Government control and all of the small coast stations which the Marconi Company has maintained in the past, but which it no longer needs under its new policy.

Mr. Nally stated that the terms of the sale were based upon the earning value of the stations and the apparatus, and added that the Secretary of the Navy had dealt with this question with the utmost fairness and with just consideration of the rights of the company's stockholders.

This transfer does not in any way affect the status of the company's large stations for transoceanic communication, but it is believed that it will have met every need of the Government for the control of domestic wireless, and that there will now be no occasion for the Government seeking to obtain control or ownership of the large high-power stations which were built with the principal object of rendering to the public international transoceanic wireless service in competition with the cables, which is by far the most important part of the Marconi Company's activities.

TAKES UP MOONEY PLEA.

California Governor Considers It—Secretary Wilson Lends Aid.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 27.—Assurance that the case of Thomas J. Mooney, under sentence of death, would receive "careful consideration" was given today by Governor William D. Stephens to members of a committee of the San Francisco Labor Council, who called to ask him to open the way for a retrial of the case.

This statement was made by D. C. Murphy, President of the California State Federation of Labor, who headed the committee. He said Governor Stephens did not indicate when he would act on Mooney's petition for a pardon or what course he would take.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—John R. Densmore, Director General of the Federal Employment Service, was instructed today by William B. Wilson, Secretary of Labor, to furnish to Governor Stephens of California, a copy of his report in the Mooney case. He also was directed to place himself entirely at the Governor's disposal. In a telegram notifying Governor Stephens of his action, Mr. Wilson revealed that the foreman of the Grand Jury at San Francisco, investigating charges of irregularity made in Mr. Densmore's report, had asked that the jury have a copy of the report.

Florida Senate for Prohibition.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Nov. 27.—The Florida State Senate today ratified the Federal constitutional prohibition amendment 25 to 2. The concurrent resolution now goes to the House.

HALF OF OUR FLEET MAY GO TO PACIFIC

Fall of German Sea Power Ends Necessity of Massing Forces in the Atlantic.

SIMS TO BE AN ADMIRAL

Gleaves to Succeed to Rank of Vice Admiral on Retirement of Admiral Knight.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—With the passing of German sea power the impelling strategic reason for keeping the main strength of the American Navy massed in the Atlantic Ocean no longer exists. Navy officers here expect, therefore, that the fleet will be divided when the war emergency has passed, and substantially one-half of the main fighting strength will go into a reorganized Pacific fleet.

Secretary Daniels indicated today that a general rearrangement of the fighting ships was to be expected. He gave no inkling of what was under consideration, however, his statement having been brought out when he announced that Vice Admiral Sims, commanding American naval forces in European waters, would be nominated to the rank of Admiral when Admiral Knight, commanding the Asiatic fleet, retired next month. Rear Admiral Gleaves, commanding the convoying forces, will be named by President Wilson for the vacant Vice Admiral's post thus created. No change in assignments will accompany the promotions, which will be made for merit.

Rear Admiral W. L. Rodgers succeeds to the command of the Asiatic fleet, relieving Admiral Knight, who already has started for home.

There are indications about the department that plans are already afoot for reviving the old European squadron. With the increased responsibilities of the United States in Europe due to the war and the expanding merchant marine, it is regarded as probable that a definite naval force will be maintained in European waters hereafter, and it is possible that steps may be taken toward establishing limited base facilities for the upkeep of the force.

The navy now has a station at the Azores, and officers believe an arrangement with the Portuguese Government, under which the station will be continued for some time, at least, is to be expected.

In discussing the future of the fleet, officers realize that the creation of a League of Nations may produce new considerations. As the United States is sponsor for the proposal for a world league, it is assumed that a concrete plan of action has been mapped out for President Wilson by his military advisers. This would include the proposal of an organization under which the combined fleets would operate to police the world.

The most practical way of arranging for an international police force of the seas, many officers believe, is to so provide that the locality of the disturbance to be quelled govern the composition of any international fleet to be sent to the scene. That also would obviate any difficulty as to selecting the officer to command.

Should trouble arise in a section of the world where British interests were dominant, it was suggested, the major portion of the naval forces to be assembled would be British, and the commander British, with squadrons of the other naval powers attached to show the unity of purpose. Where American interests were chiefly involved the fleet and commander would be American. This suggestion arises from the feeling among some officers that the idea of an international fleet under a supreme commander and kept constantly mobilized for operations in any theatre, is not practical. It was admitted, however, that nothing definite was known as to the plans which might have been evolved for carrying into execution the league idea.

DEMOBILIZE STUDENT ARMY.

War Department's Order Releases 150,000 in Country's Colleges.

Orders from the War Department for the demobilization of the Students' Army Training Corps, which was instituted on Oct. 1 in 500 colleges and universities throughout the country, were received in this city yesterday, and will result in the discharge in December of more than 5,000 students in this city and about 150,000 throughout the country from the United States Army.

Many of the students were either in college or about to enter before they became members of the corps, and will continue their studies, with the exception that military drill and instruction will be dropped. Major Earnshaw, in charge of the corps at Columbia University, estimated last night that between 800 and 900 of the students in the corps, which numbered 2,000, would remain at the university. Members of the corps who have been taking mathematics and other studies which form a part of the regular curriculum, will receive credit for work done in those studies when they return to the normal college course. Officers of the corps desiring to remain in military service, if recommended by their commanding officers, may continue in the service. The official order of demobilization read:

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26.

Sections A and B of the Students Army Training Corps are hereby ordered demobilized and men discharged according to the following procedure: Per 100 personnel officers now at Camp Sherman, who will return to district headquarters Nov. 29 and will hold schools on discharge paper work, at which the officer of your unit will attend with 100. Demobilization and discharge of Section B will begin Dec. 2. Section A Dec. 4. Medical examinations will be made by the medical officers assigned by the Surgeon General, who will report not later than Dec. 2. Preference in order of discharge will be given to men desiring to leave college.

Invite co-operation of college authorities in order to accomplish discharges as quickly as possible. Discipline and routine must be maintained and soldiers impressed with the value of receiving an excellent character discharge. Department instructors have been instructed to proceed, beginning Dec. 10, with discharge of officers, excepting those who wish to remain permanently in the service and recommended by their commanding officers. Department Commander has been directed to communicate to you provisions of the War Department concerning instructions relative to the final payment of officers and enlisted men.

New York institutions have already formulated tentative plans for resuming peace time curricula, and it is expected that the new Spring term which begins early in February will find the pre-war routine in full swing. The College of the City of New York has adopted a plan for discontinuing the present war courses beginning Dec. 1.

Chancellor E. E. Brown of New York University said the order meant the end of military education at New York University by the first of the new year.

"We already have arranged the courses of the University's work to be resumed on a civilian basis after Jan. 1," said the Chancellor. "At that time all possible credit will be given the students for the work done under the S. A. T. C. organization."

S. A. T. C. students of the New York University Medical and Veterinary Colleges will be little affected by the order, as these men enrolled for the University's courses.

After the Christmas holidays Princeton University will resume its normal life as a result of the War Department's order. The discharge of the corps will begin on Dec. 1 and will require about ten days. The first term will close Dec. 21 and the University will reassemble for its scholastic work Jan. 1. Those whose work this Fall has been satisfactory will be allowed to continue their studies and qualify for regular standing.

Jobs Open in Newark Industries.

According to an inquiry into labor conditions in Newark, made by E. A. Brennan, Superintendent of the local employment service, yesterday, there are more jobs open in Newark industries than there are men to fill them. Twenty-eight of these industries reported that there were 6,720 unfilled jobs. They had 52,644 men on the payroll yesterday.

THREE TRANSPORTS ARRIVE.

Reach Hampton Roads—More Nearly Ready to Leave England.

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 27.—The transports Pocahontas, Rotterdam, and President Grant, with returning troops, have put into Hampton Roads within twenty-four hours. The Rotterdam landed several hundred wounded men, who were sent to the Soldiers' Home Hospital at Hampton. Other troops will be distributed to camps to await mustering out.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Steamers will leave Liverpool the coming week with American troops aboard. The Ascanius will sale tomorrow with 1,530 officers and men of the American air forces. The Canopic will sail Nov. 29, with 1,060 aboard; the Adriatic, Nov. 30, with 2,175; the Cedric, Dec. 2, with 3,000.

The Empress of Britain will sail Dec. 2, with 2,880, including 480 sick; the Leviathan, Dec. 3, with 1,500 sick, and the Saxonia, Dec. 6, with 1,600 sick.

AMERICAN HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, Nov. 27, (Associated Press.)—There are at present on the sea homeward bound 547 officers and 10,448 men of the American Expeditionary Force.

On board the steamer Mauretania are twenty-four aero squadrons, two aero service units, casual officers and men, sick or wounded, totaling 165 officers and 3,834 men.

The steamer Minnekahda is taking aero squadrons, construction units and casuals aggregating 99 officers and 2,943 men. The Lapland has on board aero squadrons, casuals sick and wounded and also mixed casuals totaling 263 officers and 1,797 men.

The steamer Orca is transporting thirteen aero squadrons, one construction company and a casual medical detachment totaling 50 officers and 1,874 men.

To Drop Sugar Certificates.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Distribution of sugar under the certificate system will be discontinued Dec. 1 under an order issued today by the Food Administration. The administration emphasized that requests for conservation of sugar were in no way modified. Domestic consumers, it was said, would be expected to observe the voluntary ration of four pounds a person a month and public eating places would be required to use only four pounds of sugar for each 90 meals served.

Thanksgiving Doings for Soldiers, Sailors Marines

in U. S. and Allied Services

Our Boys, over there and over here, have put across the biggest Thanksgiving Day since the Pilgrim Fathers put it in the calendar.

New York War Camp Community Service starts its new after-the-war programme of work for the man who has made this the most thankful of all Thanksgiving Days, by introducing him to Father Knickerbocker as his Thanksgiving Day Guest.

Here is the W. C. C. S. Thanksgiving Day Hospitality Programme to make the man in khaki or blue feel that he is as much at home as he would be in his own home town:

GUIDES—Boy Scouts of New York and others representing the New York War Camp Community Service will guide you to centres of places of interest, or give you any information you wish.

THANKSGIVING SERVICES — Churches of the city will conduct special Thanksgiving and Victory Services. Usual hour is eleven o'clock. Special music and addresses. Officers and men in uniform will be welcomed.

Church of the Holy Communion, Sixth Ave. and 20th St.—Hon. George W. Wickersham, former United States Attorney General, will deliver an address on Thanksgiving Day, at 11 A. M.

Cathedral of St. John the Divine, Amsterdam Ave. and 113th St.—Special Victory Service, 11 A. M. Representatives of Allied Nations, Federal, State and Municipal Governments will attend. Addresses by Bishop Greer and Bishop Lloyd.

AUTOMOBILE TRIPS—New York City is you, friend. Take a ride. Watch out for automobiles bearing the sign, "Thanksgiving Day—Ride."

CHARGES NEGLECT IN CIVIL SERVICE

Reform League Committee Reports That Commissioners Are Incompetent.

SAYS WAR PROVED IT

Ordnance and Other Departments, Report Asserts, Had to Recruit Their Own Employes.

A committee of the National Civil Service Reform League which for some time has been investigating the United States Civil Service Commission has just reported that it finds the commissioners failed to measure up to their task during the war and are incompetent to meet the enormous demands of the reconstruction period. The report, made public today, is signed by Richard H. Dana of Boston, Professor Ellery C. Stowell of Columbia University, and others. The report says:

"In the reconstruction period that we are entering enormous demands will be made on the machinery of Government in which the United States Civil Service Commission is destined to play a vital part. Its task will be to provide and supervise what promises to be a tremendously increased body of public servants. The present Civil Service Commissioners have not the capacity for this new task. They lack the power of comprehending it. During the period of the war which is now closing the National Civil Service Reform League has endeavored to uphold this commission and co-operate with it, and has been silent to the public concerning its known failings; but the time has now come to say that the commission must, in the public interest, be reorganized for the following reasons:

"The commission did not realize the greatly increased demands which war conditions imposed upon it. Its registers of eligibles were quickly depleted, and yet not even the beginnings of effective recruiting methods were adopted until many months after war was declared. Even today the commission has neglected to use adequate methods of interesting the public in the Government civil service.

"No additional appropriations were sought from Congress after the declaration of war, until their annual estimate for the year beginning July 1, 1918. The commission also allowed a number of weeks to elapse before obtaining an allotment of $250,000 which had been obtained for it from the President's emergency fund on the ground that it would make no application for such funds until it had been 'officially informed' that the application would be granted. For months after the declaration of war it failed to adjust its examinations to war conditions. In many instances applicants had to wait long periods of time before they could be examined, and great numbers of examination papers were not rated for weeks after they had been completed, and meanwhile applicants secured other employment.

"Even as late as January, 1918, when it was known that there were not less than 20,000 anticipated vacancies, no adequate efforts were made to supply suitable lists. One result of this inefficiency was that many branches of the Government, including the Food and Fuel Administrations and the United States Employment Service were withdrawn from the competitive system. By reason of the failure of the commission to meet war conditions, the ordnance and other departments were compelled to duplicate the machinery of the commission and to establish extensive organizations to recruit essential civilian employes, recruit essential civilian employes.

"The league has already, in its letters of Jan. 5 and Feb. 26, 1918, urged the President to reorganize the commission on account of its 'inherent incapacity' in its war work, in spite of increased funds and unlimited opportunities, and although the league was assured by him in April last that at least a partial reorganization would be effected, yet, up to the present time, no change has been made. Even before the participation of our country in the present war, the commission disregarded its duty in the following particulars:

"It co-operated with the Post Office Department in obtaining the partisan reconstruction of the so-called Motor Rural Free Delivery Service by discharging, without reference to their efficiency, the carriers already in the service and filling their places by means of an examination and new eligible lists submitted to Congressmen. The commission has unnecessarily kept from the public its eligible lists and rating, so that it has been difficult and sometimes impossible to detect the political manipulations thereof. It refused to members of your league the opportunity to examine such lists for the purpose of ascertain whether or not the appointees stood highest or lowest among those certified and whether or not such appointments were probably due to partisan reasons."

The personnel of the commission according to the latest issue of the Congressional Directory is: Commissioners; John A. McIlhenny; President, Charles M. Galloway, Hermon W. Craven; Chief Examiner, George R. Wales; Secretary, John T. Doyle.

TRUNK VICTIM IDENTIFIED.

Bellaro Is Believed to Have Been Killed Through Jealousy.

The body found yesterday morning in a locked trunk on the sidewalk in front of 152 Mott Street, within three blocks of Police Headquarters, was identified last night as that of Joseph G. Ballaro, a shoemaker at 329 Fulton Street, Brooklyn. Evidence that Ballaro had been murdered by strangulation was obtained by an autopsy made by Drs. Norris and Schwartz of the County Medical Examiner's office. Police investigation of Ballaro's movements showed that he had been attacked and placed in the trunk between 9 o'clock and midnight, but whether this had occurred in Brooklyn or Manhattan has not yet been determined.

At 4 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon Ballaro, who had a home in Wyckoff Street, Brooklyn, went to 68 Cranberry Street and rented a furnished room, saying it was to be occupied by himself and wife. The police say he was not married. At 8:30 that night Ballaro and an unidentified man took possession of the room. The housekeeper, Mrs. Marion Tharau, told the police she did not hear the men depart. Ballaro, she said, had a roll of money—apparently $200—from which he paid the rent. None of this money was found on the body, but his watch and other jewelry were intact.

Ballaro's companion of the night before and a woman went to the Cranberry Street house yesterday morning and asked for him. It was then found by the housekeeper that Ballaro had not slept in the room. Search is being made for this man and woman and for a woman who telephoned to Ballaro's shop last night. The murder is believed to have been due to jealousy.

WHITMAN MAY DROP SUIT.

Will Abide by Court's Decision in the Ballot Case.

Should the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court decide against the appeal taken by attorneys of Governor Whitman from the decision of Justice Philbin regarding the opening of the ballot boxes for an examination of the ballots cast in the last election, the Governor, it was declared yesterday, will drop all legal proceedings and make no further effort to question the election of Alfred E. Smith. The fact that the Executive Committee of the Republican State Committee, which met on Tuesday, took no action regarding the Governor's demand for a recount has convinced him, it was said, that the leaders of his own party do not look with favor upon the stand he has taken since election.

Emil E. Fuchs, Abraham S. Gilbert, and Herbert R. Limberg, counsel for Governor Whitman in the court proceedings he has started, filed a brief yesterday with the Appellate Division on the appeal taken from Justice Philbin's decision that an examination of the ballots should not commence until the day after the issuance of the certificate of election to Mr. Smith by the Secretary of State. In their brief the attorneys state that they never contended that the Governor should call a special session of the Legislature to amend the law so as to prevent the issuance of a certificate of election until after the ballots had been counted. The brief adds:

"We do not claim that Mr. Smith was or was not elected. We merely claim that an examination of the ballots will show the true result, and if that true result be, or even if it apparently be, that Mr. Whitman received a plurality, we say that everything should be done by the courts as well as by the Legislature to secure the speediest possible judicial determination of the question of title to the office. This does not interfere in the slightest with the granting of the certificate of election to Mr. Smith. This does not interfere in the slightest with Mr. Smith's assuming the office and exercising its functions; only a judgment of ouster lawfully recovered would interfere therewith. It is remarkable that any one for a moment should suggest that legislation to expedite the trial of such an action would be improper."

A decision from the Appellate Division is expected to be handed down either tomorrow or Monday. Application for a review of the void and protested ballots cast in Queens in the recent election, made on behalf of Governor Whitman, was argued yesterday before Justice Callaghan in the Supreme Court at Long Island City. The Justice stated that the Appellate Division has before it an appeal taken to an order for a recanvass of the vote in Richmond County, and he would reserve decision until that court has acted.

Regan Sane; Baksa Trial Goes On.

Alienists examining James F. Regan, the Sing Sing convict who confessed to killing Mrs. Helen Hamel at 507 West Twenty-third Street on Feb. 13, decided yesterday that he was legally sane. Other convicts will be brought here and questioned concerning the statement volunteered by Regan, as the District Attorney is not willing to accept Regan's confession without further corroboration. Pending that, it is the intention of the prosecutor to resume the trial of Elizabeth Baksa tomorrow on the charge of murdering Mrs. Hamel. Mr. Swann said the question of Regan's veracity is a matter for the jury to determine.

HENRY P. DAVISON RETURNS.

Miss Anne Morgan and John W. Davis Also Here from France.

Among the 223 passengers who arrived yesterday on a French steamship from France were several well-known Americans who have been engaged in war work with the United States and the allied forces. One of the first to land was Henry P. Davison, Chairman of the American Red Cross, who has been abroad three months inspecting the work done by his organization at the French and Italian fronts, and also among the refugees in Belgium and Northern France. He was accompanied by several officers of the Red Cross, who were in uniform, and will give out a statement in Washington tomorrow.

Miss Anne Morgan, who has spent several months in France rebuilding the devastated villages near Senlis, which were wrecked by the Germans in their first march on Paris, was another passenger. John W. Davis, newly appointed United States Ambassador to Great Britain, arrived on the steamship from Berne, where he was sent to attend the conference of the representatives of the Allies with those of the Central Powers over the exchange of prisoners of war. He expects to leave for London next month to take up his new post. Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, who has been spending two years with her daughter, Lady Ward, in London, also returned. Henry J. Allen, the newly elected Governor of Kansas and editor of The Wichita Beacon, arrived after serving eighteen months in France for the Y. M. C. A.

On account of President Wilson's coming trip to France all the cabins on the next two French steamships leaving this port have been booked. According to a cable dispatch received yesterday from Paris, the hotel rates for December have been doubled, and food is nearly as dear as in New York. In addition there is a tax of 10 per cent. upon all bills at restaurants amounting to more than 6 francs, which in United States currency is $1.20.

HEAR! PROHIBITION!!

WINE VAULT CLEARANCE

The manufacture and importation of liquors have been stopped—and now President Wilson has signed the Emergency Agricultural Appropriation Bill with its legislative rider for NATIONAL PROHIBITION after June 30, 1919, and until the American Army is demobilized, which we think will require from two to three years. It is expected that the new REVENUE ACT soon to take effect will increase all prices by the addition of larger taxes than the world has ever known.

THE House of HENRY HOLLANDER, established for forty-one years and recognized as one of the leading wholesale Wine and Liquor Importing Houses in the United States, is conducting a WINE VAULT CLEARANCE SALE for the immediate disposal of its merchandise and the liquidation of its business.

We offer for immediate sale—famous Vintage Champagnes, Brandies, Burgundies, Clarets, Moselles, Ports, Sherries, Cordials, Gins and Scotch, Bourbon and Rye Whiskies. We have also a limited quantity of fine Virgin Italian Olive Oil imported in tins.

All our merchandise is of international repute, many of the brands are no longer on the market and not obtainable elsewhere. We have always imported and carried great reserve stocks for our discriminating wholesale trade, including the most exclusive restaurants, hotels and clubs.

We have also large stores of the more popular and less expensive Wines, Gins, Whiskies and Cordials, which we are selling either cased or in bulk, at lower prices than they can be bought elsewhere.

Our enormous stocks are being disposed of without reservation. Quick action is to your advantage—BUY NOW before new taxes are imposed—prices are advancing daily.

If not convenient to visit our establishment, telephone or telegraph for our representatives, who will bring complete information and price lists.

COLUMBIA-SYRACUSE BATTLE TODAY

FORDHAM TO PLAY GEORGETOWN TODAY

Local Interest Centres in Annual Gridiron Battle Between Traditional Rivals.

PITT MEETS PENN STATE

For First Time in Many Years the Columbia Team Will Play Away from Home.

The Thanksgiving Day football menu does not contain as many tempting gridiron morsels as in past years, but there will be plenty of pigskin chasing just the same. The real Thanksgiving Day football enthusiasm, however, will not be in this country, but in France, Italy, and Belgium, where the Yankee soldiers, now with plenty of time on their hands, will play so many games that it will be impossible to keep track of them. Thousands of footballs have been sent to the other side by the Knights of Columbus and the Y. M. C. A., and since hostilities ceased, football has become the favorite diversion for the American Expeditionyra Forces.

New York's best football attraction will be the clash of the traditional rivals, Fordham and Georgetown, at Fordham Field at 2:30. While neither team is up to the usual standards, nevertheless a real battle is expected between the student army organizations. The Georgetown squad arrived here last night, and such stars as Gilroy and McQuade are missing from the lineup. Georgetown, nevertheless, has some good players in Corbin, Flacin, and Hempston.

Fordham has a star in Captain Frisch, while Manly, Gannon, and Barnes are players of unusual talent. The eleven coached by Eddie Siskind this season is light but fast.

The lineup of today's game is as follows:

Fordham.	Position.	Georgetown.
Garvey	L. E.	Zazello
Mahony	L. T.	Ahearn
Walters	L. G.	Gogin
Van Wie	C.	Heaply
Ross	R. G.	Flaherty
Farrington	R. T.	Moran
Cornelly	R. E.	Reid
Manly or Barnes, Q. B.		Hempston
Frisch	L. H. B.	Corbin
Golden	R. H. B.	Flacin
Gannon	F. B.	Buckley

For the first time in several years Columbia will play an out-of-town game, meeting Syracuse in that city this afternoon. The Orange will give Dawson's eleven a harder test than it has had this year, and a victory over O'Neill's team would be quite a feather in Columbia's cap. The annual gridiron fixture at Philadelphia, the Cornell-Pennsylvania game, is not on the card this season, and in Cornell's place will be Dartmouth. The Green eleven suffered a severe defeat last week at the hands of Brown and Pennsylvania should not have much trouble in scoring a victory.

There is more than ordinary interest in the Pittsburgh-Penn State game at Pittsburgh, not that State has much of a chance with the Panthers, but it will be a demonstration of Hugo Bezdek's coaching methods. The coach from the Northwest has been handicapped this year by lack of material and also by a topsy-turvy schedule, so that his charges cannot hope to do much against the Warner eleven which so decisively crushed the Golden Tornado. Holy Cross and Boston College will have its annual game in Boston.

There will be an abundance of games between service elevens, and the clash between Camp Dix and the Brooklyn Navy Yard elevens at the City College Stadium, beginning at 3:30, has much local interest. The Camp Dix team will be busy for the next couple of weeks, as Saturday they play Camp Upton at Newark and the following week will have an intersectional game with Camp Greenleaf at Washington.

Camp Merritt will play the Princeton Paymasters School team at Hackensack, while this morning Pelham Bay and Fort Slocum will play at Travers Island.

It will be the big day of the year for the high school elevens about New York and important games will be played at the Polo Grounds and at Ebbets Field.

Service football teams will hold the centre of the stage in the Middle West gridiron contests. Interest centers in the clash between the undefeated Chicago Naval Reserves and Camp Grant at Chicago. Camp Dodge and Camp Funston will meet at Kansas City. Camp Sherman will meet Camp Taylor at Louisville. The Michigan Aggies-Wisconsin game at Madison and the battle between Notre Dame and Nebraska at Lincoln are the outstanding games of the intercollegiate schedule.

ROBB TO LEAVE COLUMBIA.

Football Captain May Play His Last Game Against Syracuse Today.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 27.—The Columbia University football squad of twenty-five players, accompanied by Coach Fred Dawson, arrived here this afternoon for their game with Syracuse in the Stadium tomorrow afternoon. It will be the first out-of-town game Columbia has played in many years.

Coach Dawson took his squad directly from the train to the field and had a work-out until dark. He announced he will have his players out again tomorrow morning for a brief limbering up.

Syracuse will start the same lineup as used against Michigan and the Blue and White probably will start as against New York University last week.

Lieutenant Harry Robb, captain of the Columbia team, has been designated to take the two weeks' course in the Princeton school for the training of S. A. T. C. athletic directors and may have to report after tomorrow's game. The future of the S. A. T. C. at Columbia is shrouded in mystery and it may be that Lieutenant Robb's orders will be changed because it is uncertain that Columbia will retain its S. A. T. C. after the end of the year.

BATTLE FOR SCHOOL TITLE.

Clinton and Commerce Elevens to Play at Polo Grounds.

Gridiron elevens of De Witt Clinton and Commerce High Schools will struggle on the Polo Grounds this afternoon for the Manhattan-Bronx district championship title. The contest is an annual affair between the two schools and furnishes the biggest local scholastic football attraction. An added interest is lent the game this year because of the fact that the victorious eleven will gain the championship. The game will start at 2 o'clock.

In Brooklyn, a generous scholastic football entertainment is offered. A triple-header has been arranged for Ebbets Field, between six of the leading teams of the borough across the bridge. This carnival will start at noon with a game between Commercial H. S. and New Utrecht H. S. At 1:30 o'clock it is planned to have a game commence between Manual Training H. S. and Boys' H. S., and the climax will be furnished, starting at 3 o'clock, by teams of Erasmus Hall H. S. and Poly Prep H. S.

Flushing High School's eleven will tackle the Central H. S. contingent of Binghamton, N. Y., at Binghamton. This game is an annual contest between the two teams and is regarded as the most important of the season for both schools. Last year the Long Islanders were defeated through a safety. The Flushing boys are confident they will redeem this setback this afternoon.

No Flushing-Erasmus Game.

Any hopes that might have existed that Flushing High School and Erasmus Hall High School football elevens would clash in a post-season game for the championship of Brooklyn were dispelled yesterday. It developed that one of the by-laws of the Board of Education prohibits scholastic gridiron teams from participating in more than nine games during a season. Erasmus Hall's ninth game will be played today.

MARANVILLE GRIDIRON HERO

Scores Two Touchdowns for U. S. S. Pennsylvania Eleven.

Rabbit Maranville, the short stop of the Boston Braves and now in the United States Navy, played a sensational game at quarter back for the football eleven of the United States steamship Pennsylvania in a game against the United States steamship New Mexico at Prospect Park yesterday afternoon. Pennsylvania won 20 to 0 mainly through the efforts of Maranville, who scored two of the touchdowns for his team and kicked two of the goals.

Pennsylvania's first touchdown came after Maranville caught a forward pass from Matthews and raced 45 yards for a touchdown. Later in the game Maranville again broke loose and scored another touchdown after a run of 75 yards.

The lineup:

Penn., (20.)	Position.	New Mexico. (0.)
Chevik	L. E.	Meyers
Shannon	L. T.	Ward
Falway	L. G.	Claise

Matthews	F. B.	Cochrane

Touchdowns—Maranville, (2.) Kiser. Goals from touchdowns—Maranville, 2. Referee—Mr. Aiken. Time of periods—Ten and twelve minutes.

PELHAM BAY FIVE VICTOR.

Beats Federal Rendezvous Basket Ball Team by 27 to 19.

Pelham Bay Naval Training Station's basket ball team defeated the Federal Rendezvous quintet in an interesting game last night by a score of 27 to 19. The contest was played in the new armory at Pelham Bay and was witnessed by a crowd of about 3,000 bluejackets.

The Pelham Bay tars showed the way in the score for the greater part of the game, but the Federal Rendezvous jackies never ceased to be dangerous. The score at half-time favored Pelham Bay's quintet by 17 to 10.

The lineup:

Pelham Bay. (27.)	Position.	Federal R., (19.)
Waite	L. F.	Holeman
Stapleton	R. F.	Weismuller
Mooney	C.	De Marse
Sinberg	L. G.	Bergkamp
Buckner	R. G.	Brawler

Field goals—Waite, (2.) Stapleton, (2.) Mooney, (2.) Sinberg, (4.) Brucker, (2.) Holeman, (3.) Bergkamp, (3.) Brawler, (2.) Goals from foul—Stapleton, (2.) Brucker. Holeman, (2.) Brawler. Referee—Lieutenant Cochran. Time of halves—Twenty minutes.

GILLESPIE STAR OF GAME.

De La Salle Shoots Eleven Goals Against Columbia Grammar.

De La Salle Institute's basket ball quintet scored an overwhelming victory over the Columbia Grammar School five yesterday on the De La Salle court by the score of 50 to 16. The victorious team got off to a flying start and never relinquished the lead.

Gillespie's work stood out as the greatest factor in the De La Salle triumph. He scored eleven field baskets.

The lineup:

De La Salle, (50.)	Position.	Col. Gram., (16.)
Carroll	R. F.	Rosenwasser
Murphy	L. F.	Ryan
Gillespie	C.	Jackson
Brophy	L. G.	Baker
O'Reilly	L. G.	Tapien

Field goals—Carroll, Murphy, (5.) Gillespie, (11.) Brophy, (3.) O'Reilly, (4.) Lynch, Rosenwasser, (2.) Ryan, (2.) Jackson, (3.) Goals from foul—Ryan, 2. Substitutions—For De La Salle: Gaffney for Brophy, Lynch for Carroll; for Columbia Grammer: Trusieg for Teplan. Referee—Brother Williams, De La Salle. Time of halves—Fifteen minutes.

SOCCER ELEVENS PLAY TIE.

Morris and Curtis Teams Battle in Scoreless Game.

Soccer elevens representing Morris High School and Curtis High met yesterday at Crotona Park in their P. S. A. L. championship game, which originally had been scheduled for Saturday. After two full periods, during which neither side was able to score, the game went on record as a tie.

Morris High, with a total of six victories, two ties and one defeat, retained third place in the competition, below the High School of Commerce and Evander Childs.

PROS PLAY CLOSE MATCH.

Anderson and Mothersell Victors on Home Green.

After being down practically all the way around, Carl Anderson, unattached, and Charles Mothersell of White Sulphur Springs defeated Tom Boyd of the home club and Tom Mulgrew of Hackensack in a professional four-ball match at the Fox Hills Golf Club yesterday afternoon by 1 up, the contest being decided on the home green.

The winners found themselves 1 down at the fourth, the only hole won or lost on the outward half. Halved holes followed until the sixteenth was reached, where Anderson squared the match by getting a 3, the other pair needing 4. The seventeenth was halved, but Mothersell won the home hole and the match for his side. He laid a beautiful mashie niblick shot close to the pin and ran down his putt for a 3, one under par.

GREENLEAF GAINS IN GAME.

Defeats Concannon, 136 to 100, in Afternoon Match.

Ralph Greenleaf gained thirty-six points yesterday in the two blocks of his 1,200 points pocket billiards match with Joseph Concannon at Daly's Academy. The Westerner, however, is still eighty points behind in the total score. Greenleaf made his gain in the afternoon session, which ended with him on the long end of a 136 to 100 score. The Westerner ran out his string in eight innings, making high runs of 44 and 41. Concannon had high runs of 38 and 28.

In the evening, the players struggled along for twelve innings in a close match, which ended with both making 100 points. Concannon was the first to round out his century, but when he did Greenleaf was only one point behind him, so that Concannon had no chance to add to his score. Concannon's high runs were 41 and 38, while Greenleaf's was 36.

The total score now favors Concannon by 600 to 520.

FIRST RUTGERS SCRIMMAGE.

Sanford Manages to Give Men Initial Hard Work of Season.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 27.—The Rutgers football team managed to get in its first scrimmage practice of the season this afternoon, enough students responding to the appeal of Captain Feitner to form two teams. Scrimmage was held for thirty minutes, during which the 'Varsity tried out successfully several new plays to be sprung against Syracuse at the Polo Grounds Saturday afternoon.

Coach Sanford believed that it was lack of condition which was responsible for the defeat at the hands of Great Lakes two weeks ago, and he is directing every effort to develop stamina and endurance among the players. Baker, Kelly, Neuschafer and Francke did not take part in the scrimmage, as Sanford is taking no chances in having them injured before Saturday.

PROTESTS SCHOOLBOY RUN.

Flushing Claims Harriers Did Not Cover Proper Course.

A. H. Killan of Flushing High School formally entered a protest yesterday against the awarding of titles in the high schools championship cross-country run which was held last Saturday. Mr. Killan's protest was contained in a letter to Henry J. Silverman, Chairman of the Public Schools Athletic League Cross-Country Committee, in which the Flushing representative stated that the official course had not been followed by the runners.

FAVORITE IS UPSET BY MATINEE IDOL

Cleveland Entry, Cleverly Ridden by McCrann, Wins Versailles Purse at Bowie.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 27.—The Cleveland Stable's Matinee Idol upset a good thing this afternoon in the Versailles Purse, at a mile, in which the Meadow Brook Stock Farm's Kashmir was a strong favorite. Little McCrann had the mount on Matinee Idol, which moved with greater freedom than in his recent races here. Kashmir was slow to begin and McCrann rode such a strong finish on Matinee Idol that he had no trouble in retaining his lead to the wire.

The Beach Stable, of which R. F. Carman is the leading spirit, had a successful afternoon. In the second race for two-year-olds, Wyndover carried the colors of the Beach Stable to the front, and in the sixth Jusqu' au Bout made it a double by defeating a large field at a mile and seventy yards.

Godfrey Preece, Jr., came back into the limelight in the seventh race, where he had the mount on B. Gray's Crumpsall, a four-year-old gelding that has run disappointingly for other riders. Young Preece coaxed Crumpsall along and he managed to get home in front of Fountain Fay. It was a remunerative victory for the backers of Crumpsall, as he paid $74.60 for $2.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE.—For maiden 2-year-old fillies, five and a half furlongs. High Born Lady, 114 pounds, (T. Rice,) $4.70, $3.80, and $3.40, won; Miss Voski, 114, (J. McTaggart,) $5 and $3.80, second; Wilfreda, 114, (L. McAtee,) $8, third. Time—1:08 1-5. Ilse Samuels, Keynote, Elected II., Toy, Rhaise, Speedy Lady, Baby Girl, Indian Spring, and Subterfuge also ran.

SECOND RACE.—For 2-year-olds, selling; six and a half furlongs. Wyndover, 100 pounds, (L. Stalker,) $9.10, $3.60, and $2.70, won; Dr. Rae, 107, (J. McTaggart,) $3.80 and $3.80, second; Poultney, 110, (T. Rice,) $3, third. Time—1:20 3-5. King Terry, Vigilante, Barlocker, and Belario also ran.

THIRD RACE.—For 3-year-olds and upward, selling; six and a half furlongs. Pepper, 110 pounds, (W. O'Brien,) $21.30, $7.20, and $5.80, won; Louise V., 112, (L. Stalker,) $8.50 and $3.90, second; Home Sweet Home, 114, (H. Meyers,) $12.30, third. Time—1:21. Orlando of Havana, Onleo, Maada, Malvollo, Beelight, Frederick the Great, Amackassin, and King Agrippa also ran.

GIANTS TO MEET RED SOX.

Exhibition Games Arranged for Spring Training Season.

BOSTON, Nov. 27.—H. H. Frazee, President of the Boston American League Club, announced tonight that exhibition games had been arranged between the Red Sox and the New York National League Club in the South during the Spring training season next year.

Mr. Frazee said he understood the Giants were not to train in Marlin, Texas, next season. The Red Sox have received propositions to train in California and Florida.

KINSELLA DIES IN FRANCE.

Son of Giants' Baseball Scout Succumbs to Disease.

Word has just been received here of the death of Raymond Kinsella, eldest son of Richard F. ("Dick") Kinsella, former scout of the Giants and also the Yankees, while in the service overseas. Death, which was due to disease, came on the day that the armistice was declared.

DUPUY AND GERWIG ARRIVE.

French Cyclists Here to Take Part in Six-Day Race.

Marcel Dupuy and Rene Gerwig, the two French riders who will participate in the six-day bicycle race which starts on Sunday at midnight at Madison Square Garden, arrived here yesterday on board the French liner Espagne, from Bordeaux.

Both Dupuy and Gerwig will compete in the sprint races to be held in the Garden Saturday night. In addition, they will start in the ten-mile race for cyclists who are to compete in the six-day grind. A four-cornered race in five heats will be held between Kramer, Francesco Verri, Dupuy, and Bob Spears, and there will also be a ten-mile motor-paced race in which George Wiley, champion, will compete against Verri, Frank Corry, Vincenzo Madona, and Clarence Carman. In a half-mile handicap race Gus Lang and Lloyd Byron will start from scratch.

Athletic Games at Camp Merritt.

The officials of the New York A. C. will conduct a novel set of track and field games at Camp Merritt, Tenafly, N. J., Saturday afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock. In addition to a program of athletic events there will be mule races, bicycle races, and a motor side-car race. The camp will be thrown open to civilians for the first time, and arrangements are being made for the accommodation of a large crowd.

AMERICA
THE LIGHT BEARER

TWO hundred and ninety-eight years ago December a tiny band of men and women who feared God and nothing else sought sanctuary from religious persecution on a continent where creed and dogma were unknown.

Being human they had their faults, but lack of noble purpose was not one of them.

They dreamed of a nation whose bond of union should be tolerance; a nation just in peace, dauntless in war, prolific in charity; a nation not created to be served by men but to produce them; a nation to bear a great new light before the world.

They put their vision into prayers and these were answered. Children reared to struggle with the wilderness became men of great power and women of rare spirit and attainments—a people the breath of whose nostrils was freedom; a race to whom fetters were death.

Generation followed generation and the microcosm became a giant, yet through ebb and flow and surge, through struggle within and warfare without, the heart of the child never aged and the vision of the fathers never dimmed.

And then in the full vigor of its manhood a dark shadow fell upon the world; a blight and a curse descended on the innocent and helpless throughout a neighbor continent, a haughty challenge crossed the seas, a blood-stained gauntlet was hurled in the face of peace loving America.

Praise be to God Almighty, the strain ran true! The race of free men that had never sought or feared a quarrel put its crushing strength behind the jointed line of its blood brothers and the savior nation of its infant days and quickly turned the tide. Oppression bit the dust. The world Autocracy had ravaged lay clinging in its wounds and its bereavements to the strong young hand just interposed in time.

So dawns "the day" for America—no day of conquest but a day of proof, no day of murder, rape and arson but a day of service, no day of Hohenzollern savagery but a day of ministration to men and women who have no other recourse.

A day of opportunity unique in all the history of nations. A day of thankfulness and deep humility. The day for which our land came into being, for which we have been blessed with vast resources, for which our institutions have been moulded. The day when half the world wants bitterly of every creature comfort and all the world wants new foundations for its moral life.

A crucial day—for as we sow within it so all the world shall reap; a terrible day if our national character should fail.

Derision of the Pilgrims was a fad in our less thoughtful years—but they were giants in the qualities most needed to bear our load today. Let us forgive their austerity to acquire their consecration, let us see beyond their mirthlessness and reverence the self abnegation of their lives, let us shoulder our magnificent privilege of sharing with all humanity the civilization they bequeathed us in the same unshakable conviction that where the purpose is right and the spirit humble men do not set forth on life's great undertakings alone.

MARGARET ROMAINE MAKES OPERA BOW

Sister of Hazel Dawn Sings Musetta in "La Boheme" and Wins Warm Welcome.

NEW BARITONE APPEARS

Luigi Montesanto as Marcello—Mme. Alda a Delightful Mimi—Papi Conducts with Spirit.

By JAMES GIBBONS HUNEKER.

Last night at the Metropolitan Opera House "La Bohème" was sung for the first time this season. There were several newcomers in the cast, which follows: Crimi as Rodolfo, Chalmers, Schaunard, Malatesta, Benoit, Frances, Alda, Mimi, Audisio, Parpignot, Luigi, Montesanto, Marcello, (début.) Segurolo, Colline; Ananian, Alcindro; Margaret Romaine, Musetta, (début,) and Reschiglian, the Seargint. Mr. Papi conducted. The opera was sung in Italian.

This favorite work is fast becoming like Hamlet; no competent singer can fail in it, so "grateful" are the rôles, so appealing the story. Our first Mimi was Marcella Sembrich, and, apart from her superior artistry, she remains our ideal, though she was not a young woman at the time. Fritzi Scheff, the original Musetta at the Metropolitan Opera House, thought Mme. Sembrich not juvenile enough, and almost upset the performance with her diabolical pranks. Nevertheless, Sembrich remains in our memory a peerless Mimi Pinson, and we have seen and heard Melba, Zelie de Lussan, Lina Cavalieri, Alice Nellson and Frances Alda, among others. On the present occasion it was again Alda, and a delightful impersonation is hers.

We wonder how many of the younger generation who enjoy the mimic woes and mock ecstacies of Mimi and her Bohemian crew have read Henry Mürger's "Vie de Bohème, (1851.) It is a pasteboard Bohemia he describes, but effervescing with the shallow life of the Latin Quarter, where abounded impossible grisettes, where existence was a transition between the heaven of a five-franc piece furiously pursued and the hell of blackest misery, of starvation, the pawnshops, and a cellar for a bedroom. We regret that Mimi and Musetta have passed away. Did they ever exist? No vice is quite so heartless as the sentimental, has written Benjamin Wells. True, Mürger's "Life in Bohemia" is as unusual as his other fiction, "The Water Drinkers," ("Buveurs d'Eau,") which no one has ever cared to read twice. The novelist died rather young, though not from drinking water. But his book lives because its very title is the symbol of youth eternal, merry, reckless youth, wasting its precious treasures as if tomorrow never would come.

Was there ever a Bohemia of the poets and artists, of which John Boyle O'Reilly sung: "I'd rather live in Bohemia than other land?" Or is its "sea coast" a Shakespearean fantasy?

The illusions of the middle-age die hardest. At twenty in Paris we sorrowfully discovered that there was no such enchanted spot as the Latin Quarter. An old Frenchman informed us that Paris had seen the last of the famous Quarter after the Commune; but a still older person asserted that the Latin Quarter had not been in existence since 1848, when the swelling tide of democracy swept away the darling superstitions of the students, many of whom became well to do bourgeoisie when Napoleon the Little grasped the crown. This we set down to pure legend. Have we not seen young poets, painters, sculptors, and musicians traverse the Boul' Mich' during the exposition year of 1878? And they still pranced about the cafés and brasseries in 1914, their hair as long as their thirst.

The loss of such a long-treasured illusion severely smote us, although when you are young one illusion crowds out another. It is after you have crossed the Great Divide, with the Mountains of the Moon behind you, and the prospect of an increasing waist measurement, that the annulment of such a cherished image as Bohemia wounds your soul. But, while there may be no Latin Quarter in real life, the Latin Quarter is in the heart of young people; them that follow the elusive, golden fleece of art. These commonplaces tumble about in your mind, and you wonder whether Puccini's sparkling music won't outlive the sentimental novel of the Frenchman. Who shall say!

The general performance was spirited. There were both ginger and mustard at the tip of Conductor Papi's baton, some of which would have been welcome during the recent "Boris" interpretation. Mme. Alda's voice showed traces of her indisposition—she has suffered from a severe cold since "Marouf"—so her work in Act I. was not in her usual form; her last top tone did not come off successfully, but in the third act she was more like her artistic self—that act wherein Puccini temporarily assumes the singing robes of Mascagni in the midst of a "Lodoliteta" snowstorm. Luigi Montesanto, a new baritone long announced, made his first appearance as Marcello. He has a pronounced personality and a voice with a Buenos Aires vibrato; however, as the evening waxed he sang steadier and with more mellowness. Crimi gave us some of the best singing as Rudolfo that he has thus far vouchsafed us; also some of the worst. The music lies well for his capital tenor and an agreeable voice when he doesn't force it; but he does force it, and he often abuses portamento and resorts to "tearful" tones, reinforced with the glottis-stroke, all of which make him an idol of the groundlings. Histrionically his Rodolfo is not striking.

The débutante was Margaret Romaine as the vivacious Musetta. She is an American girl who graduated from light opera when she went to Paris to the Opera Comique. She is a sister of Hazel Dawn, not unknown to the amusement world, and if she continues as she began on this occasion Hazel Dawn will probably be known as the sister of Margaret Romaine. She is young, good looking, temperamental, possesses a brilliant soprano, hard and wiry in the upper ranges—no doubt due to excusable nervousness—and her mimicry is dynamic, to put it mildly. She is also crude. She carried her second act lyric across by sheer strength. And she won. Her auditors rose to the compelling volition of the fiery lady and Miss Romaine made the "hit" of the evening.

To be sure, she was reckless and too petulant, and she soubretted all over the stage—not altogether artistic are her methods—but there is vitality in her singing and acting and too much zeal. She will tone down later on, or else pay the penalty of such exaggerations. Monotony will trail after her. She wasn't monotonous last night, therefore she enjoyed a warm welcome. The male singers were familiarly cast, and the second act was played with the usual rush and snarah.

Brooklyn Eagle 77 Years Old.

A program in observance of the seventy-seventh anniversary of the founding of The Brooklyn Eagle was held last night in the auditorium of The Eagle, at Washington and Johnson Streets, Brooklyn. A medal in recognition of long service was presented to William H. Sutton, who was been a member of the organization for seventy-five years. He is 88 years old. Other service medals presented were: Robert E. Clark, 50 years, and Arthur M. Howe, editor in chief; Harris M. Christ, news editor; Frank G. Rininsland, Herman Helms, Fremont D. Ellis, William Jenkins, David A. Hamaker, and Edward McDonald, twenty-five years' service. A bust of the late Emma Bullet, Paris correspondent for thirty-two years, was unveiled by Mrs. H. E. Krehbiel.

'ROADS OF DESTINY' AFTER O. HENRY

'A THEME WITH VARIATIONS'

Tense and Novel Scenes Very Ably Acted by Florence Reed, John Miltern, and Others.

ROADS OF DESTINY, a melodrama in a prologue and three acts by Channing Pollock; suggested by O. Henry's story of the same name. At the Republic.

David Marsh.....Edmond Lowe
Alec Harley.....Malcolm Williams
Ann Harley.....Alma Belwin
Lewis Marsh.....John Miltern
A Voice.....Alma Kruger
Rose Le Claire.....Florence Reed
Pious McPherson.....John Daly Murphy
Jim Gleason.....Claude Brooke
Long Tom Kirk.....Edwin Walter
The Barkeep.....Charles A. Sellon

For once in a blue moon, a tale by the incomparable O. Henry has been positively improved in its stage version. In the original of "Roads of Destiny" the hero, upon reaching the parting of the ways, foresees clairvoyantly the different adventures that await him to the right and to the left. They are "romantic" costume adventures in old France, and both end with his death, shot by the same revolver. In dismay he turns back—only to die at home by the selfsame instrument. The upshot is sheer fatalism.

In the stage rendering Channing Pollock has tempered the doctrine of fatalism with an idea which is more in tune with Occidental thought, and which is probably truer. Fate, inexorable as it is, is shown not as a mere arbitrary decree of the gods, but as being, in some measure at least, the result of character. The power which decrees our ends is within ourselves—the things we think and are.

The setting is of course modern and American. The first and last episodes are in a Nebraska farmhouse, and the two roads lead to a gambling hell in Alaska and a fashionable house party at Roslyn, L. I. In deference to a very natural predilection of audiences, the victim of the revolver is not the hero, nor yet the woman he loves. It is his fate to attain happiness over the dead body of some one who loves him.

He is indeed a young man given to self-sacrifice, and, in two of the three episodes which make up the play, Mr. Pollock intimates that there are crises in life in which self-sacrifice is most unwise—humanly impossible. In the theatre at least, that is a thought of great price. The whole play, in fact, is distinctly above the thing to which we are accustomed in contemporary drama—deeply intelligent in its basic conception, witty and otherwise felicitous in the writing, and most telling dramatically.

The scene of the Long Island house party is one of the most skillful and poignant bits of emotional drama in the literature of our stage. The note of luxury is there, but not in excess. The rich man is voluptuous and villainous—but quite credibly so. A woman has given her virtue for the man she loves, and finally ends her life to bring him happiness. This is if you will, the old stuff of melodrama, but not once is the note of melodrama sounded. The whole episode is so human, so dexterously modulated to its climaxes, so tense in every word and action, that one realizes the antiquity of the materials out of which the scene is made only as an afterthought.

A part of this effect—and of the effect of the play as a whole—is due to the excellence of the acting. Florence Reed and Alma Belwyn, as the two women in love, and Edmond Lowe and John Miltern as the hero and villain, respectively, give characterizations that have the bloom of life upon them and play together to crises which, at their most dramatic, have the tang of refreshing actuality.

Not the least interesting feature of the play is that it gives three of the leading actors scope for widely varied characterizations. In addition to her emotional "society" rôle, Miss Reed is a French adventuress, croupier among gambling miners and a half crazed farm girl, betrayed by the man she loves. Each character is flawlessly realized, each part played with inerrant power. John Miltern is equally successful as the weakling brother of the hero, the proprietor of the gambling house and the millionaire voluptuary. Alma Belwin has parts less sharply differentiated, but her performances are no less admirable in their subtlety and sympathetic quality. Edmund Lowe, as the hero, has less opportunity to display versatility, but is a manly, convincing figure throughout.

JANE COWL EXPLAINS.

Tells Why She Took Leading Role in "The Crowded Hour."

Continued receipt of threatening letters by Jane Cowl as the result of her appearance here as the star of "The Crowded Hour," yesterday led that actress to explain her position to a gathering of newspapermen. The leading rôle of the play was originally acted, and is now being played in Chicago, by Willette Kershaw, and charges had been made by the friends and advisers of Miss Kershaw that Miss Cowl was doing an unfair thing by depriving Miss Kershaw of her opportunity to play the rôle here.

Channing Pollock, co-author of the play, said that the play had been written with Miss Cowl in mind for the leading character, and that it was only after her refusal to play it that the rôle was given to Miss Kershaw. Later, Miss Cowl said, after the failure of "Information, Please," she was again asked to play the part, and at first declined it on the ground that it would be an injustice to Miss Kershaw, who was then about to play it in Chicago. The nature of the play, however, dictated the advisability of bringing it to New York immediately, while it continued running in Chicago, and negotiations were opened with a third actress. It was then, Miss Cowl said, after she had been assured that the rôle would not be given to Miss Kershaw in any circumstances, that she consented to appear in the piece.

Since the opening of the play on Monday night she has been in receipt of numerous anonymous communications, some of which threaten bodily harm if she continues in the rôle.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Keep It to Yourself" is the title of the Mark Swan farce which George Broadhurst will soon produce. Rehearsals will begin on Monday.

Ethel Barrymore will continue to act "The Off Chance" on the road until the Spring, when she will return to New York to appear in a new English comedy.

Fifty wounded marines were the guests of the management at yesterday's matinee of "Remnant," at the Morosco Theatre.

The East-West Players, who have given several programs in New York in recent seasons, will offer four one-act plays at the Lenox Little Theatre, 52 East 78th Street, on Friday night, Dec. 20, and on several succeeding Friday and Saturday nights. On the bill will be "The Bridegroom," from the Hungarian of Lajos Biro; "The Little Stone House," by George Calderon; "His Wife's Whim," by Mark Arnstein, and "The Shadchen's Daughter," by Abraham Reisin.

The members of the Italian Labor Commission, who arrived in New York yesterday, attended the performance at the Hippodrome in the evening.

The current Ziegfeld Midnight Frolic will close on Saturday night, and the midnight show on the Century Roof will continue for another week. New shows will be offered on both roofs during the week of Dec. 9.

"The King's Double," an operetta by Anselm Goetzl, with book and lyrics by Stephen Ivor Szinney and William Cary Duncan, has been placed in rehearsal by Cohen & Harris. It is being staged by Julian Mitchell, and will be produced in New York around the holidays.

THANKSGIVING.

Not from Plymouth Rock or Boston, but the Popham Colony, came the first American Thanksgiving Day. It was not Pilgrim or Puritan, but celebrated according to the forms of the Church of England. In early Plymouth there was a thanksgiving week kept with much eating of venison and turkey, a large delegation of Indians in full paint and feather gorging tremendously. The first Thanksgiving of the Massachusetts Bay Colony was on Feb. 22, 1630, in honor of the arrival of ships with eatables and colonists. In the next fifty-four years there were twenty-two Thanksgiving Days in Massachusetts. What a year 1742 was for the Bay State children! It had two Thanksgiving Days. Sometimes it came upon Tuesday, sometimes on Wednesday; sometimes in January, in August, in October, in December. One year the people of Colchester, upon whose souls be peace, refused to keep the day appointed by the Governor. They waited until a sloop from New York arrived with a hogshead of molasses for their pies; then they had a Thanksgiving of their own.

Many Thanksgivings had been appointed to give thanks for plentiful harvests. As a harvest festival, it became a fixed feast in November. Thus it is a successor of immemorial rites of agriculture, magical and religious, by which the gods were thanked or appeased and the fertility of the next year's crops assured. Thus congeners of it abound in whatever dimly related forms all over the world. It is a relic of ancient generations. TIBULLUS presents to us the spirit and form of the rites in his verse. Innumerable multitudes have reaped and rejoiced in the harvest, and gone their way. Here, spreading from New England, it has become a day of family reunion and of ample feeding. Largely it has been a form and a name.

This year a deep and solemn significance, remote from material comfort, belongs to the day. When so much of the world is famished and suffering, the coarse Gargantuan plethora of old Thanksgiving tables revolts the mind. Never before have the American people had such profound, unselfish cause to rejoice. For nearly three years some division existed among them. Old prejudices and hatreds, lingering from Europe, were at work. Great regions fed contentedly on the husks of pacifism. The long-held tradition of isolation from foreign affairs was hard to break. Parochial, political, and sham "moral" issues engrossed millions who looked or tried to look with an indifferent eye upon the disasters of nations and the ruin of peoples. For long there was much incredulity in regard to the monstrous inhumanities of the Germans. Even the sinking of the Lusitania evoked no uncontrollable national feeling.

We seemed not to be a nation. Were we merely to fatten on the calamities of Europe? When the culminant hour of the destiny of free nations struck, was the United States deaf? But, amid the insincerity and cowardice of many politicians, America, which had almost made a religion of peace, began to realize that there are things infinitely worse than war. Comprehension and hatred of German craft and cruelty kept growing. Mr. ROOSEVELT and General WOOD roused the nation to the need of preparedness. Combining long patience with iron resolution, Mr. WILSON, careless of censure from the Hotspurs, labored and waited for the unification of popular sentiment, with forbearance, wisdom, a matchless penetration of the causes of division. So he was able to lead the whole nation into a war of whose righteousness he had convinced it. We may be thankful today that in the day of peril the nation had at its head a leader of his wisdom, his foresight, his firmness in the right as he saw the right; and that he had the loyal support of the whole people to the end.

We know how patriotism and warlike spirit flamed eagerly in the very regions where lukewarmness and pacifism had been thought to rule; with what foresight and energy gigantic armies and the measureless material of war were prepared; the discipline and readiness of our soldiers; their splendid achievements in the field; our fleet, our merchant ships, our supply of food to the Allies; the sudden turning of a careless, spendthrift people into a community of savers; the manifold fruitful work of our men and women to relieve the distress and bind up the wounds of the innumerable victims of Germany, the utter collapse of the German house of fraud and cruelty, the triumph of freedom and democracy. Such is the harvest which we count today in solemn gratitude and with a kind of awe.

Each day the casualty list with its names of many races testifies to the national unity. The American people is one at last. Our young men have learned how to "make quick-coming death a little thing." The mental horizon has been widened. No longer are we cut off from the world. We have learned more to value and to practice self-sacrifice, kindness, unselfishness, pity, the love of noble things.

EXTRADITING WILHELM.

With the keenest legal minds of England and France at work on the question whether the ex-Kaiser is extraditable or not, it would be hazardous to offer a lay opinion. Most people, if asked to give one, would probably say that he is not. The question may never actually come up. There is more than a hint in the speech of the Dutch Premier to the Parliament of Holland:

> It goes without saying that the moment his sojourn becomes a danger to the State he will have to leave. We believe the Kaiser and those with him understand the position and will act according to their interests.

The reference to him as "the Kaiser" seems to show that Holland takes very little stock in the reality of the German revolution. Nevertheless, it is plain that Holland is uneasy over "the Kaiser's" presence, and while this particular notification is directed to him and is in effect that he must behave himself or leave the country, it might easily be that Holland would find him an unpleasant guest even without any further action on his part. If expelled from Holland, he would probably have his choice of refuges, but there are very few that he could reach without the probability of arrest either there or on the way.

If extradited or captured, it would be hard to try him by an international court, or by an English civil court, on one of the indictments lodged against him for murder. But if the Peace Conference determines what ought to be done with him, there would be no difficulty whatever, not more than there was in the case of NAPOLEON. He would then be handed over to the world, as represented by the nations that destroyed the Prussian menace, to be treated, perhaps, as a person too dangerous to be at large.

If Germany demands his return, as some of the radicals there are urging, there would be no difficulty at all, unless Holland persists in regarding him as "the Kaiser," and therefore the German Government itself. But if, as Premier RUYS DE BEERENBROUCK says, "the Kaiser" is in Holland "as a private person," there seems to be no difficulty even there.

GOVERNMENTS IN TRADE.

The purchase by the United States of a fleet of eighty-five ocean steamships, totaling a million deadweight tons, for $90,000,000, if the transaction shall be completed, will be without precedent in size, and is more remarkable as being substantially between Governments, although the negotiations are between a company and two Governments alternately. As a "trade" it is a good one. England has set the price of $150 for the ocean passage fares of soldiers. If that price were to be paid to bring them back, the fares would pay for the steamship and write their cost down to a negligible sum, without mentioning the profit from the freights additional to the fares. That does not indicate that $150 was too much for England to ask. It was cheap considering the conditions and the results reached. But there is not the same urgency about the repatriation of our soldiers, although all would like to see it completed as soon as practicable. Now there is a prospect that it may be done sooner than England could do it. Two-thirds of the eighty-five ships are available as transports, a considerable economy in itself, for not all ships are either adapted or adaptable for transport service.

Perhaps 100,000 soldiers can be carried each week, or even a half million a month if neutral ships can be found to reinforce the Government fleet. It is plain why it can be hoped to bring them back so much more quickly than they were taken over. No supplies have to be brought with them such as it was necessary to send with them when they went into a foreign country for a stay of an uncertain length under unknown conditions. Never was there a military operation of the size of ours at such a distance from the base, and never before this war was there such a demand upon military transport. Little of what we did in this way was unknown to the German intelligence service, and the knowledge of it caused a fear for what was coming which put weight into the blow we struck. There need be no regret for the sum which we paid for the service to England.

The nonmilitary view of the business is not so agreeable. Under no other conditions would either Americans or Englishmen, presumably, like to see their Governments trading together, overbidding each other, and approving or disapproving such arrangements, with the prospect of friction over money matters. But much such business lies ahead. We are not the only nation which is drifting into Government trading contrary to the opinions against it hitherto entertained. National syndicates are forming for the purposes of reconstruction which have interests identical with nations. The world needs to be provisioned and equipped anew industrially. The task is above individual capacity, and, if attempted without organization of both buyers and sellers, there would result a competitive market which would give this business priority which other business could ill endure.

It is difficult to say where the line should be drawn, or when nations should transfer business to individual traders in the interest of international good feeling. But there are too many precedents regarding the undesirability of Government intervention in trading matters, not to mention the worldly wise maxim about caution in making business arrangements between friends or relatives. Such matters are more prudently conducted between strangers, where there need be no compunction about making good bargains. Secretary REDFIELD'S suggestion about altruism in foreign trade received such a discouraging reception as to enforce the point, and to emphasize the regret that Governments are trading together in such unexampled ways.

SIR DOUGLAS HAIG'S TRIBUTE.

In parting with the American Second Corps, which sustained the battle shock and shared the glory of one of the most brilliant operations of the war, Field Marshal HAIG does not utter the language of perfunctory encomium. There can hardly be any one in New York, the city and State, who does not know and remember some officer or soldier in the Twenty-seventh Division. There must be men and women of Southern birth in New York whose affections and hopes followed the Tennesseeans and North and South Carolinians of the Thirtieth, another National Guard Division, into battle. Would these men of the North and South, whose fathers wore the Blue and the Gray in the civil war, bear themselves worthily under Old Glory in the titanic struggle in France? Would they prove the peers of their veteran comrades in arms who had fought so gallantly and had known death hourly in four terrible years of war? Would these American youths, whose homes were three thousand miles across the Atlantic, stand up in the great ordeal as resolutely for their ideals and with like indifference for the perils of the European battlefield, where courage must have the quality of fatalism? Sir DOUGLAS HAIG answers in words that will be cherished, for the ring of them is so genuine, by the relatives and friends of the rank and file of the Second Corps:

> On the 29th of September you participated with distinction in a great and critical attack, which shattered the enemy's resistance on the Hindenburg line, and which opened the road to final victory.
> The deeds of the Twenty-seventh and Thirtieth American Divisions, which took Bellecourt and Nauroy and gallantly sustained the desperate struggle for Bony, will rank with the highest achievements of the war.
> The names of Brancourt, Premont, Busigny, Vaux-Andigny, St. Souplet, and Wassigny will testify to the dash and energy of your attacks. I am proud to have had you in my command.

Between the lines may be read this knightly Englishman's esteem and admiration for the American soldiers who helped him to win the laurels that will long endure. It was Marshal FOCH himself who testified that the shattering of the vital spur of the Hindenburg line by the Fourth British Army and the American Second Corps in the last days of September "opened the road to final victory." For the British and Colonials going into battle was an old story. Experience had made their nerves steady, and they knew what to do in any emergency. "The Americans," wrote PHILIP GIBBS, "had the look of new "men, so fresh, so keen, so un-"scarred by the tragedy of war. * * * "They looked very young, many of "these American boys, but hard and "fit." For most of them, no doubt, it was a baptism of fire. As the event proved, they feared nothing, risked everything, would not be held back, but nevertheless were admirably steady. The only fault found with them by the old heads of the British Army was that "they set the pace "too hard, and were too eager to get "forward" against an enemy whose ingenuity in masking machine guns was devilish; but the fault, which was a virtue, endeared our men to the British, whom experience had taught to be wary.

The Twenty-Seventh Division is coming home soon, its ranks thinned but its record written in letters of light that shall never fade. Many of the old familiar faces will be seen in the marching ranks, with the flags carried to the battlefield held proudly aloft and the bands playing those patriotic airs and martial strains that so stir the blood and quicken the pulse when our own heroic soldiers are passing by. It will be a day of exaltation and rapture for the people of New York, an ever memorable day.

GOVERNMENT TELEPHONES.

Mr. VAIL was never a believer in the right of big business to go its way unhindered. No big business man ever submitted to control more loyally, and regulation and control of private operation was his idea of what public interest required. His financial arrangements with the Government are now agreeable, so that he is no "sorehead," and must be presumed to be of the same opinion as when he was on the rack and expressed himself formally and candidly. He looked forward to an elected national utilities commission, with analogy to the Interstate Commission in duties and power. Only this year he repeated his frequent declarations in his last annual report, from which one passage may be quoted:

> The financial affluence and credit of the Government, and its immunity from direct control, and the lack of dependence of the Government employé upon his employment, are inseparable, inherent, and preponderant factors in Government operation. Therefore the desirable factors of economic and efficient operation are wanting. Whatever can be done through direct operation can be done more certainly through control and regulation of private operation, thus combining the potency of the sovereign with the initiative and interest of the subject.

This is merely the condensation of what he expressed most fully in his report for 1918, which can hardly be surpassed for its arguments against the plan which he now is to carry out in connection with Postmaster General BURLESON and the gentlemen in Congress who have supported his ideas for the extension of Government functions while even his discharge of the smaller duties already in his charge are under criticism.

Mr. VAIL has hitherto emphasized two points of particular importance just now. On one he is the highest authority. He has distinguished wire operation from railway operation in a manner possible only by an expert. It is not possible to give two users of the telephone the use of wires in the manner in which it is possible to increase the trains on the same track, or to put more passengers and freight into cars. It is well known that doubling tracks more than doubles efficiency by enabling more trains to be run. But each user of the telephone wants exclusive service of the loop put at his disposal, and the conditions require that he shall have it.

That is to say, there is no such elasticity in the telephone service as in the railway service, and there is a greater need of expert operation. Secondly, such operation cannot be expected from operation in which politics has any part. His distrust of politicians was matched by his confidence in the people. "If the people them-"selves should obtain the right of "control (by an elected national utili-"ties commission) there would be no "further cause for fear." But "what "I am afraid of are the demagogues "and unprincipled politicians who "would have the people believe they "are continually being cheated by "the railroads, and the gas compa-"nies, and the telephone companies." And now Mr. VAIL is in double harness with a politician. It is a crossmatched team, but it may work better than it looks, if Mr. VAIL asserts himself as he has hitherto. That he should palter with his lifelong record is not to be believed.

THE LEAGUE OF FREE GRATIS NATIONS.

No quarrel can be found with the general thesis put forth by "The League of Free Nations Association," a somewhat eclectic body now bound together for the reformation of fallible humanity. Their fundamental concept, they assert, is that there must be some sort of legislative arrangement in a society of nations to make the changes that new conditions may from time to time demand, "rather than a union of Governments to maintain the status quo." So far, so good. Settlements made now may approximate justice, but, however closely they approximate it, they are not likely to remain permanently satisfactory. Some machinery for alteration should be provided, although alteration should not be made too easy.

When it comes to particulars, however, this worthy body expresses itself in a way that indicates that the uplifters and publicists in its membership pick out its ideals, and the more solid members are perhaps intrusted with no more onerous duties than those of paying office rent. We cannot have courts, says the league's statement, "which judge on the basis of the old laws and practices." If it was good for PAUL and SILAS, the prophet DANIEL, the Hebrew children, and other worthies of old, ipso facto it is not good enough for me. New ideas rule; the revelation of the economic interpretation of history supersedes the law and the prophets of the ante-Marxian days. The world is to be made safe for the League of Nations by certain economic expedients, chief of them the provision that all States shall have equal access to raw materials and to markets. On the basis of this declaration alone, the association might have called itself the League for the Resuscitation of German Commerce at the Expense of the Allies, but such a characterization would be one-sided; and the league has many sides. Colonial empires, for example, must no longer accord special privileges to their own subjects or citizens. Since this was the German colonial theory, which Germans have not yet repudiated, it follows that the German colonies should not be restored.

Let us then give heed to this new creed handed down from the lofty isolation of twenty stories above Forty-second Street; and if it does not seem to be very new, if it resolves into the hackneyed Socialist theory that all wars are caused by capitalist competition for foreign markets, and if some of us still cherish a suspicion that certain factors in the German mentality had more to do with bringing on this war than the inevitable necessities of Anglo-German trade rivalry, let us say nothing about it. To him that hath not shall be given; and from him that hath shall be taken away even that which others may share with him. Ring out the old; ring in the new!

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Why All the World Helped France.

Truly a typical German was the woman beside whom WALTER DURANTY, THE TIMES correspondent, happened to stand in the crowd that watched the entry of the French into Strasbourg. She was typical in the fact that she could not refrain from expressing her emotions at a time and in a place when it would have been judicious for her to remain silent, and still more typical in the nature of the emotion she felt compelled to express.

For in the scene before her she saw none of its real meaning. Her one thought was of the physical difference between the French troops who had been selected to take part in the triumphal entry and the few stragglers from the German Army who were in sight—the former well dressed, well fed, alert, and vigorous, and the latter ragged, haggard, and gloomy. That, she thought, explained why the war had terminated in Germany's defeat. "Our army was worn out," she said. "We had taken the very children and old men to fight for us, and we could do no more. They lacked food, guns—everything. And these French—the whole world was helping them!"

The words were true enough, but what she did not see was the reason why Germany had been left to fight her battle alone, while, as she put it in the tone of bitter grievance, "These French—the whole world was helping them!" Yet the reason for both phenomena is perfectly obvious to every non-Teuton to whose attention they have come—Germany, not deserving help and sympathy, did not get them, and France, having earned both, received both in ever increasing measure, until at last the good cause won and the bad cause failed.

Had conditions been reversed—if Germany had been attacked after long and secret preparation by an enemy whose one motive was the increase of power and wealth by conquest—the result would also have been reversed, for the whole world, if necessary for her saving, would have come sooner or later to her assistance. The man who says truly, "Everybody is against me," thereby convicts himself of having justified the hostility of which he has been the object, and it is the same with nations. But Germany will not admit that. She prefers to take the tone and attitude of a martyr, and to be equally astonished and grieved by the antagonism she encounters.

Their Full Duty Done Here.

Inconsiderateness could hardly take crueler or more unjust form than is that which is too often illustrated in jeering or contemptuous remarks about the men who wear the uniform of the United States Army if they have not been abroad, and therefore did not endure the perils and hardships of service at the front. Among these men there are some, no doubt, who belong to the class called by the French "embusqués." Through scheming or influence they managed to secure for themselves, and to remain in, "shell-proof" positions, and they gladly and basely left to others the dangerous task of fighting their country's battles. Not only, however, are men of this sort very few in comparison with the whole number of men whose service has been exclusively or chiefly on this side of the water, but it takes a lot more than that even to warrant suspicion of cowardice or lack of patriotism.

In the great—the very great—majority of such cases the occupants of these positions have been put and kept in them for the excellent reason that there their special knowledge or ability made them more useful than they would have been in the field. In instances too many to count the men selected for home service have accepted and performed it with the utmost reluctance, and they have been sincerely, and often bitterly, envious of those whom they considered more fortunate than themselves—those, that is, who went overseas and had a chance to play an active and glorious part in the greatest of Great Adventures.

It is inevitable, of course, and not improper, that the soldiers who return from the battlelines should receive more of public attention and acclaim than do those whose military activities have been far from the front, but the essential merit of the two is not necessarily dissimilar, and that fact should have due recognition, both now and in the future. War is no longer conducted by men who are turned from civilians into warriors by giving them a sword or a spear and sending them out to live on the country in which their fighting is done. Our armies at the front would have fared ill indeed if there had not been behind them a still greater army to provide for their innumerable wants.

Service at the rear may be, and usually is, good service, and those who have performed it faithfully merit the nation's gratitude. Perhaps it should take the form of special and distinctive insignia, the wearer of which will have to give no further proof of having done the full duty of a real man.

Friendship Will Not Be Forgotten.

According to entirely plausible report, he who was the Crown Prince of Germany expressed, while on his way to the not too cheerful sequestration in which the judicious Dutch have placed him, the hope that the United States will not forget that it was once the friend of Germany. He is a Prince who would be likely to say that, and one likely, also, to draw from the fact he mentions the false conclusion that the memory of a former friendship necessarily mitigates resentment of wrongs suffered at the hands of the former friend.

Sometimes and in some circumstances perhaps it does, but far more often, probably, betrayal by a friend, or injury inflicted by him, excites far more active and lasting animosity than does a like act by a person unknown or regarded with indifference.

We are all the descendants of ancestors to whom every stranger was an enemy, and while we no longer yearn to kill the man who lives over the hill in the next valley, simply because he is not one of our tribe and therefore is to be feared, still, something of the old feeling lingers in every mind. Now as always, however, it is a feeling entirely dissimilar from the one which is excited by him who violates the obligations of friendship, for he betrays confidence as well as inflicts injury, which the nonfriend does not, and he takes advantage of our assumption that we do not need to be on our guard against him. Thus is explained the peculiar bitterness of quarrels between relatives.

What the Crown Prince should not forget is that we were the friends of Germany because we did not know her—that she turned out to be different from what we thought she was—that her offending thereby was made greater, not less, in our eyes.

ROOT FOR PEACE MISSION.

An Appointment Which Would Satisfy Senate and People.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The President has shown himself a breaker and a maker of precedents. He is not going to follow the example of President McKinley in naming Senators as members of the Peace Commission, and he intends to go to Europe to take part himself in the framing of the treaty of peace.

Yet no agreement with other Governments negotiated by the President or his agents can become a treaty till ratified by the Senate of the United States.

If the agreement which the President enters into with foreign Governments is to escape the chances of defeat in the Senate, the Senate must be consulted in its formative stages. This is ordinarily done by conferences between the Secretary of State and the Chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs. If Secretary Lansing heads the Peace Commission, while it would not be impossible for him to communicate from Paris with the Chairman of that committee, the results would certainly be very different from those attained by personal conferences in Washington.

It is absolutely essential, therefore, that both parties in the Senate be satisfactorily represented on the Peace Commission. Most Democrats and perhaps some Republicans would be satisfied with the President, who will be the ultimate spokesman of the Democratic members of the commission. The problem, therefore, is to find some one who will be equally acceptable to the Republican Party.

Now, there is one Republican whom not only the Republican members of the Senate, but I believe the nation generally, would designate as their first choice for the negotiation of a treaty of peace. He has been a great Secretary of War, a great Secretary of State, and a great Senator of the United States. I refer—I could only refer—to Elihu Root. A draft of a treaty of peace approved by President Wilson and Elihu Root would commend itself to the Senate and also to the people of the United States.

Unless the President appoints a Republican who is supremely satisfactory to the Republican Party I am convinced that it would be better that all the members of the Peace Commission should be Democrats. Nothing could be more embarrassing than the appointment of some nominal Republican who was unacceptable to the Republican Party. The great desideratum is an appointee who would be trusted by the Republican Party in the negotiation of a treaty of peace as completely as President Wilson himself is trusted by the Democratic Party, and who would also share with President Wilson the confidence of the American people generally. This requirement is conspicuously filled by Elihu Root, who is recognized both at home and abroad (where I heard it asserted on the highest authority last Summer) as having no superior among the statesmen and publicists of Europe.

A Salute to the Gold Star.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There is a gold star between two blue stars on a service flag in a window in Brooklyn, and on the same block there is a man of 60 wearing the navy uniform in the rank of Lieutenant. Passing the house with the gold star this officer performs a most touching ceremony: he salutes the gold star as he would a living comrade in uniform. The act is so simple and yet so soulful that I am going to propose that the salute to the gold star become general.

THANKSGIVING—1918.

God of the harvest,
God of the seed,
Who givest the sun and sendest the rain
To ripen the grain
For man's daily need,

Our garners are full
With measureless thanks Thy people this year
Thine altars draw near,
To praise and adore.

No longer our songs
Are in minor key,
Nor over our hearts the shadow of death;
With loud, quickened breath
We shout jubilee!

Down deep in our souls,
A wonderful thrill,
Sweeter than music and nobler than song,
A thanksgiving strong,
For grandeur of will

Its longing desire
For comfort and ease, and stirred in its place,
By God's holy grace,
A conquering fire

To battle with joy
For Freedom in thrall,
Democracy's cause, for justice and right,
To stand in our might

The Lamp of Thy light
Shone down on the sod
Where our country fought that all war may cease—
For Victory—Peace—
We thank Thee, O God!

START WELCOME FOR NEW YORK'S HEROES

City to Fill Avenue with Flag They Fought For When Boys Come Home.

ALDERMEN VOTE $25,000

Gen. O'Ryan's Praise of All in 27th Division, Soon Sailing—Squadron and Seventh Men.

With arrangements near completion oversea for the homeward embarkation of the Twenty-seventh New York National Guard Division and other New York victory units, the city authorities yesterday announced that a committee of 1,000 will be appointed to see that the first returning heroes get a rousing reception home. The committee will be in six groups, reception, military, naval, pageant, banquet and publicity. As a preliminary step the Board of Aldermen voted $25,000 yesterday to Mayor Hylan to be expended in decorations. The veterans will march up Fifth Avenue between buildings that will be red, white and blue from cornice to shop window. A group of architects will prepare Fifth Avenue for the parade, and as soon as Washington definitely announces the date when the Twenty-seventh Division may be expected to dock here the plans of reception in full will be made public.

"It is Mayor Hylan's plan to have Fifth Avenue converted into an Avenue of the Stars and Stripes," said his Secretary, Grover A. Whalen, yesterday. "The Mayor is of the opinion that all the sentiments of the day marking the return of the New York warriors should be centered in the flag they fought for. The present plan is to drape four flags on each lamp post, and there is to be a massive memorial victory arch at Madison Square."

Over in Brooklyn, Borough President Edward Riegelmann appointed a committee, headed by Nathan S. Jonas, to arrange a celebration for Brooklyn's victory regiment, the 106th Infantry, said to have been the first American unit to penetrate the Hindenburg line between St. Quentin and Cambrai.

Gen. O'Ryan to Squadron A Men.

That Field Marshal Haig's unqualified praise of the division was won by the hardest kind of fighting was indicated by three official communications which Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan issued to the command. Under date of Oct. 22, General O'Ryan addressed the commanding officer of the 53d Infantry Brigade as follows:

> I write to express through you to the officers and men of the 105th Machine Gun Battalion and the machine gun companies of your brigade, my admiration and respect for their valor, initiative, and endurance during the great battle for the breaking of the Hindenburg line and the operations subsequent thereto.
> Almost continuously since that battle the division has been fighting and marching, lying in shell holes at night, attacking at dawn, fighting throughout the day against the most determined machine gun and artillery resistance, and repeating this after temporary relief, which meant only lying in other shell holes or pits in positions of close support. The skill, endurance, and determination of the machine gunners contributed largely to the success of the operations which resulted in our forcing the crossing of the Le Selle River, capturing Raidival Farm and the town of Arbre Guernon, taking the farms of Jonc De Mer and La Rue, and in co-operation with flanking divisions, driving the enemy to the line of the Canal de la Sambre.
> Whether in attack or in resisting counter attacks, the conduct of the machine gun units has been characterized at all times by the exceptional courage and skill of officers and the valor and determination of the men. The machine gun units have won the respect and admiration of the entire division.

Headquarters, 27th Division, U. S. A., American E. F., France.

The 105th Machine Gun Battalion referred to in the foregoing was formerly Squadron A. The order of commendation was forwarded by Lieutenant George Matthew Jr. to his relatives at 25 East Thirtieth Street.

Old 7th and 1st Regiments.

Headquarters 27th Division, U. S. A.
American E. F., France.
Oct. 22, 1918.

From: Commanding General.
To: Commanding Officer, 107th Infantry, U. S. A.
Subject: Commendation.

1. I write to express my admiration and respect for the valor and endurance of the officers and men of the 107th Infantry, so continuously demonstrated during the last thirty days.

2. Since the great battle for the breaking of the Hindenburg line, our advance has given opportunity to inspect the defenses of that system. Our attack of Sept. 29 was directed against what was probably the most highly organized system of field defenses ever constructed. In that battle the 107th Infantry attacked on the left half of the divisional sector of 4,000 yards, and during its advance had to defend its flank against heavy forces of the enemy operating from Vaudhuille and holding back the division on our left. In the face of veritable hurricanes of fire from weapons of every caliber and class, the sentiment by the leadership of its officers and the gallantry and determination of its men broke the back of the main defense line resistance, and at the same time shattered all counterattacks directed upon its flank.

3. Almost continuously since that time, the division has been fighting and marching, and the 107th Infantry has continued its inspiring record for discipline and cheerful endurance in battle. Lying in shell holes at night, attacking at dawn, fighting all day against the determined and cunning machine gun resistance supported by artillery—repeating this the following day until the relief which meant lying in other shell holes and pits of close support—to experience these privations with confidence and cheerfulness unimpaired, requires physical fitness and spirit in superlative degree, and well indeed have you demonstrated their possession.

4. In the ten days of operation in which you played so prominent a part, the division forced the crossing of the Le Selle River, captured Raidival Farm, the town of Arbre Guernon, and in co-operation with flanking divisions compelled the enemy to retire to the Canal de la Sambre. It also captured many hundreds of prisoners and a great amount of war material. In the operations of the last month the regiment has written some brilliant pages of regimental history. All honor to the memory of those gallant comrades who died in the accomplishment of what was achieved.

JOHN F. O'RYAN, Major General.
27th National Guard Division.

Further evidence of the great feats performed by the guardsmen fighting side by side with the British veterans was disclosed in Bulletin No. 103, which was sent out on Oct. 21 from Divisional Headquarters. The bulletin in full was:

> Since the 29th of September—a period of nearly one month—the division has been engaged almost continuously in fighting and marching. Some of the fighting involved a leading role in one of the fiercest battles of the war—the breaking of the great Hindenburg defense line. We have suffered the loss of some of our best officers and men, but, unfortunately, such losses are incidental to battles of such magnitude. Only divisions highly trained and disciplined, possessing the greatest confidence and morale and at the very top notch of their strength, could have accomplished what this division and our comrades of the 30th Division accomplished in that great battle. Only such divisions could have met the sacrifices demanded and with their morale unimpaired have renewed the advance in the manner characterizing the operations of the last two weeks.
> This is not the occasion to describe the Hindenburg defenses or the details of the battles for breaking them down. This will doubtless be done after the war. The same comment applies to the details of the operations since that engagement. Nevertheless, the division commander cannot withhold this expression of his admiration and respect for the valor and discipline, as well as the endurance and spirit, manifested by officers and men throughout this long period of fighting. These sentiments are stimulated by the events of the last week, when, reduced in strength, the division attacked the enemy, took the Town of St. Souplet, forced the crossing of the Le Selle River, and, against strong opposition, successfully assaulted the heights on the other side. Since that date the division has attacked daily by assault the Town of Arbre Guernon and a number of strongly fortified farms.
> In this latter advance the division captured more than 1,400 German officers and enlisted men and a vast quantity of military equipage. In all this engagement the character of the enemy's resistance and the extent of his losses are indicated by the large number of enemy dead on the field.
> The efforts of the last month constitute a record to be proud of, and their value is indicated in the commendatory letter from the commander of the British Expeditionary Forces, which has been published for the information of the division. Officers and men have justified the estimate of the division when, after its arrival in France, it was selected to hold the Mont Kemmel sector against the expected great effort of the enemy to drive through to the sea. They have justified the opinions of their fighting qualities when that crisis, with the evacuation of Mont Kemmel, had passed and the division promptly attacked and took Vierstaat Ridge, being with the 30th Division on our left, the first American troops to fight on Belgian territory.

BIG AIRSHIPS FOR COAST.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Plans for the coastal air patrol, including the purchase of four airships of the Zeppelin type, a dozen dirigibles and twelve dozen smaller balloons, as well as fighting airplanes, were related to the House Naval Affairs Committee today. Navy officers said that $90,000,000 of the $220,000,000 appropriated for naval aviation would be returned to the Treasury next July at the end of the fiscal year.

The Navy Department, which has the coast patrol in charge, proposes to pay $1,500,000 each for the Zeppelins, which are regarded by Rear Admiral Taylor and Captain Steele, who are in charge of coast patrol, as being impressive in their work and particularly adapted to scout duty. Admiral Taylor said that during the war a Zeppelin flew from Germany to German East Africa to bring home a German commander who was stationed in the colony. However, the trip proved of no avail, as the British had already captured the commander.

Twelve dirigibles will cost $360,000 each and the smaller workable balloons will cost $75,000 each. Also, for the 1920 plans, the Navy Department will buy 106 fighting escort planes.

Coastal defense is eagerly urged by the Navy Department. The officers testified today that if the patrol had been completely organized last year the U-boats which menaced American shores would have been put to flight.

Twenty-one stations are contemplated, some of which have been built, and others are under construction. There will be stations commanding the Gulf, Pacific, and Atlantic coasts and in the insular possessions. One will be installed on the Maine coast, somewhere between Portland and Rockland. Others will be placed at Narragansett Bay, New York Harbor, Port Arthur, Texas; San Francisco, Seward, Alaska; two in Hawaii, Guam, St. Thomas, (West Indies,) and the Panama Canal Zone. Stations are under construction at Camp Lookout, Moorehead, N. C.; Brunswick, Ga., and Galveston, Texas, while stations have been completed at Chatham, Mass.; Rockaway Beach, N. Y.; Cape May, Miami, Fla.; Key West, San Diego, Cal., and another also in California.

The officers said that a noninflammable gas for balloons had been discovered, which was so efficient that it could be fired into, through the gas bag, without catching fire. The gas was said to cost a little more than hydrogen, but it was also said to leak less rapidly, and the officers thought the cost would be about the same. Admiral Taylor said that experiments would be continued with the Kirkham triplane, which has made 160 miles an hour in trials.

Admiral Taylor said that $36,000,000 worth of contracts had been cancelled as a result of the armistice.

TO TURN BACK WAR FUNDS.

House Committee Will Look Into Unexpended Appropriations.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Swager Sherley of Kentucky, Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, announced today that Cabinet officers and heads of the bureaus created for the war would be called to testify as to the amounts of money on hand, and the expenditures that could be cancelled. He sent a letter to the officials, which reads:

> "It is the purpose of the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives to begin hearings Monday with a view of returning to the Treasury such appropriations and the cancellation of such authorizations, or parts thereof, granted in connection with the prosecution of the war as no longer may be required under present conditions.
> "The committee has no desire to interfere with the equitable and legal execution of such contracts or to abolish or curtail such services as may be vitally necessary to the period of national readjustment, but realizes that large sums placed at the disposal of many departments for use during the war now may be covered into the Treasury without injury to the public service or the general welfare of the country.
> "The difficulty which some branches of the service may have in making absolutely accurate settlements of accounts at this time is appreciated, and the committee would be pleased if you would acquaint the various officials of your department with its purpose, so that they may be prepared when called upon to present the best information available."

LESS PAPER RESTRICTION.

Only Newspapers Now Remain Under War Board Rules.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Withdrawal of all restrictions affecting the publication of periodicals, except daily, Sunday, and weekly newspapers, effective immediately, was announced today by the War Industries Board.

Publishers of daily and Sunday newspapers, in recent conference with the board, requested that it continue control over the use of newsprint for the present.

Publishers of daily papers are urged to send in November reports without delay. It is explained that regulations affec

F. BANNERMAN, ARMS DEALER, DIES

Broke Down from Overwork in Shipping His Gift of 50,000 Garments to Belgium.

GAVE TO ALLIES $135,000

Owner of Island Arsenal in Hudson Was Charged in Congress with Attempt at Profiteering.

Francis Bannerman, for more than fifty years engaged in New York City as a dealer in military goods and war relics, who gave generous aid to America and Great Britain during the world war, died Tuesday in Hotel Margaret, in Brooklyn. Mr. Bannerman, who was 66 years old, was born in Scotland, and came to America with his parents in 1854.

Mr. Bannerman's arsenal on Polopel's Island, opposite Cornwall, has long been one of the familiar landmarks on the Hudson and his store and museum at 501 Broadway became widely known throughout America among antiquarians and curiosity seekers.

On Dec. 17, 1914, after German warships had shelled Hartlepool and killed many persons and a National Guard was being formed for home defense, Mr. Bannerman cabled to the Lord Mayor of London, offering as a gift from an American Scotchman to fit out 1,000 Scotch National Guardsmen with military supplies, which was accepted. The outfitting of this regiment cost more than $70,000. In August of the following year Mr. Bannerman wrote to the Lord Mayor of London offering to King George of England as a free gift 1,000 Springfield rifles, stating that if the Government could not accept free gifts, then his Majesty could send him a penny in payment. The offer was submitted to the King through Lord Stamfordham, who accepted the gift, evidently under the impression that Mr. Bannerman was a British subject. The value of this shipment was about $30,000.

Mr. Bannerman did not confine his gifts to the British, but presented to the United States Government two 6-inch calibre cannon, together with $20,000 for mounting them, the gift being accepted and publicly acknowledged by General March Sept. 28, 1918.

Mr. Bannerman also gave to the Dundee District Volunteer Forces about 300 rifles and other equipment valued at $5,000.

A few weeks ago Mr. Bannerman donated 50,000 garments to the Belgium Relief Commission, with a draft on his London bankers for $10,000 to pay for Belgian labor in remodeling the garments for immediate use. It was said that the strain of overwork to which he was subjected in connection with the procurement and shipment of this gift was immediately responsible for his death.

It was charged in Congress last Summer that Mr. Bannerman was trying to sell to the United States Government for $450,000 thirty six-inch guns bought by him several years ago from the navy for about $78 apiece. The matter was aired in both the House and Senate. Senator Wadsworth denied in the Senate the charge made in the House that Mr. Bannerman tried to profiteer. He said that Mr. Bannerman was to get $5,000 apiece for the guns, and for the guns which he had manufactured from mobile steel mounts he was asking $7,500, which, he said, the Ordnance Department had accepted.

The Rev. Claudius H. Dumahut.

The Rev. Claudius H. Dumahut, the founder and for twenty-two years rector of the Roman Catholic Church of St. Stanislaus, Martyr, in Brooklyn, died on Tuesday at his home, 522 Fifty-seventh Street, Brooklyn, at the age of 77 years. Father Dumahut was born and educated in France and was ordained in the Clermont-Ferrand Seminary. For twenty-five years he was engaged in missionary work in Norway and when he came to Brooklyn he was authorized by Bishop Loughlin to organize the parish of St. Stanislaus for the Scandinavians in that section. He continued as rector of the church until failing health compelled him to resign in 1912.

Walter S. Gurnee.

Walter S. Gurnee, for several years a member of the firm of W. S. Gurnee, Jr., & Co., bankers and brokers, but more recently a special member of the firm of B. Y. Frost & Co., stock brokers, died yesterday at his home, 38 East Thirty-ninth Street. He was born in Chicago, but had lived in New York for many years. He was a Director of the Shelby Iron Company. Mr. Gurnee was a member of the Union, Yacht, Down Town, Midday, Piping Rock, and South Side Sportsman's Clubs.

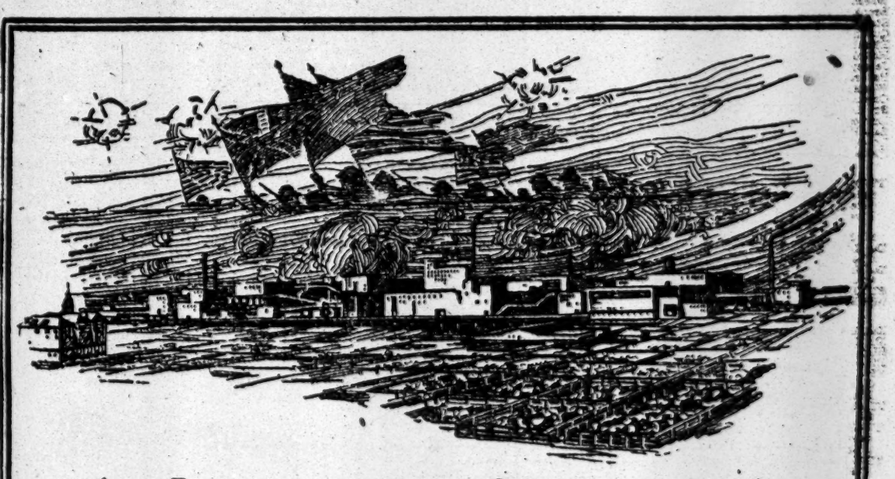
CONROD.—In loving memory of a devoted husband and father, Albert Chester Conrod, who departed this life Oct. 28, 1913. His devoted wife, daughter and son, Thomas.



An International Service Built on Tiny Profits Per Pound

Some industries have been able to get in step with war demands more quickly than others.

In many cases mighty plants have sprung up—but at a prodigious cost.

The packing industry was able to adapt itself to unheard of demands more quickly, perhaps, than any other industry. And this was because the vast equipment of packing plants, refrigerator cars, branch houses, etc., had been gradually developed to its present state of efficiency, so that in the crucial hour it became a mighty international system for war service.

And how had this development taken place?

Not by making vast inroads into the capital wealth of the country, but largely by using, from year to year, a portion of the profits, to provide for expansion.

Swift & Company's profits have always been so tiny, compared with sales, that they have had practically no effect on the price of meat, (amounting to only a fraction of a cent per pound).

And yet the owners of the business have been content with reasonable returns on their capital, and have been able, year after year, to put part of the profits back into the business to provide for its expansion.

These fractions of tiny profits have been repaid to the public many fold in the form of better service, and better and cheaper meat, and made it possible for Swift & Company to meet, undaunted, the sudden cry for meat for overseas.

Could any other method of financing a vital industry involve less hardship to the people of the country? Could there be a better instance of true "profit-sharing" than this return in added usefulness and in national preparedness?

No one knows the humiliation of being a "wall flower" better than the girl with a red, rough, inflamed complexion.

If your skin is not fresh and smooth, or has suffered from an unwise use of cosmetics, try Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment for a week and see if they don't begin to make a blessed difference. They also help to make hands and arms soft and white, and to keep the hair live, glossy and free from dandruff.

Skin and hair once restored to natural health and beauty can usually be kept in condition by the regular use of Resinol Soap for the toilet and shampoo. All druggists sell Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap.

Perfectly Delicious—Highly Nutritious
Made From Corn

For Salads
For Shortening
For Frying
For Seasoning

This new salad and cooking oil is a scientific food dainty made from the heart of corn.

Users report it perfectly delicious. Food experts pronounce it highly nutritious. Economy suggests its adoption for every salad and cooking purpose.

Douglas Oil succeeds olive oil for salads. It replaces butter for shortening. It is better than any other fat for seasoning and frying.

And, in every use, Douglas Oil supplies you with high powered energy food in its most perfectly digestible and easily assimilated form.

Douglas Oil

Douglas Oil makes the best salads ever served. You will like it better than olive oil without considering its cost, which is much less.

There are no secrets in the use of Douglas Oil for shortening. Just stir it into the sugar as you would butter. The results are the same, but it is only necessary to use two-thirds as much.

For frying it doesn't absorb flavors or odors, so can be used again and again.

Ask your dealer for Douglas Oil. If he hasn't it in stock, insist that he get it for you. There is no risk in a trial can—satisfaction is guaranteed.

Steady Pressure Sends Stocks Down—Marine Shares Surge Alone.

The professional character of stock market dealings was again emphasized yesterday when, without any apparent alteration of conditions surrounding the preceding day's rise of quotations, considerable selling pressure appeared among the industrial shares. In many cases all of Tuesday's substantial gains were eliminated. The general price front at the end of business was highly irregular, with declines far in the majority and the average quotation of the more active stocks was a point lower than the day before. Railroad issues displayed a fair degree of stability until the closing half-hour, when they worked down with the others.

The course of the market was of a character which necessitates reference to particular occurrences to present a survey of what occurred. Quite naturally the unexpected overnight information that the United States Government had offered to buy the International Mercantile Marine Company's British assets on the same terms as the British syndicate acted as a powerful stimulus for the Mercantile Marine shares. Hasty short covering and urgent speculative buying for the long account worked together to make the initial transactions overshadow everything else on the market at the time. The opening advance of some 6 points and more was later increased to more than 15 points, of which 5 points were removed by profit taking before the close. The news from Washington came so unexpectedly as to involve dramatic features, and even after hours of contemplation of the altered situation the stock trading element was not able to grasp fully the possibilities opened up by the Government's entrance into competition with foreign buyers for the ships. The market position of the stocks was made confusing by lack of information on important points, among them being the question of whether or not the Federal authorities would be able to bring the ships under this American flag within a reasonably short period of time, and also whether the Government was planning to use the vessels as part of a vast shipping combination, either Government owned or Government controlled. As far as the available facts went, traders were able to persuade themselves that a sale would be made with a resultant lodgment in the Mercantile Marine Company's treasury of something like $130,000,000, and the thought of liquidation of back dividends on the preferred stock helped mightily in causing the advance of the stock. The company's bonds opened nearly 6 points up at 104¾, later receding to 102 at the close.

The weakness of steel company stocks was hardly explainable by news from the industry. It appeared as though the early decline was in part the sentimental effect of reports of huge cancellations of orders, reports which were afterward described by steel makers as exaggerated. The summary of conditions at the various steel-making districts presented by trade publications indicated that, while commercial demand was not extraordinarily improved during the last week, still there were signs to be found of an expanding absorption to come later on. The Iron Age noted new inquiries, in large part from export sources, and recounted certain prices paid for steel plates to go abroad which were slightly higher than the current fixed quotations. It may be said that some steel men, at least, look for a readjustment downward of prices in certain lines when restrictions are removed, but their attitude is subject to change, based on what may occur between now and Dec. 31 in the field of buying for shipment abroad. Activity in the foreign market may hinge on preparations now being made by steel manufacturers to present a united front in going after business.

FOR STEEL EXPORT MERGER.

Committee Named to Carry Forward Foundation of a Company.

The plans for the formation of an export company to represent most of the independent steel industries of the country as distinguished from the United States Steel Corporation and its subsidiaries are rapidly crystallizing into definite shape. Rapid strides toward end were made at a meeting of the representatives of twenty-eight companies, who, it was learned yesterday, were in consultation on Tuesday at the Bankers' Club. At this meeting the following committee was appointed to carry forward the organization plans: John A. Topping, Chairman of the Board of the Republic Iron and Steel Company; A. C. Dinkey, President of the Midvale Steel and Ordnance Company; E. A. S. Clark, President of the Lackawanna Steel Company; E. J. Grace, President of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation; J. A. Campbell President of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, and P. D. Block, Vice President of the Inland Steel Company.

The capital of the export company is expected to be about $10,000,000, divided proportionately among the producing concerns. Later it may be increased substantially, as warehouses are built abroad and sales force expanded. Within a short time, it is expected, a New York charter will be obtained for the company, which it is expected will be known as the Independent Steel Products Corporation. The ingot capacity represented in this organization will approximate 20,000,000 tons a year, and through its formation there will be a marked reduction in the steel ordinarily handled through merchant firms and brokers for foreign trade.

It has been agreed among the companies under this plan of co-operation that they will each devote about 10 per cent. of their output for export without regard to the fluctuations which may occur in domestic demand. The legal advisers of the projected company are engaged in a careful scrutiny of the Sh law, which provides for the combination of producers with respect to foreign trade.

Important developments with regard to the domestic and export trade are expected when the steel manufacturers meet in conference with the Price Fixing Committee of the War Industries Board at Washington on Dec. 11. The possibility that it may be decided at that meeting to discontinue the fixed price for steel after the first of the year, it is believed, has hastened the organization of the new export company.

SHIP DEAL DEPENDS ON BRITISH CONSENT

LOOK FOR AN AGREEMENT

Large Dealings in International Mercantile Marine Stock, with Erratic Price Changes.

After a day of erratic trading on the Stock Exchange in the common and preferred shares of the International Mercantile Marine Company, it was learned yesterday that the deal between the United States Government and the company for its 750,000 tons of ships under British registry was dependent on the release of the vessels by the British Government.

The American Government, it was said, had made no formal or definite proposal to purchase the eighty-five vessels involved, other than to announce that it would assume the position of the British syndicate which was negotiating for the purchase of the fleet, the purchase price to be approximately $129,000,000, including the assets of all of the British companies concerned.

Some persons in the financial district expressed the opinion that Edward N. Hurley, Chairman of the United States Shipping Board, who sailed for England last week, was commissioned to negotiate with the British Government for the release of the ships, through some emergency amendment of the English law, passed during the war, that vessels of British registry should not be transferred therefrom until three years after the end of the war.

That some agreement will be reached in the general belief in well-informed quarters. The question was raised yesterday as to whether the transfer of so many ships would seriously interfere with the marine plans of the British Government and the belief was expressed that it would not, as many of the vessels have been used on the Atlantic in carrying troops and supplies and are not indispensable to England's merchant marine.

The fact that the British Government will decide if the deal should go through was rather lost sight of in the stock market. Conflicting rumors were afloat through the financial district and served to enliven trading, so that at the end of the day approximately 233,000 shares of Marine preferred and 27,000 shares of the common stock had changed hands. An exceptional turnover of Marine bonds also occurred.

Long before trading opened on the floor of the Stock Exchange yesterday morning, brokers who had received large numbers of buying and selling orders compared their figures and agreed to buy or sell at the opening provided the first prices were within reason.

When the gong sounded at 10 o'clock there was a wild scramble for the Marine post, and brokers sought by main strength to dispose of their orders. The preferred opened with sales of 8,000 shares from 112 to 110. The trading slackened gradually toward the noon hour.

Following a meeting of the International Mercantile Marine Directors, the following statement was issued:

"We have been advised that the Government is prepared to take over the ownership of the vessels upon the terms of the British offer and the details are to be worked out."

This gave the professional trading element but slight occasion for either bearish or bullish operations and the stocks eased off gradually.

Then came a rumor attributed to Washington sources that the British Government had approved the deal, and that it had been put through, and there was a sharp rally to the high for the day, when 1,500 shares of the preferred changed hands at 119½.

This report was denied later and the price dropped to a low for the afternoon of 114. Just before the close there was a slight rally with the last sale at 114½.

Negotiations for the sale of the vessels have been going on since the first of the year, with the listed issues on the Stock Exchange reflecting the approach and retreat of a successful deal. Through the year various reports were issued that the negotiations were continuing, and early this month, Harold A. Sanderson, Chairman of the Board of the company, arrived here with the terms of the English syndicate which was going to buy the fleet.

The negotiations which followed were brought to an end at the request of this Government some days ago.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

David L. Ewing, who has resigned as Assistant Director of Operations of the Shipping Board, will become Vice President of the France and Canada Steamship Corporation. He will devote his energies to the development of trade between the United States and Central and South American countries.

The Stock Exchange membership of J. Edward Thompson has been posted for transfer to E. M. Hamlin, and the seat owned by C. H. Boynton to Otto Abraham. The price in each case is $35,000, a decline of $4,000 from a membership sold last week. E. D. Levison and C. L. Morse have been elected members of the Exchange.

The Board of Directors of the Autosales Corporation has declared a dividend of 2 per cent., payable Dec. 30 to stockholders of record of Dec. 16.

It was announced yesterday by the Guaranty Trust Company that the definitive notes of the $20,000,000 Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company three-year 6 per cent. issue would be ready for delivery Monday.

If the Capital Issues Committee gives approval to the issue of Cities Service Company common and preferred stocks, provided for under the conversion privilege, holders of the company's Series B, 7 per cent. convertible gold debentures will have the privilege of converting 10 per cent. of such holdings into stock on Jan. 1.

STEEL SPRING DIVIDEND RISE

Company Declares $2 a Share on Common Stock for the Quarter.

The Railway Steel Spring Company declared yesterday a quarterly dividend of $2 per share on the common stock. This was an increase of 75 cents per share over the preceding payment. The dividend will go on Dec. 30 to stockholders of record Dec. 14. The usual quarterly disbursement of 1¾ per cent. was ordered on the preferred stock, payable Dec. 20 to shareowners on the books Dec. 7.

Westinghouse, Church, Kerr & Co. declared an extra dividend of 1 per cent. on the common stock, as well as the usual quarterly distribution of 1¼ per cent. The regular dividend on the common and of 1½ per cent. on the preferred will be paid Dec. 10 to stockholders of record Nov. 30. The extra is to be paid Jan. 10 to stockholders of record Nov. 30.

U. S. Rubber's Surplus $7,792,709.

The report of the United States Rubber Company and its subsidiaries for the six months which ended June 30, shows a surplus after all charges, war taxes and preferred dividends of $7,792,709. This is equivalent to $21.64 a share on the common stock of the company. For the half year period total sales were $108,515,725, and with taxes and general expenses amounting to $82,439,561 there were operating profits of $26,076,164. After the deduction of charges and Canadian and Federal taxes there was a net profit of $10,288,025. The profit and loss surplus of the company now amounts to $39,643,256.

COTTON MARKET QUIET.

Extreme Price Range for the Day Is 47 Points for July Contracts.

The cotton market yesterday was the same quiet and desultory session of the preceding days of the week. With opening prices unchanged to 15 points higher than Tuesday's closing the market pursued a very tranquil course with the extreme price range 47 points, and that in the contracts for July. Liverpool cables caused prices to rise after the call and these were maintained on Wall Street and spot buying. During the forenoon the market reacted to prices below the previous day's close under light hedge selling from the South and local liquidation. The best prices of the day, December selling at 28.42c, January 27.48c, March 26.67c and July 26c showed small price changes compared with the ruling quotations of Tuesday.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Day.
Dec.	28.26	28.42	28.00	28.20@28.35	28.10
Jan	27.80	27.48	27.00	27.28@27.30	27.18
Feb.	....	....	....	26.65 bid.	26.56
March	26.45	26.67	26.15	26.50@26.56	26.41
April	....	....	....	26.10 bid.	26.20
May	26.15	26.30	25.86	26.05@26.10	26.15
July	26.00	26.00	25.53	25.80@25.85	25.75
Aug.	25.30	....	....	25.00 bid.	25.00
Sept.	24.10	24.33	24.20	24.20 bid.	24.35

The local market for spot cotton was quiet at 29.75c for middling upland; sales nil.

Southern spot markets were: Galveston, 30.50c; New Orleans, 29.75c; Savannah, 29c; Augusta, 28c; Memphis, 30c; Houston, 29.90c; Little Rock, 30c.

	Yesterday.	Last Wk.	Last Yr.
Port receipts	26,523	25,485	36,925
Exports	.....	.....	11,790
Exports, season	1,199,779	1,068,858	1,166,101
New York stocks	121,447	136,155	118,000
New York arrivals	7,256	6,815	.....

Liverpool cables: Spot cotton quiet, 20.60d for middling; 20.22d for good middling; sales, 1,000 bales, all American; imports, 14,000 bales, 11,000 of which were American. Futures opened quiet, unchanged to 7 points off, and closed barely steady, 2 to 31 points decline; November, 21.10d; December, 20.06d; January, 19.04d; February, 18.24d; March, 17.54d. Manchester—Yarns weaker, and cloths quiet and unchanged.

Conflicting Equipment Rumor.

It was rumored in the financial district yesterday that the Railroad Administration had changed its order to the American Locomotive Company and the Lima Locomotive Works, and had now notified both concerns to produce engines which were formerly held up. In juxtaposition to this report was another from Philadelphia which asserted that the Baldwin Locomotive Works had been asked to cancel the order placed with the company for 1,500 Pershing engines.

PROPOSE DEBENTURE ISSUE

General Motors Company May Also Decrease Preferred Stock.

Stockholders of the General Motors Corporation, at a special meeting which has been called for Dec. 10, will be asked to act upon proposals providing for an issue of $150,000,000 par value 6 per cent. debenture stock, $20,000,000 of which is to be set aside to be exchanged, share for share, for the outstanding issue of preferred. It is proposed also to decrease the present preferred issue from $100,000,000 to $20,000,000.

In the original application to list the stock of the company on the New York Stock Exchange there was a provision to the effect that any additional preferred stock should be known as second preferred. It is partly to obviate this difficulty that the changes are proposed. Of the new stock approximately $33,000,000 will be used to pay for the assets of the United Motors Corporation, according to the terms of the agreement entered into recently.

NORFOLK & WESTERN BONDS

Shareholders May Subscribe on a Basis of 12½ Per Cent. of Holdings.

The Norfolk and Western Railway Company will soon offer to its preferred and common stockholders the right to subscribe at par to an issue of ten-year convertible 6 per cent. gold bonds. Each shareholder may subscribe to the issue to the extent of 12½ per cent. of holdings of record Dec. 18.

The bonds, which will be convertible as long as they run, into common stock at par, will be dated Sept. 1, 1919, and will mature in September, 1929. The stock in the company is held in large blocks, chiefly, and it is estimated that if all shareholders exercise their privileges the new issue will amount to approximately $15,000,000. Those who are in close touch with the company said yesterday that the issue will be about that much.

The subscription price will be payable 40 per cent. on or before Jan. 25, 1919, 30 per cent. between May 1 and 7, and 30 per cent. between Sept. 1 and 6, 1919. Partial payments will bear interest at the rate of 6 per cent.

Buy More Farm Mortgages

Investors could well afford to follow the investment policies of our life insurance companies, which now have nearly a billion dollars invested in farm mortgages.

Why?

During the war period their investments in farm mortgages increased $250,000,000. There are excellent reasons for this increase. We have a booklet for distribution issued by the Association of Life Insurance Presidents giving some interesting information on the subject.

You can purchase farm mortgage investments from us in denominations as small as $100, netting as high as 6½%.

The case of Max W. Stoehr of 135 Central Park West, suing in his own behalf and as a stockholder in Stoehr & Sons, Inc., to test the constitutionality of the taking over and sale of the property of the Botany Worsted Mills, Passaic, N. J., by A. Mitchell Palmer, Alien Property Custodian, will be heard tomorrow before Judge John C. Knox, sitting in the Federal District Court for the Southern District of New York.

Louis Marshall of Guggenheimer, Untermyer & Marshall and Louis Vorhaus are counsel for Stoehr.

Mr. Stoehr in the bill which his counsel has filed alleges that the property was taken in violation of that part of the Constitution which prohibits the taking of property without due process of law; second, that the terms of the sale are onerous, and third, "that it forbids the bidding for, or purchase of, the company's stock by any other than a citizen of the United States," and, also, a violation of the commercial treaties between the United States and such countries as Belgium, Italy, France, and Great Britain.

John Quinn is counsel for the Directors of the Botany Worsted Mills and Stoehr & Sons, Inc., and its Directors.

Laruë Brown, Assistant Federal Attorney General, and Lee Bradley, general counsel for the Alien Property Custodian, will appear in behalf of the Government, assisted by District Attorney Francis G. Caffey of this district.

The property was originally advertised for sale next Monday, Dec. 2, in the office of the company in Passaic. This action, however, has been postponed until Tuesday, Dec. 17, and will be held, as planned, under the auspices of Colonel Guffey, who is associated with A. Mitchell Palmer in the disposition of enemy owned property. Stoehr is not a stockholder in the Botany Worsted Mills, but owns shares in the New York company of Stoehr & Sons, Inc. There is a total of 36,000 shares of the company outstanding of which 24,410 are owned by Stoehr & Sons, Inc.

Stoehr, it was said, is a naturalized citizen of German birth, having become a citizen in 1910. He was one of the Directors of the Botany Worsted Company, but was ousted for cause by the Board of Trustees, consisting of James M. Wallace, President of the Central Trust Company; Francis P. Garvan of the Alien Property Bureau, and H. C. McEldowney, President of the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, who were appointed by Mr. Palmer at the time of the seizure of the property in March. His removal was made in July, and up to that time he also served as Treasurer of the company.

His brother, Hans E., was manager of the property until his death in March. Two other brothers of Stoehr were also interested in the management of the company, but before the outbreak of the war between Germany and the United States both left for Germany.

Mr. Quinn gave out yesterday copies of two promissory notes signed by Max W. Stoehr and made out to the order of Dr. A. Mothwurf for $10,000 and $6,000 respectively for the purchase of shares in the Botany Worsted Mills, owned by Dr. Mothwurf. The latter is an alien enemy, and this stock would have been taken over by Mr. Palmer as Alien Property Custodian when he seized the plant of the company in Passaic. However, the sale of this interest to Stoehr prevented such action.

Both documents read that the money would be paid in the currency of the United States, or its equivalent in reichsmarks, including interest at 6 per cent. per annum from Feb. 25, 1918, when the sale was made, but payable six months after the end of the war. The notes were made a claim against funds held by Stoehr, deposited at the Deutsche Bank branch in Leipzig.

The Botany Worsted Mills concern was organized in 1889 with a capital of $1,100,000, and from time to time, as the business of the company expanded, this was increased, until in May, 1908, the capital was $5,000,000.

TO BUY HOG ISLAND LAND.

Government Will Become Sole Owner of Great Shipyard.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 27.—Announcement that the Government through the Emergency Fleet Corporation had decided to buy the real estate of the Hog Island Shipyard, and thus become sole owner of the shipbuilding establishment, was made today by H. L. Ackerson, one of the officers of the corporation. The real estate is owned by the American International Corporation, and is valued at $1,760,000. The Government has expended about $60,000,000 on equipping the plant.

According to Howard Coonley, Vice President of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, purchase of the real estate does not commit the Government to continued ownership and operation of the yard.

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday .....6 per cent. for the best names
Tuesday .....6 per cent. for the best names
The quotations are for six months' paper.

This Biter Was Bitten.

Not many of the current stories regarding attempts of buyers to cancel, in expectation of lower prices to come, favor the seller, but at least one of them does. A certain concern handling knit goods several months ago sold to a Middle Western retailer a good-sized quantity of wool hosiery at a price well under the present market. Part of the goods were to be delivered in October and the remainder in January. The first lot was sent out and accepted, but when the armistice was signed the store's merchandise man ordered the cancellation of the due goods. This was received and accepted by the sellers, who straightway sent a man to the resident buyer of the store and sold the hose over again at a nice advance. Even at that it was a good "buy" for the store, and although some hot shot was fired by both sides, the goods will be shipped as originally ordered.

Gray Goods Wait on Holiday.

Trading in the local gray goods market yesterday followed the lines it usually does on a day prior to a holiday, even when things are "right" the result was the disposal of a rather limited yardage of goods, composed chiefly of odd lots here and there that could be got out for shipment on the last two business days of the month. Among them were further second-hand 39-inch 68-72s at 17 cents and 38½-inch 64-68s at 13½ cents. Coarse-yarn goods got little attention during the day, and the finer cloths did not fare much better.

Drug Market Quiet Here.

There is a lull in the primary market of most drugs, Drug and Chemical Markets will say today, and dealers in this city are pursuing a conservative policy. This is due to the uncertainty in the shipping outlook and the hesitancy of retail dealers to commit themselves pending price fluctuations, which are expected if the Government places its surplus stocks on the market by the old auction system. Trading in chemicals for export is fairly active, especially in products for which licenses are easily obtained. In the domestic trade there is a conservative tone, consumers limiting their orders to present necessities.

Dress Hats in Growing Demand.

In common with other lines of merchandise for evening wear by women, an increased demand is reported here for dress hats. One of the features of these is the large amount of maline that is being used, often in combination with velvet, satin, gold tissue cloth, and gold or silver lace. Both turbans and large, "floppy" effects are seen. Many of them are made without frames, braces of wire holding them in shape. Some of the large hats are made in transparent effects. Brown and black malines seem to be most favored. In some cases the trimmings are quite elaborate, consisting of paradise and goura.

"Fish Tails" Hold the Palm.

A survey of the advance business booked in women's sweaters for Spring delivery shows that the so-called "fish-tail" slipover is far and away the best seller, both in wool and fibre silk goods. In the wood goods, partly because it fits well into the Government's restrictions as to what wool sweaters should weigh to the dozen—it is said to have sold practically to the exclusion of the coat type of sweater. In the case of fibre goods it has not dominated sales to quite that extent, but is easily the leader. Sweaters of this style come only to the waistline of the wearer and are purled from eight to ten inches above that point, thus insuring a snug fit. Various types of collars are shown on these garments, but the Dutch effect has sold best to date. Popular shades include turquoise, peacock blue, coral and American beauty.

More Meshbags Being Sold.

Within two days after the war ceased, manufacturers of gold and silver mesh bags and purses found that there was a decided increase in the sale of these goods. Since that time orders have continued to come in steadily, especially for the green gold bags, which are evidently one of the leaders for this season. It is the opinion of some firms that, if business continues at the present rate, the season of 1918 will be one of the largest in the history of the trade.

Window Shades Going Better.

The sale of window shades during the period of the war was affected to some extent, but manufacturers now feel very optimistic regarding the future of their business. When the announcement was made recently that the restrictions on building had been removed it opened up another business field for this trade, which had been practically closed for the last two years. More orders are now being received for replacing old shades, and the outlook for the future appears to be very good.

War Toys a Big Factor.

While there is the usual run on books, games, educational, and other playthings included in the holiday business now being done in the retail stores here, war toys are proving an increasingly important factor in the sales that are being made from day to day. The bulk of these toys, of course, is meant for boys, and two reasons are advanced by store executives as to why a record business in them should be done this year. One is that the toy makers have drawn a very large part of their inspiration from the war, and the second is that the enthusiasm which will be aroused by returning soldiers will act as a big stimulant to sales of these goods. Also, with the war over and won, it is said that many women are more willing to let their sons have martial toys than they were a year or two ago.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Herman Hartmann, who is a well-known buyer of piece goods, has become associated as a partner with Charles Welli, resident buyer, 116 West Thirty-second Street. For more than ten years Mr. Hartmann was connected with Alfred Fanti.

In 1906 a petition in bankruptcy was filed against the firm of Hutner & Schensul. Joseph Hutner, a member of that firm, for the last ten years has been associated with P. Hutner & Co. of this city. All claims against the old bankrupt firm will be paid in full, Mr. Hutner announces, if they are presented to P. Hutner & Co., at 48 West Twenty-fifth Street.

A meeting will be held at Atlantic City on Dec. 9, by the War Service Committee of the hardware trade and representatives from the War Trade Board. It is expected that at this meeting the question regarding the allotment of materials will be taken up so that the trade will have some idea upon which to form a working basis for next season.

BUSINESS RECORDS

In Town.

BEABER & GLASS.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Abe Beaber and Charles Glass, composing the firm of Beaber & Glass, manufacturers of furs, at 40 West Thirty-sixth Street, by these creditors: Katz Bros., $361; William P. Sachs, $576, and Dorothy Schwartz, $484. Judge Knox appointed Samuel H. Lummis receiver of the assets, estimated at $1,500 in stock.

JOSEPH GOLDBERG, dealer in shoes, at 207 Clinton Street.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against him by these creditors: Diamond Shoe Company, $268, and Lilin & Stern, $173. He made an assignment on Tuesday.

BRIGHT STAR BATTERY COMPANY of 310 Hudson Street.—At a meeting of creditors held at the office of Musgrave Coxe, referee in bankruptcy, in the Woolworth Building, Marcus Helfand was unanimously elected trustee, and his bond was fixed at $25,000.

HEIT-FISHER, INC., manufacturers of glass Christmas trees, at 81 Walker Street, has made an assignment to Frank L. Dimond. Bernard M. Dollberg is President and Nathan Heit Secretary.

URGES TAX LAW REFORMS.

Appleton Would Have Notices Sent to Delinquent Owners.

Magistrate Charles W. Appleton, who has heard all the testimony regarding tax lien cases presented by the Mayor's Committee on Taxation, working with the District Attorney's office, compiled the members of the committee and the District Attorney's office yesterday on the work they have done in connection with the cases. He also outlined some of the reforms he thought necessary for the protection of poor persons who buy real estate.

"It appears," he said, "that there can be no possible excuse for the Legislature failing to enact a law that will provide adequate and proper notice of unpaid taxes to owners of real estate. A provision should be made whereby every person when he files a deed should be required to have his name and address attached to the deed and the tax assessors in making a transcript should be compelled to take the name and address of the owner of record; and all the records of the tax assessors and tax collectors should show the name and address of the owner.

"I think it would be a necessary and just expense if the tax collector was compelled to send a notice to the owner of record to the address he gave when the deed was filed. It would do away with so many persons having their property sold without any knowledge of it on their part."

A magistrate from the Bronx will resume hearings on Friday in the tax lien cases in the Municipal Term Court to take the place of Magistrate Appleton, who has resigned.

INSTRUCTION.

Foreign Trade---The Most Notable Class Ever Formed in New York

Notable for the character of the instruction staff, for the thoroughness and breadth of the training and for its especial timeliness.

Two hundred and twenty-five men and women have enrolled for this intensive course in the executive phases of FOREIGN TRADE under the direction of Dr. Edward Ewing Pratt, formerly Chief of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, and his staff of export and import authorities.

No better opportunity to prepare quickly and practically for to-day's Foreign Trade needs has ever been available to the forward-looking men and women of New York.

Arrangements have been made to accept a limited number of additional applications for class membership. They must be made at once. For full information, address

REAL ESTATE FIELD

Speculative buying was the feature of yesterday's realty market, which has shown a decided upward trend during the last few days.

Operators were unusually busy and important purchases were made by them in Manhattan and the Bronx, aggregating close to $1,500,000. Several large deals are reported pending.

The feature of the Manhattan market was the sale and resale of 836 Fifth Avenue, an old four-story dwelling on a lot 25 by 100.2, assessed by the city for taxation purposes at $200,000.

It was sold by Mrs. Julia Seligman to C. Grayson Martin, operator, and resold by him to Bovee School for Boys, now located at 4 East Forty-ninth Street. Pease & Elliman negotiated both transactions. The property was originally purchased by Isidore Wormser, the father of Mrs. Seligman, in 1872, and there has been no transfer since that time.

It has been held at $25,000, but was disposed of for a figure considerably under that price. Adjoining it is the fifty-foot residence of Mrs. W. Watts Sherman, at the corner of Sixty-fifth Street. Other owners on the block are Frederick Lewisohn, at No. 835; William Guggenheim, at No. 833; Mrs. James B. Haggin, at No. 830, corner of Sixty-fourth Street, while the Astor mansion occupies the north corner of Sixty-fifth Street.

This property was formerly a part of the common lands of the City of New York, and was originally leased in 1800 under a perpetual lease, for which the tenant paid four bushels of marketable wheat per annum to the city, at which time the plot involved included all of the property between Fifth and Fourth Avenues, Sixty-fourth and Sixty-fifth Streets. In 1815 the city sold the fee and the perpetual lease was canceled.

$500,000 Deal on Twenty-third Street.

An important Twenty-third Street deal in the business block between Sixth and Seventh Avenues was closed in the sale by Isaac Clothier of Philadelphia of the eleven-story loft structure at 119 and 121 West Twenty-third Street, known as the Jefferson Building. It has a frontage of fifty feet and extends through to Twenty-fourth Street, with the same frontage there, the depth being 197.6 feet. It was held at $500,000 and was sold through Harold L. Lewis, the buyer being a client of Stoddard & Mark, attorneys. The rentals of the building aggregate about $45,000.

$275,000 Purchase by Morgenstern Syndicate on the Heights.

The Morgenstern Brothers Syndicate which has been operating in the Bronx recently, made an important purchase in the Fort Washington section of the heights yesterday.

From the Heights Improvement Company, of which Harry Goodstein is President, they purchased the Harvard and Princeton, two high-class, five-story apartment houses occupying a plot 175 by 118 on the northwest corner of Audubon Avenue and 167th Street.

The structures, which were completed about two years ago, accommodate sixty families, have an annual rent roll of about $32,000, and were held at $275,000.

All Cash Paid for Four Bronx Apartments.

The Banenson Realty Company, which has been operating heavily in Bronx properties for several months past, made four important purchases from the Henry Morgenthau Company yesterday. In the Hunts Point section they bought 980 East 163d Street, a five-story new-law apartment, 100 by 60, with seven stores, held at $95,000; 938 East 163d Street, a five-story new-law apartment on a plot 50 by 112, held at $85,000; in the Bronxwer Bronx, 550 East 133d Street, a five-story triple flat on a plot 35 by 100, held at $15,000, and 1,442 Boston Road, a four-story new-law apartment, 35 by 90, held at $19,000. The buyers paid all cash.

Operator Makes Two Bronx Purchases Aggregating $325,000.

Frederick Brown, operator, made two purchases in the Bronx yesterday aggregating about $325,000. From the Coulter estate he purchased the block front on the north side of 194th Street from Bainbridge to Marion Avenue, comprising about thirteen lots.

There are seven detached houses on the property which has been owned by the estate for the last twenty-three years and was held at $75,000. Marston & Co. negotiated the sale.

In the West Bronx Mr. Brown purchased from the 2,493 Valentine Avenue Company Le Roy Hall, a six-story elevator apartment covering six lots, on the southwest corner of Fordham Road and Valentine Avenue.

The buyer contemplates installing stores in the Fordham Road frontage of the building, by which he expects to increase the rental by $10,000 per annum. The property accommodates forty-seven families on an area 110 by 184 by irregular at rentals aggregating about $27,000, and was held at $250,000. L. C. Cowan negotiated the sale.

Tenants Buy Building.

William H. Whiting & Co. sold for the estate of Benedict Stewart the six-story building at 110-116 Beekman Street, located 83.5 feet west of the corner of Water street and having a frontage of 66.8 feet on Beekman Street.

The purchasers are H. R. Lathrop & Co., importers and exporters of drugs, who have occupied the structure for several years past.

Private Dwelling Deals.

An investing client of A. H. Levy purchased from Julius Stich 1,053 Lexington Avenue, a three-story dwelling on a lot 17.2 by 55 adjoining the corner of Seventy-fifth Street.

Herman P. Tappe bought from Rosemary Baruch the four-story dwelling, 14 by 100, at 71 East Fifty-second Street.

Nathan F. Williamson sold the three-story and basement house, 858 West Thirty-first street, on a lot 20 by 98.9, to an investor.

Thompson Street Sale.

The three three-story buildings, 221 to 225 Thompson street, on a plot 71.4 by 100, have been sold by Mary Allyne and St. Luke's Hospital to an investor. H. Nelson Flanagan negotiated the sale.

The Bronx Market.

Cahn & Pittman, operators, purchased from Patrick Dillon 2,876 Bailey Avenue, a two-family brick house on a lot 25 by 100.

Elinor Lisson sold the southwest corner of the Grand Boulevard and Concourse, opposite Poe Park and located one block south of Kingsbridge Road. The property fronts 75 feet on the Concourse and 112.3 feet on 193d Street.

Queens Borough Sales.

Mary A. Brown sold to C. M. Tinney a plot, 37 by 173, on the east side of Linden avenue, north of State Street, Flushing.

The United Assets Corporation sold to G. E. Bellows a plot, 97 by 100, on the south side of Prospect Street, east of Henry Street, Long Island City.

K. F. Madden sold to M. Wahk a plot, 40 by 100, at the southwest corner of Hillside Avenue and Spruce Street, Richmond Hill.

F. Dawson has sold to W. S. Arnison a plot, 87 by 88, at the northwest corner of James Street and Maple Avenue, Flushing.

Brooklyn.

The Bulkley & Horton Company sold 236 Eighty-eighth Street, between Ridge Boulevard and Third Avenue, a two-story brick two-family house, on a lot 20 by 100, for Frank K. Hoffman to a client for investment.

New Jersey.

S. S. Walstrum-Gordon & Forman sold for Loftus and George E. Phillips the dwelling 21 East Franklin Avenue, Ridgewood, N. J., to Harry C. Umland of Bloomfield, N. J.

William H. Wheelock Elected President of Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Co.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company, Charles S. Brown, who has been Vice President of the company since its organization, was made Chairman of the Board of Directors. William H. Wheelock was elected President to succeed the late Douglas Robinson, who died last September. Arthur W. Francis, William R. Buchanan, and Simon Newman were elected Vice Presidents, Charles Donnelly Jr., Treasurer and Secretary, and Charles S. Carson, Assistant Treasurer. All of these men have been connected with the company since its formation, and prior to that were associated with its predecessors, Douglas Robinson & Co. and Charles S. Brown.

AN ADVENTURE IN BUSINESS.

(NOT FROM THE ARABIAN NIGHTS)

Mr. Mc— (32 years of age), who has been a successful lumber salesman nearly all his life, found himself recently without a position. Happening through a happy chance to read our advertisement, he decided that HERE was an opportunity to capitalize his selling abilities for more money than he had been receiving. Result of his first eight weeks' work with us, over $1,400 in cash commissions, and he has deferred equities in the business of approximately the same amount.

This is a human document open to your scrutiny—a story from real life, the hero of which is now in our employ. Best of all, he is duplicated by an energetic man who has the work habit, combined with our original selling methods. We have a similar opening for one or two successful salesmen who can furnish gilt-edge references.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 7,197 packages. Prices advanced another ½c and the market is firm at the higher rates. There is a shortage of choice and fancy grades and the medium qualities are selling somewhat better in consequence. Creamery, higher than extras, a pound, 67½@68c; extras, 67 score, 66½@67c; firsts, 63 to 91 score, 61@66c; seconds, 58 to 87 score, 59@60c; lower grades, 52@58c; unsalted, higher than extras, 69½@70c; extras, 68½@69c; firsts, 65@68c; seconds, 58@62c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 66@68c; good to prime, 64@65c; common to fair, 60@63c; renovated, extras, 65@66c; firsts, 47@48½c; lower grades, 42@46c; imitation creamery, firsts, 46@47c; ladles, current make, firsts, 43@44c; seconds, 41½@42c; lower grades, 39½@40c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 40½@41c; No. 2, 39½@40c; lower grades, 36@39c.

EGGS.—8,348 cases, not including 5,000 cases for export. Arrivals of fresh gathered eggs continue light. Buyers are taking stock more cautiously, but the urgent needs of the market appear to be sufficient to absorb the limited offerings at steady prices. There is a moderate movement in good qualities of Fall packed held fresh, the better grades of which have some sales at 63@66c. Lower qualities of these ranges downward indefinitely to about the prices of storage stock. Storage eggs continue in strong demand. Stock here is moving out in all directions, including some shipments West, and offerings are not equal to the needs of the trade. Nearby white eggs in light supply; fancy, new laid qualities, showing good size, quick at steady prices. Mixed and irregular qualities sell at a wide range. Californias are pretty well cleared up at 92c, but some of lower grade are moving slowly at 84@85c. Fresh gathered, extras, a dozen, 73@74c; extra firsts, 71@72c; firsts, 68@70c; seconds, 65@67c; Fall gathered, poor to prime, 50@65c; dirties, No. 1, 48@50c; No. 2 and poorer, 46@47c; checks, good to choice, dry, 45@46c; undergrades, 43@45c; refrigerator, 42@51c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby western, hennery whites, fine to fancy, 82@95c; ordinary to prime, 76@90c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 70@92c; bullet whites, 70@75c; Pacific Coast, first to finest, 92c; lower grades, 84@85c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 69@86c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby, hennery browns, 76@90c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 65@74c.

MEN IN UNIFORM ALL TO GET TURKEY

City Has Prepared a Thanksgiving Spread for All Soldiers and Sailors.

ALLIES WILL BE FED, TOO

Auto Rides and Dances Will Help to Make the National Festival a Memorable Day.

Thousands upon thousands of turkey dinners will be served today by many organizations to soldiers and sailors, both Americans and of other nations. Thousands of others will be served in private homes to men in the service who have been invited through the War Camp Community Service, which, alone, has arranged to serve 50,000 men. There will also be ample Thanksgiving entertainment in the city today for every man in the uniform of the United States or an allied nation.

Men arriving at the various railway terminals will be met by scouts of the War Camp Community Service and invited to the nearest canteen or club. One thousand Boy Scouts and students of the College of the City of New York have volunteered for the work of rounding up scattered men in uniform and bringing them to heaping Thanksgiving tables. Hundreds of men in allied uniforms will have their first acquaintance with the traditional New England Thanksgiving fare. The War Camp Community Service has also obtained the use of automobiles to take 10,000 men on sight-seeing trips, and later to carry them to thirteen dances for men in uniform, the largest of which will be held at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory, Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street.

Turkey dinners will be served by the Red Cross to 750 convalescent soldiers from Ellis Island, Staten Island, Debarkation Hospital No. 3, formerly the Greenhut store, and at other military hospitals, with the aid of the Red Cross Motor Corps, who will carry them in machines to various clubs and private homes in the city. The Lambs, the Friars, and the Vacation Association are among the organizations which will have these men for their guests.

Nearly 2,000 free Thanksgiving dinners will be served to men in service by the Canteen Division of the National League of Women's Service. A number of French sailors will be introduced to turkey, mince pie, and other symbols of Thanksgiving at the American Fund for French Wounded at 73 Park Avenue. The invitation of the fund has been accepted by Admiral Grant, now in port on La Gloire, who promised to send all men that he could detach from the French ships.

Thanksgiving dinner for sailors will be served at the Navy Club at 509 Fifth Avenue. Men of the merchant marine will be entertained at the Seamen's Association, 399 West Street, where a supper and concert will be held.

In spite of the hundreds of tons of turkey which will be used up in this city in making the day what it should be for men in service, New York City will look after its poor, as it has in past years, with scores of free dinners for men, women, and children. The Brace Memorial Newsboys' House of the Children's Aid Society will hold its annual feast for newsboys at 7 o'clock.

Some of the other Thanksgiving dinners will be served tomorrow by the Greater New York Philanthropic Society at 37 City Hall Place, by the New York Philanthropic League at 27 East Forty-second Street, by the New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children at 297 Fourth Avenue, by the St. Andrew's Society at 31 West Eighth Street, and by numerous other charitable organizations.

The New York branch of the Jewish Welfare Board has made elaborate provision for the entertainment of the enlisted men. Special turkey dinners will be served at all of the canteens under the chairmanship of Mrs. Jerome Hanauer. At 89 Park Avenue, Mrs. Simon Gottschall will be in charge; at the Y. M. H. A., Mrs. Samuel Schulman; at the Women's League, United Synagogue Branch, Mrs. Solomon Schechter, and at the Seward Park Canteen, Mrs. Nathan Glauber. Since Thanksgiving corresponds with the Jewish festival of Chanuka, traditional services will be held at all canteens. The board has also made ample provision for the men in the hospitals and camps through its Special Needs Committee, of which Mrs. William Einstein is Chairman, in cooperation with the ladies of the Rodeph Sholom Congregation, of which Mrs. Edward Weisel is Chairman. The opening celebration will be held at the Y. M. H. A. at 10:30 A. M. Ex-Ambassador Elkus and Jacob H. Schiff will speak.

By direction of the Board of Education, Thanksgiving celebrations were held last evening in all of the fourteen public school districts in Brooklyn. The exercises, which were of a patriotic character, were attended largely by the parents of the pupils of the various schools. All of the 180 public schools of the borough were represented. In each district a centrally located school building having a large auditorium was selected for the celebration. These included the Eastern District, Bushwick, Manual Training, Erasmus Hall and other high schools. Patriotic songs were sung by the pupils and addresses made by prominent men of the different neighborhoods.

SERVICES IN CITY CHURCHES.

Thanksgiving for Victory Will Be a Feature Everywhere.

Religious services of Thanksgiving in the churches today will be mingled with honors paid to American and allied soldiers and sailors and with discussions by soldiers and statesmen of the problems of demobilization and reconstruction confronting the country. Soldiers and diplomatic representatives of all the allied nations will be guests at the special Thanksgiving service for victory at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine at 11 o'clock this morning. The flags of all the allied nations will be carried by a detachment of American sailors. Consul General Clive Bayley of Great Britain, Consul General Gaston Liebert of France, and Pierre Mali, the Belgian Consul, will be among the guests. Assistant Secretary of the Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt, Admiral Nathaniel R. Usher, Admiral Albert Gleaves, Judges of the city and State courts, and representatives of many patriotic societies, both foreign and domestic, will be present. Bishop David H. Greer and Bishop Arthur S. Lloyd will preach.

Major General J. Franklin Bell will speak on "America's Reasons for Thanksgiving," and the Rev. Dr. W. T. Manning will preach at the Thanksgiving for Victory services at Trinity Church at 11 o'clock today. The church will receive flags of twenty-four nations, to be kept as a memento of the war.

Ex-Attorney General George W. Wickersham will speak on "The Allies of America" at the Church of the Holy Communion. Directly after the service the Roll of Honor of the church and a new service banner will be unveiled. At 1 o'clock sixty soldiers and sailors will be entertained at dinner at the church.

German helmets and other trophies will decorate the Bedford Presbyterian Church, in Brooklyn, at Nostrand Avenue and Dean Street, at 10:45 o'clock this morning. Delegations of soldiers and sailors from various camps and barracks will be present, and most of them will be taken home to dinner by members of the congregation. Major Donald Guthrie and the Rev. S. Bedford Young will be in the pulpit.

The Zionist Organization of America will hold a Thanksgiving service at 8 o'clock tonight in the auditorium of Public School No. 4, at Pitt and Rivington Streets, at which Dr. S. S. Wise, Professor Mossensohn, Dr. S. Levine, Louis Lipsky, and Solomon Sufrin will speak. Services will be held at the Hebrew Orphan Asylum Synagogue, at Amsterdam Avenue and 137th Street, and at other synagogues. Thanksgiving services will be held in many Lutheran churches.

Dr. Harry E. Fosdick will preach at the Thanksgiving service at 11 o'clock this morning in the First Presbyterian Church, at Fifth Avenue and Twelfth Street. The Free Synagogue will unite with the Church of the Divine Paternity at 11 o'clock in a joint Thanksgiving service, at which addresses will be made by the Rev. Frank Oliver Hall and Dr. S. S. Wise. Services in which soldiers and sailors will take part will be held at the Church of the Holy Trinity, at Montague and Clinton Streets, Brooklyn, at 8:30 and 11 o'clock this morning. Rabbi Herbert S. Goldstein, Congressman Isaac Siegel, and Commissioner Maurice Simmons will address the Hebrew Veterans of the War with Spain at 10:30 o'clock this morning at the Mount Morris Theatre, 116th Street and Fifth Avenue.

An elaborate musical program will be the principal features of the Thanksgiving service at the Chapel of the Intercession at 10:30 o'clock this morning.

The largest Thanksgiving demonstration will be held in Madison Square Garden at 3:45 o'clock, when 10,000 members of patriotic and musical organizations will join in singing hymns and patriotic songs. The Pelham Bay Naval Band will play. Addresses will be made by Major Gen. J. Franklin Bell and William Fellowes Morgan. Twenty-two girls, natives of the allied countries, will march in costume, escorted by soldiers and sailors, all veterans of this war. Four hundred Pelham Bay sailors will sing in a naval training camp here.

Thanksgiving services at Columbia University were held yesterday in St. Paul's Chapel. Chaplain Raymond C. Knox conducted the service, and Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler made the address. Y. M. C. A. men and members of the Students Army Training Corps acted as ushers. The services opened with the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" as the processional, and with "Stand, Columbia" as the recessional.

"Today," said Dr. Butler, "we give thanks to Almighty God in a new spirit of joy and cheerfulness and satisfaction that we have been permitted to see and to share this epoch-making time. The heart of a people has been touched and been opened to new streams of sympathy and tenderness and of human brotherhood. Can we not rejoice and give thanks that we have this splendid training in fine feeling; that we have come upon these unexpected and unknown opportunities for service, and that now, that the beast has been trampled under foot, we may hope to save these feelings for other and still finer and still nobler uses in the years that are opening before us?"

Miss Amy Horch a Bride.

The marriage of William S. Oppenheimer, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Oppenheimer of the Hotel Savoy, and Miss Amy Horch, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Max Horch, took place at 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, 532 West 111th Street, Dr. Stephen S. Wise, officiating. Louis Horch, a brother of the bride, was the best man, and the bride was attended only by her mother. Mr. and Mrs. Oppenheimer will be at home after Dec. 15 at 532 West 111th Street.

Godfrey-Meininger.

The wedding of Walter E. Godfrey, U. S. A., stationed at Camp Lee, Va., and Miss Elise Meininger, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Meininger, took place yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, 140 West Sixty-ninth Street, in the presence of the families, the Rev. Dr. De Sola Mendes performing the ceremony. The bride, in white satin and wearing a point lace veil held with orange blossoms, was unattended, as was the bridegroom. Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey will be at Camp Lee until the bridegroom has received his commission as a Lieutenant in the army, which will be in about three weeks.

Willis-Will.

The marriage of Miss Katherine Victoria Will to Harry Stribley Willis took place at 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon at All Angels' Church, West Eighty-first Street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. S. De Lancey Townsend, rector of the church. The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Linden Taylor Harris of Philadelphia, as matron of honor. She is a daughter of Allen Sinclair Will of THE NEW YORK TIMES. Mr. Willis is a civil engineer of this city. The couple will live at 180 Claremont Avenue.

TO BUY A PANAMAN ISLE.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COLON, Nov. 27.—Panama's prettiest island, Taboga, in Panama Bay, will soon be acquired by the United States if present negotiations are successful. A total of about 1,172 out of the 1,427 acres of the island is wanted, probably as part of a defensive system for the Panama Canal.

Taboga is a famous health resort, the site of the Canal sanitarium in Canal construction days. It is a noted pineapple centre, and was the rendezvous of Morgan in pirate times. The inhabitants of Taboga protest against a change of sovereignty.

Miss Keese Wed to Ensign Boyd.

Mrs. Edmund Keese of 316 West Ninety-fifth Street announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Marjorie Linn Keese, to Ensign Arthur Emmet Boyd, U. S. N., a son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. K. Boyd of Rutherford, N. J., on Monday, Nov. 25, in St. Agnes's Church, the Rev. Dr. W. W. Bellinger officiating. Miss Hilda Woodbridge Keese was her sister's maid of honor and Frederick Boyd was his brother's best man. None except relatives was present, as it was a hurried war wedding, owing to Ensign Keese being ordered abroad at once.

Assemblyman McKee Marries.

Miss Cornelia Kraft, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip J. Kraft of New Rochelle, and Assemblyman Joseph V. McKee were married yesterday by the Rev. Joseph E. Brady of the Church of the Blessed Sacrament. Only the immediate families attended the marriage. Mr. McKee, who is serving his second term in the Legislature, is a lawyer and author.

Major William Thaw Promoted.

Major William Thaw, American "ace" with the 103d United States Aero Squadron in France, has been promoted to a Lieutenant Colonelcy, according to advices received here yesterday by Alan R. Hawley, President of the Aero Club of America. A younger brother of Lieut. Col. Thaw, Lieutenant Alexander Blair Thaw, was killed in August in France.

Let Us Be Thankful

IN 1621 a little group of dauntless men and women held the first American Thanksgiving, offering their gratitude to the Power that had led them victorious against odds uncounted and showered upon them the blessings of a new world.

*Never since then has there been such cause for heartfelt Thanksgiving as to-day when peace again returns to us after weary months of war, during which we have battled, animated by the courage and ideals handed down to us from those who held that first Thanksgiving——until at last we stand, like them, victorious before a new world of peace and golden promise.

Special—Tan Cape Gloves
$1.65 per pair
Friday and Saturday Only

Just to say that we have 1,222 pairs of Fine Prix Seam Tan Cape Gloves doesn't do this Special offer justice. It merely suggests a great money-saving opportunity.

You must see the Gloves and feel them—to appreciate how much more you would ordinarily expect to pay for Gloves of such quality.

Friday and Saturday only, however—$1.65.

Have you tried one lately?

An "all-the-time" cigar!

DO you make a distinction between the cigar that is relished "now and then" and the cigar that gives pleasure "day in and day out"?

There is a time, certainly, for the "rich" cigar, with its heavy, aromatic fragrance.

But for "every-day," "all-the-time" smoking, commend us to mild Robert Burns.

There's a cigar a busy man can smoke, and smoke to his heart's content—without a fear that the aftermath will be anything but agreeable.

Most good tobacconists sell Robert Burns. The one that doesn't is an exception.
